

The Judge's Job

Mrs. and Mrs. Harry Rubber announce the arrival of a son - probably a bouncing baby boy.

"Isn't married life just glorious?" sighed the bride of a year.

"But, oh what price glory!" replied the twenty-year slave.

"I want a box of good cigars."

"What size, ma'am?"

"Well, I think he wears a 14 collar."

How did you get such a bad cold, Harry?

Well, I was in the bath-tub the other night and the man next door started to play the Star Spangled Banner.

Noticing a pretty new face in his congregation, the minister was bound to display a cordial interest.

"We are pleased to have you here," he told her politely. "If you will give me your name and address I shall be happy to call."

"Cut it, doc," retorted the flapper wearily. "I've got a sheik."

Diner—Here, waitress, take this chicken away; it's as tough as a paving stone.

Waitress—Maybe it's a Plymouth Rock, sir.

The little boy was bored with the dictation lesson. He decided to rest a bit.

"Why are you not writing?" asked the teacher.

"Haven't got no pen," said the boy.

"Where's your grammar?" snapped the teacher.

"She's dead," replied the boy.

Mother and child were doing well, and father, who had been celebrating the event, was allowed for the first time to see his little son.

Father—The little rascal! He's got my eyes, my nose, and my mouth.

Mother—Well, thank goodness he hasn't got your breath!

"Hope you liked those odd little Chinese back-scratchers I sent you, dear."

"Mercy! Is that what they are? I've been making my husband eat his salad with them."

Indignant teacher (to boy who objected to learning to sew)—"Why George Washington sewed. You don't think you're better than he, do you?"

Boy—"I don't know. Time will tell."
