A Christmas Prayer

Heavenly Father, as the Christmas Day arrives, we come to thee humbled in heart and mind, praying of thy goodness to teach us to be thankful for what we have.

Man, the Most Uncertain Creature

What is wrong with the times and what is out of balance?

After hearing much grumbling and complaining about this thing and that thing being wrong and this fellow and that fellow doing wrong, we honestly believe it would only be fair and honest to look around and find the trouble and then frankly tell the truth about it.

As the day passes on and all creatures are looking for rest and refreshment, they are enabled to look upon the gold in the west with its beaming light to remind us of how good it will be to close a well-spent life amid the beauties of heaven.

God has kept His every promise. He has sent us folks to pay their debts. We find more young folks in prison today than have been there in any period in American history.

It all goes to show that man is the most uncertain being in all creation; he has the power to disobey while nothing else has. Man has the power to climb every blessing that gives us strength and beauty.

own way. We like to exchange several hours of our rest period for our own hidden pleasures and then surrender a long period of our working hours, trying to get back our wasteful hours of the night before.

Time for Real Men

What will the country do if everybody withdraws all his money from the channels of business?

There was a man once who hid his money in the earth and saved it, but the very act itself caused his destruction, because he had done himself nor anyone else any good.

There is no difference in that day and in this one. Some are trusting and carrying the load; they will come out. Some are scared and suspicious; they are withdrawing and hoarding their cash where moths, rust and robbers go.

What we need is a spirit of optimism. The same lands and property that backed our financial institutions in prosperous times is behind them today.

No act can be worse than that of burying the cash of the country, for every time a dollar is buried, business goes a little lower, unemployment figures mount, and the many now hungry and half-clad become more numerous.

No age in all of our history has given men a greater opportunity than this one has given. We have the opportunity now to be real men and work the world out of a bad condition into a better one.

Educate Rather Than Legislate

The North Carolina Anti-Saloon League is taking the advice of its critics and the liquor folks who say the proper thing to do is educate the people against liquor rather than legislate against it.

C. A. Upchurch, superintendent of the League, made 24 speeches in Bertie county recently, speaking to four thousand school children and 2,000 citizens in churches.

The value of good citizenship should be impressed upon all by both home and state and taught that no people who disobey the laws of their country are entitled to the protection of law.
