Mothers Day

Sunday, May 12, is Mother's Day. The entire nation will join in paying annual tribute to mothers. Whether it be through special programs in churches, schools, or other public places, matters not. Mothers will not be forgotten on that day. The busy man who has much to engross his mind, even on Sunday, will not be too busy to breathe a silent prayer for the happiness, the peace and the contentment of mankind's greatest earthly friend—mother. It may be that she has passed on, then it will be a prayer for a peaceful sleep, through eternity. If living, it should be a prayer spoken aloud, and to her—either by lips or letter.

Six Page Paper

Many compliments have been received by the publisher of the Roanoke Beacon and the Washington County News from the subscribers relative to the six page paper issued last week. The publisher appreciates these kind words of encouragement, and would like to put out a six page paper each week. However, this paper is like every other newspaper, the amount of advertising governs the number of page, that goes in any special issues.

Pick up the State papers or any publication that circulates in this section. Some times it has more pages than at other times. Always notice while reading that there are more advertisements in the paper when it is larger. This stands for reason. It costs money to get news from the county, then a fair salary is paid a man to edit and be in charge of arranging this material for publication in addition to getting news.

Then the copy must go to a linotype operator who gets a large salary for his work. Then it goes to a printer who arranges it in the forms in preparation for printing. Then it goes to the press which cost a goodly sum then it is run off in the paper and mailed to the several hundred subscribers which also costs money. So a paper must have advertising to operate.

Every additional page necessitates additional expense. Unless there are enough additional ads to pay for printing additional pages it would not be sound and wise business management to issue extra pages. However, the publisher is optimistic, and believes that the time will come when the merchants of this town will realize the value of advertising. Then the paper hopes to go to eight pages regular.

The very fact that the publisher put out a commendable paper last week should settle the fact in the mind of every person that an interesting, enlightening and fairly good paper could be published each week if the merchants cooperated with the necessary advertising. The Beacon offers good opportunities for advertisers.

So bear in mind that all of us are depending on the advertisers for the six and eight page papers.
