

The only argument the Republicans have left is to go about the country and say to the farmer: "You are getting good prices for your products. See how much more you get now than you got when Cleveland was President. The high prices of eggs and chickens and agricultural products is due to the Republican administration, therefore vote the Republican ticket in November to keep up the prices." The same fellow goes to a town man and denies that that the Republican administration has anything to do with the high cost of living. They talk both ways. Referring to the price of cotton and the Republican policy of dejection, the Laurinburg Exchange says:

"In reply to Mr. Parker's statement made in his speech Saturday of error that the price of cotton was lower under the Cleveland administration, which was a low tariff administration than any other time, Mr. Page showed that cotton reaching its lowest price in the history of the world in 1898, when McKinley was President; and the Dingley high protective law was effect. He might have gone further and shown how the present Republican administration has done what no other administration has done, what no other administration ever dreamed of doing. When the price of cotton reached its high mark last year, due largely to the Farmer Union, an investigation was ordered and several men were indicted because they were somewhat responsible for the fact that this great product of the South was selling at so high a figure."

Exactly. The Taft administration put all its machinery at work to punish men for trying to put up the price of cotton, whereas it had never tried to punish conspirators for putting down the price of cotton. No government ever committed a greater crime against farmers.

The tariff can, and does increase the price of those things that we import, like iron products, steel, clothes, and nearly everything else one uses, but it cannot effect the price of cotton, corn, wheat or any agricultural produce because we export all these things. Republican who tell farmers that their party has put up the price of anything they grow presume that they are so ignorant that such fairy tales will fool them. Farmers sell all they make in the open market of world, without any help from tariff or subsidy. They buy everything they buy in the restricted market fixed by tariff subsidy to favor manufacturers and the farmers know it. The Republican speller who tells them they owe anything to the Republican tariff will be laughed at by every farmer in the State. N & O

LOW COTTON

Mr. Morehead speaks of low cotton under Cleveland's administration, but he is not frank enough to tell his people that cotton fell to the lowest price in the history of the world in 1898, when McKinley was President, and the Dingley high-protective tariff law was on the statute-books. Mr. Morehead is not frank enough to tell the people that during the whole four years of Cleveland's administration cotton brought an average of 7.72 cents per pound, while during McKinley's administration it brought only 7.27 cents—a difference of 45 points more under Cleveland, or $2.25 per bale. Mr. Morehead does not tell the people that during the last two years of Cleveland's administration, under a low tariff, cotton brought an average of 7.63 cents a pound while under McKinley's first two years, 1877-'93, under a high tariff, it brought only an average of 6.47, or a difference of 121, per pound or $6.05 more per bale under Cleveland's administration. Mr. Morehead does not tell the people that the average price of standard sheeting per yard under Cleveland's four years—1893-1897—was 5.55, while under McKinley's four years it was only 5.06, a difference in favor of the despised Cleveland administration of 49 points, or half a cent per yard. Standard prints during the same time brought more than half a cent a yard more under Cleveland's four years than under McKinley's. This is all shown by a Government publication which is known as the Statistical Record of the Progress of the United States, and which any one can secure from the Bureau of Commerce and Labor at Washington.—E. Y. Webb.

PRINCIPLE, be it political or otherwise, is to be admired and commended in any man, whether we agree with him or not, but it does look weak to us when we see men toadying to and patterning after those men whose price is so low that they sell their political principle for a mess of pottage, as it were.

This was forcibly brought to our mind at the Republic-can conventions held here last week when we sized up their leaders. With very, very few exceptions, these men were former Democrats; Democrats who have become traitors to their principles and joined the ranks of their political enemies solely for the purpose of securing some federal office, (and some of them with nothing but a forlorn hope of landing some of these offices.)

We do not condemn a man for changing his belief in any matter when he is convinced that he is in error, but with unrest throughout the Republican States, and with Republicans leaving their party in all sections because that party has proven untrue to its pledges and is bringing additional oppression upon the masses,

Democrats especially in the South are not leaving that party to join forces with the party the masses of which are condemning so strenuously just at this time

We repeat it does look weak to us to see men following the lead of those they know to be fishing for some Post office or other Federal position, and are working hard upon their weaker neighbors hoping thereby to win a few votes to the party of their purchase that they may show up to their bosses (with appointing power) what an influence they have with the people.

Don't be as clay in the hands of the political "pie" hunter, but rather tie to the one who is what he is from honest principle.
