

RIDE 'EM, COWBOY

(Copyright by R. R. Doubleday.)

An animated tornado on four legs, 1,200 pounds of living dynamite—such is the "outlaw" bronk, scores of which will provide the chief thrills of the Chicago Roundup and World's Championship Rodeo, to be held for nine days, beginning August 15. Wiry and daring, coolest when facing almost certain injury—such is the buckaroo, standard type of the men who will fight it out with the "bad" horses in the Chicago contests.

Broncho busting calls for all the courage that is traditional on the western ranges and a great part of the $30,000 in prizes appropriated by the Chicago Association of Commerce, under whose auspices the rodeo will be presented, will go to the men who will fight to stay for a few seconds on the hurricane decks of the "sunfishing," "skyscraping," squealing, fighting cayuses. When the courage of the buckaroo clashes with the lawless spirit of the broncho, the ride is always to a sensational finish. Tex Austin, famous through his many successful rodeos and who will manage the Chicago spectacle, already has contracted for the top bronks from the three greatest strings of bucking horses in the West.
