Labor stands for the conservation of the nation. It was the first to fight the subversive doctrines of the past twenty years and it has never wavered in its faith and practical adherence to the ideals of democracy.

Labor stands for the conservation of spirit. It acknowledges its allegiance to the one God and submits itself to His guidance. There is no atheism in the Labor movement.

Labor is conservative. "Live and help live" is its slogan—which, conserving, is the true conservatism.

Breaking War Rules Hertford County Herald Most of the people who violate wartime regulations do it without giving much thought to it.

When a woman buys a couple of pounds of meat at a black market it is difficult for her to believe that small purchase will seriously affect the rest of the nation.

Labor stands for the conservation of family life. It has fought for shorter hours of work that the family might have more leisure time together. It has demanded better living conditions that each generation might rise above the one before.

The Living Faith—

Two recent motion pictures, "The Moon is Down," an adaptation of John Steinbeck's book of the same name, and "At Dawn We Die," both tell the story of people who live on tenaciously and bravely under the whip of German oppression.

Now, out of Holland comes a similar story of courage and faith. It is a simple story... a Christian story.

The Nazis ordered all Jews in a Dutch town to wear yellow armbands. Next day, many Christians appeared wearing yellow bands. It was the only possible form of protest: Christians identifying themselves with the hated, and the despised, and the oppressed.

This flash of light in a dark world had far greater effect than the Dutch Christians could possibly have imagined. Yes, in Boston, a Jew, who had almost lost all faith in God and man, because of the horrors suffered by his people, grasped this story as a drowning man clutches for the life belt that is thrown him.

I did not know that there were still people like that in the world," he said. Yes, let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven.

With all our regulations, the best way to think about them, before considering a violation, is to picture what would happen if everyone broke the rules in the same way.

IN MEMORIAM In memory of Benjamin Harrison written by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Harrison and family.

Way out in a country graveyard, Where the birds have no need to fear, Lies a grave, and how we love it, For its that of our dear little boy.

Death came one year ago today And took our dear little boy away, We miss you, dear, here at home, We miss the sweet smiles of your face.

Now we are sad and lonely, We wish that you could stay, But that which God has given, He doth also take away.

You were kind to everybody, To your playmates you were ever true, Did we love him? O, so dearly, And I know he loved us, too.

In our minds we see you, Up in that heavenly home, And we know that you are sitting On the right hand of God's throne.

Days of sadness still come over us, Tears of sorrow will always flow; But sweet memories keep him near us, Yet he's with God who loved him so.

But some day we hope to join him, In that better world above, Where we can clasp our arms around him, With God in His kingdom of eternal love.

An Editorial That Should Never Have Been Written There should be no need for any writer sitting down to his typewriter and hammering out phrases telling you why you should buy War Bonds during the Third War Loan or any other drive. There should be no need for hundreds of editorials and advertisements asking you to buy your share of Bonds, to lend your share of money to insure the Victory. The men who are doing the fighting for us... the men who are dying... our own relatives and friends... they cannot understand why there should be any necessity to plead for the use of your money—money that is desperately needed to provide the weight of metal and manpower that will hasten the winning of this war. If you are already lending 10 percent of your income—whether it comes from pay check, farm, profession or business—top that 10 percent. If you aren't lending 10 percent, ask yourself why. Ask yourself if your need is greater than your country's. Figure it out yourself, and then boost your Bond buying. Labor Is Conservative By RUTH TAYLOR Labor is conservative. When I say that to groups of employers, they look at me with astonishment, to put it mildly. They are so sure that Labor is radical and its tactics revolutionary. But Labor men nod in agreement. They understand. Labor is conservative because it believes in conservation. According to the dictionary, conservation is the act of keeping or protecting from loss or injury—and conservative is tending to preserve. Labor believes in conservation. Labor stands for the conservation of health. It is for closer regulation of working conditions. It is against sweated labor and dread occupational diseases. It has led the fight against factory hazards. It has striven for better and cheaper medical attention. Labor stands for the conservation of family life. It has fought for shorter hours of work that the family might have more leisure time together. It has demanded better living conditions that each generation might rise above the one before. Labor stands for the conservation of the mind. It asks for educational
