Cherry Home Saved From Fire by 5-Year-Old Boy

Cherry—The home owned by Ben Adams, of Baltimore, and occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Barnes here, was saved from destruction by fire Wednesday afternoon of last week by prompt sounding of the alarm by a 5-year-old boy, Crosby Lane Spruill, son of Mrs. Dora Spruill.

Crosby was playing across the street from the Barnes' home when he saw smoke from shingles around the flue. He told a colored boy working in the yard of Mr. Barnes and with the help of neighbors, the fire was soon extinguished. Only slight damage was done to the house. It is thought that sparks from the chimney set the shingles afire.

Creswell Farmer Is Drainage Exponent

D. M. Phelps, of Creswell, a veteran of the first World War with nearly a year's overseas service, has eight daughters and no sons. He regrets, he said, having no son to join the armed forces of the United States at this time, but would not exchange any of his daughters for a son. Three of the girls are engaged in war work activities at Baltimore and five remain at home. He says that any of them can do a man's work in the field and do not hesitate to take hold when necessary; that they are capable housekeepers and all contribute to giving him a happy home.

Mr. Phelps is a farmer and says that nowhere in the country can better farm land and farming conditions be found than in Washington and adjoining counties. "But the most valuable farming land, because the most fertile is lying waste for lack of proper drainage," he said. "With suitable drainage, which could be had at moderate expense and which we were once on the verge of obtaining, many acres of new unproductive land in Washington county could be made the most productive in eastern North Carolina, and that means the most productive in this country," he declared.

"Mrs. Miniver" At Local Theatre For Run of Four Days

Has All Star Cast And Is Voted Greatest Film Drama Ever

Voted the greatest drama ever made, "Mrs. Miniver," starring Greer Garson, Walter Pidgeon and Teresa Wright, with Dame May Whitty and Reginald Owen, comes to Plymouth Theatre for a four-day run, next Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, at regular prices. It is a picture with many fascinating episodes, of unexpected angles, of intense interest and entertainment from start to finish.

Mrs. Miniver (Greer Garson), with a guilty feeling, buys a foolish hat while shopping in London. While hurrying to her home in the country, she is stopped at the railroad station by Mr. Ballard, the station master (Henry Travers), a lover of flowers who has grown a beautiful rose and named it "Mrs. Miniver." At home, Mrs. Miniver and her husband, Clem (Walter Pidgeon) who has just bought a new car, feint about before revealing their two extravagancies.

Meanwhile Ballard enters the "Mrs. Miniver" rose in the annual flower show, causing much commotion, for no one has ever won the prize for the best rose but Lady Beldon (Dame May Whitty), aristocratic ruler of the village. Carol Beldon (Teresa Wright) comes to the Miniver home to make a plea and is berated by Mrs. Miniver's son, Vin (Richard Ney). The meeting leads to a romance. Was is declared and Vin joins the R. A. F. Carol and Vin become engaged, later marry.

Lady Beldon wins the award but astonishes everyone by giving it to Ballard for the "Mrs. Miniver" rose. Mrs. Miniver and Carol are caught in an air raid alarm. Carol is wounded and dies as the villagers carry on.
