Side Quit Hurting, Got Stronger, Well; CARDUI Helped Her

Mrs. R. L. West, of Huntsville, Ala., writes: "I was weak and run-down. I had a pain in my side, and I kept losing weight. I grew nervous over my condition—this was unusual for me, for I am very cheerful when I am well and don't easily get nervous. I knew I ought to take something. My aunt told me I ought to try Cardui, which I did. I began to feel better. I kept it up until I had taken three or four bottles. My side quit hurting and I was soon feeling strong and well." Cardui is sold at drug stores here.

BRIEF HISTORY AND RECORD OF LOCAL FIREMEN

First Organized Company Was Set Up Here Shortly After World War

History of the fire departments of Plymouth extend back into the past almost indefinitely, as few of the citizens remember those organized among the members of the bucket brigades, but the present organization is interesting if studied from the point of reminiscence.

Back years ago, when a young man came here from Rocky Mount, following the World War and became a salesman for a local merchant, he brought with him a desire to organize a systematic group of fire-fighters, as this little town all through the days since the Civil War has suffered the ravages of the flames.

So, among the men of the town Tom C. Burgess spread the propaganda of the need of organized fire-fighters. He had just left Rocky Mt. three months before, where he was a member of the fire department, and seeing the need of an organization here he set about interesting the old and young men of the town in such an organization.

His efforts resulted in an organization being perfected, with T. C. Burgess as chief, L. C. Willoughby, assistant chief; Clarence Ausbon, hose captain; with about 15 charter members. Many of these men have wandered away from Plymouth or have lost interest in the organization or turned its activities over into the hands of younger men.

There are now only three charter members of the local department that enlisted under the T. C. Burgess regime, and they are Jerry Spruill, Luther W. Gurkin and Jack Willoughby, and some add that Jesse McNair was also a charter member. Some of the members have died including W. F. Ausbon, who was a charter member.

These men used the old hose reels that were usually pulled behind a car with the roadster of Jack Willoughby being used to pull it hundreds of miles over the unpaved streets to the scenes of many fires. Mr. Willoughby worked with Adolph Stubbs at a garage on the site near the Beacon office and with his roadster he was usually the first to the hose house with his car and ten firemen holding to the car drew along the hose reel.

More than 10 years ago the small truck now used but little was purchased by the town for the use of the firemen. Previous to this time the firemen had used the old town water-pumping engine that is now in the old municipal building as a curio of the fire-fighting equipment owned by the town for the use of its fighters.

Instead of a comfortable, homey building to meet in as they have now, the pioneer fire-fighters gathered for their meetings in the old building on Water Street now used by Chief of Police P. W. Brown as an office. Today the city officials and the firemen cooperate to the last letter in their efforts to protect the property, as they have almost the last word in modernized equipment.

Once a week the modern firemen meet in their comfortable building on Water Street in the municipal structure, where they have shower baths, a lavatory, a club room screened in that is comfortable the year round and a radio and card tables for amusement. And they have a good attendance every Monday night.

Some of the most important fires that have been fought are the ones which saw a negro church and four houses on fire at one time and the fire on Washington Street that damaged several houses, and the one on Water Street in which the colored movie and the bakery were badly damaged, and Bob Tarkenton was injured.

Present officers are: L. W. Gurkin, chief; J. F. Ausbon, first assistant; R. E. Tarkenton, second; J. B. McNair, hose captain; Roscoe Gaylord, assistant; Frank Spruill, secretary; Miller Warren, custodian of physical equipment; engineers: J. B. Willoughby, chief, L. D. Jones, Raymond Peal, Dick Hardison, Carlyle Doughtie, Harry Gurkin; Charlie Jackson, chief marshal, and Joe Tucker Tetterton, assistant.
