Buying a Deceived Public

Landon says that the government should tighten up the rules governing business but that it should not attempt in any way to manage business.

His words can mean but one thing. Professing to want the government to tighten down the rules governing business, he really wants that government to be chosen and dominated by the business that it is supposed to govern.

We do not want a government directed by the rich for the purpose of exploiting the poor, and everybody knows that the DuPonts, Morgans, Rockefellers and their ilk are giving great sums to the Landon campaign fund for the privilege of bossing government.

Colonel Knox Far From the Truth

There were 8,323 bank failures during Hoover's term of office—and Colonel Knox was one of his advisors. The loss to depositors under that administration was about $3,000,000,000.

Therefore, Colonel Knox did not tell the truth when he said in a recent speech that bank accounts and insurance policies are unsafe now.

Pay no attention to Knox. He is not sincere. All that he wants is to reinstate the Republicans and give us a little bit of Hoover and let the value of our property go to nothing again.

Time Now To Act

Another marketing season for peanuts in this section is near at hand, the growers passing by any and all opportunities now to make selling profitable in the future.

Over in the peanut sections of Virginia, Farm Bureau federations are already preparing appeals to the federal agricultural authorities asking that a portion of the crop be converted into oil and other measures taken, if possible, to hold up prices this fall and winter.

With some possible exceptions, farmers in this section continue to sit back and the most they do is grumble about the low price of tobacco, peanuts and cotton.

There is no doubt but what a single appeal from an organized farm body in this county and from other organized bodies in every peanut-growing county in the belt would cause officials to sit up and take notice of the claim for fair prices.

The present national administration has done much for agriculture these past two or three years, but before much more is to be had we must do something for ourselves.

And if we fail to do anything for ourselves, then don't sit back and howl when starvation prices are offered by buyers.

The Japanese Purpose

Japan apparently has done everything she possibly can to insult and abuse China. She has plundered Chinese homes, stolen their lands by force of arms, and, in fact, she has imposed on China in every way possible in order to cause trouble for the purpose of stealing a little more territory.

The Winners in Maine

Here is a partial list of contributors to the Republican campaign fund in Maine prior to the recent election:

Table listing names and amounts of contributors to the Republican campaign fund in Maine. Total amount is $50,000.

All this totals up to more than $50,000, which was put into Maine to help insure the election of Republicans. These people can well afford to put up this amount of money, because if they defeat Roosevelt, then they can make enough out of the government to get it back many times over.

In other words, they know that Landon will let them have their way about the government, and will "take care" of them.

The Republican National Committee charges President Roosevelt with great extravagance, claiming that he has increased the public debt by $12,842,000,000. At the same time they blame the President for setting up the Federal Housing Administration, the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, and many other helpful governmental agencies that have saved millions of people and their property.

It would seem that the wealthy would place the country under the old feudal system of the middle ages, vesting all rights in the power of those who have the money.

Reasons Not Good Enough

The Highway Commission was unanimous last Friday in turning down the protest of six counties against the location it had selected for its million-and-a-half dollar bridge across the Albemarle Sound. The commission had reasons sufficient unto itself to justify it in turning down the arguments of the people to be served and carrying through to completion this expensive project in the face of the opposition.

It is difficult to understand how the Highway Commission can maintain its position for building an expensive bridge at a point where the people be served declare it will be a hindrance to progress rather than a help, when a better location at less cost is favored by majorities of the counties and the people to be served in the counties of the Albemarle area.

With the majority of the people of eastern North Carolina, and the State as a whole, the reasons that are so satisfactory to the Commission will neither justify the expenditure of so great an amount of highway funds for a bridge satisfactory only to the people of Edenton and Elizabeth City, nor the location of it at a point objectionable to the majority of the counties it is supposed to serve.

Succeeds Through Efforts

What one can do when one wishes to do has been well demonstrated recently by a fast-aging old lady in this county. Instead of turning to relief agencies for aid, she earns her own, meets her obligations, and while she does not have much she finds pleasure in her honest efforts.

Possessing a small plot of land in a rural section several miles from a modern highway, this citizen has just completed the harvesting of over half hundred dollars from a grapevine of no great size. She worked hard, picking the grapes by hand that no foreign matter might find its way into the ten-cent bags she peddled up one street side and down the other day after day during these past two or three weeks.

The harvesting of the grapes and the marketing work proved to be quite a task, but she handled it manfully, and made about as much as some robust farmer made after nursing a tobacco crop from January to October.

But the amazing part of it all is the determination of the woman to go forward. Where others have given up and quit trying, this citizen tried all the harder and apparently is succeeding. Her property is not in the delinquent tax list, and no doubt few others would be facing foreclosure proceedings if they strived as hard as this woman strives; yes, even half as hard.
