LEGAL BEER FOR STATE ON MAY 1 IS NOW ASSURED

House Approves Senate Bill Without Amendment This Week

On and after May 1, next, it will be legal to sell, buy, and drink beer in North Carolina, the 3.2 per cent beverage being made lawful by the General Assembly this week.

Representative Smith, of this county, and Senator Bailey, of this district, voted for the bill, Senator MacLean voting against it.

No machinery was set up for handling the sale of or for taxing the brew, but it is understood that a system of stamps would be advocated.

The beer bill passed the house as it came from the senate last week without amendment. The opposition, confining from the outside the facility of attempting to defeat the bill, centered their attack on an amendment to submit the question to a special election in June. The amendment was defeated, 38 to 65.

Two other amendments offered in the house were voted down overwhelmingly, and a third was withdrawn.

The most telling assault of opponents on the measure was made by Representative J. C. Martin, of Buncombe.

Mr. Martin, managing the opposition on the floor, declared that the bill carried no regulatory machinery, and that it would permit beer to be sold by anybody, anywhere, to anybody, anywhere in the state at any time.

Although proponents of the measure estimated that the beer tax will bring in annual revenue of $1,500,000 annually, and this feature was stressed in the lengthy senate debate, there was hardly an allusion to the revenue angle in the house.

Mrs. John Sawyer and little daughter, Johnnie Mae, spent last Thursday with Mrs. J. E. Askew.

MORE POULTRY IS FORECAST

Price Outlook Is Termed Satisfactory When Other Prices Are Considered

The production of poultry in North Carolina will be increased in 1933.

Roy S. Dearstyne, head of the State College Poultry Department, says he would not attempt to forecast the future, but for two years now poultrymen have received rather good prices for their products and have made some money due largely to the spread between the prices of feed and the price of poultry products.

Barring an exceedingly heavy production, which is not now apparent, the situation for this year should not change greatly from that of the past two years. This means that the outlook for poultry could be termed satisfactory. Certainly so when other crops are considered.

But, Dearstyne says also, regardless of price, more attention must be paid to the breeding and feeding of the birds if the enterprise is to be permanently successful. The individual growers have control over two important matters and they have partial control over developing specialized markets for their products.

North Carolina still needs more birds and better birds, he says. This means a higher production per bird at a lower cost. Numbers of poultrymen now depending upon outside sources for their breeding stock could do some trap-nesting and thus develop future breeding stock.

Timing the hatches so as to produce early layers and the clearing up of parasites are two other things to which attention must be given.

The dolt system of feeding is bad. Poor range conditions will not develop the pullets properly. Ample shade, feed and water containers and green feed should be provided during the hot weather usually occurring during the developing season.

Greenwich (Eng.) surgeons saved the life of Albert Taylor by removing from his stomach a watch, a chain, and a pocket knife which he had swallowed with suicidal intent.

Molasses Is Good Dairy Feed, But Care Needed

Molasses of any kind is an excellent dairy feed, but care should be exercised in the amount fed and manner of usage. The best way to feed is to dilute the molasses with one part of water to three parts of molasses and spray this mixture over the roughage. Undiluted molasses may also be poured over the grain feed, but the former method gives best results. Not more than one quart a day should be fed each animal.
