The Right of Way By RUTH TAYLOR

The other day I stood at a busy New York street corner. Traffic was speeding by. It seemed like one of those hopeless snarls reminiscent of pre-gas rationing days. Suddenly I saw a little child at the curb-all alone. I started forward to pull him back, when the policeman saw him. He raised his hand and all traffic stopped while that little child crossed safely to his school on the other side of the street.

When a large part of their time and energy must be expended on keeping uncomfortable, irritable classes in order, the actual teaching must suffer.

If our county was the only one in he United States where the school lants are inadequate, it would be a mall matter. But we are only one mong thousands. If every person n every service organization in the Inited States would study and unlerstand the vital need of better chools and would work for and vote or them there would be less crime. less poverty, less illness and even less var in the world. Our state presilent. Mr. C. W. Phillips, says that more money is spent on crime in the United States than on all educational institutions, churches and charitable institutions combined.

I'm wondering if we, as parents, are all keeping up with educators in the broader program so many schools are working out? By reading, listening and observation. I'm wondering if we are not learning a newer conception of education. Is becoming educated simply becoming informed about some facts that are in books or is it learning to live successfully and happily with those about us? Youth must learn how to become citizens of the community, the nation and the world. Youth must learn vhat contribution each individual an make to universal peace and happiness of mankind. Educators are trained and ready to teach with this broader conception of education, but are held back by lack of understanding and lack of cooperation of the eneral public. Teachers know that success in life lepends upon one's adjustment to those about him. The word "success" covers both emotional and maerial phases of living. To be happy and-to him-successful, the child nust be liked. He must be considered one of his group. If you set our child apart by letting him think r training him to think he is better r smarter than his associates, you have raised a barrier which he will have to overcome in both the social and business world in later years. Likewise, the child who is slower than his associates is handicapped. He develops a sense of inferiority and lack of self-confidence that stays with him all his life unless he is fortunate enough to learn better later. Teachers and principals recognize these principles of character training and, by new systems of grading, by encouragement, by searching out the individual abilities of children, they are helping them develop into the good citizens we want them to be.

In an adequate educational system, every single individual should be taught how to do some useful work. Each individual, unless he be an imbecile, can learn how to do something towards his own support and to contribute something to the common good. In this way he gains self-respect and also the respect of society. He learns that society needs him and has a place for him. It becomes important to him to fill that place successfully to the best of his I don't think I'm wrong in saying that we are paying for such adequate education, whether we realize t or not. Medical care, clinics, inoculations of all kinds are provided free to the indigent, to some extent Free lunches, surplus commodities many state and federal taxes sup-Yes; we even had adult education classes under WPA. Under our system of government, people must be helped when they can't help themselves. When they can and won't they still have to be helped. Only in a ruthless brutal society can people be stamped out when they don't do their part in the world's work. All these many charities and public benefactions are paid for by men like you-business men, professional men and farmers. Why not recognize this fact? Why not put first things first? Why not put taxes to work on an adequate national education system and eliminate some of these things that arise from ignorance or lack of training in skills?

These remarks seem rambling, no doubt. The point I'm trying to make is this: The Congress of Parents and Teachers is working for better schools. Perching smoky furnaces, painting griny walls is not really our business. We and everybody else need to get a broader conception of what we can do for our children, who are the future of the world. We need to substitute some forceful voting for a lot of wishful thinking. Thank you. CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the people in and around Plymouth for the kindness they have shown us and the contributions they have made to us since the loss of our home and belongings. -Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Walker.

ENEMY STRONGER NOW THAN AT WAR'S START

MAJOR GENERAL GEORGE V. STRONG

Assistant Chief of Staff G-2, U. S. Army

The German Army has nearly three times as many combat divisions in the field today as there were when the attack on Poland began four years ago.

The number of workers employed in war industries in Nazi-dominated territories has risen from 23,000,000 at the start of the war to a present total of 35,000,000 and the weapons which they are making are, in some cases, better than any which the United Nations have. One of their new weapons, a rocket gun, weighs less than 1,800 pounds and it has a fire power equal to six heavy field howitzers, weighing nine tons apiece.

Even with the loss of Italian aid, Germany's position has been only slightly weakened. The German food ration is higher in caloric content than at the outbreak of the war, and there is nothing in the German economic picture to justify confidence in the immediate downfall of the Nazi structure.

Once the United Nations' forces have reached the lines on which the Germans are determined to stand, the days of inexpensive victories will end. Further advances will be contested yard by yard and foot by foot, and by well-trained

Japanese manpower resources in and out of Japan are very great. The morale of both the armed forces and civilian population is excellent and geographic factors give her tremendous added strength. The Solomons are only an outpost, more than 3,000 miles from the heart of the empire. We have yet to reach any main Japanese line of resistance or any point which they are apparently determined to hold

The Japanese are in a strong position today and their power in many respects is steadily increasing. The longer we leave them in virtual control of East Asia, the more difficult the eventual struggle will be.

The main advantage we have is our ability to produce the weapons of war. If, through our unwillingness to face the facts, we give up this advantage, we may find our opportunity for victory has escaped us permanently. To insure the accomplishment of our war mission-the defeat of Germany and Japan-demands the whole-hearted singleminded effort not only of every man, woman and child in the country, but also every bit of productive power, inventive genius and executive ability we possess,

Plymouth Girls Get First Win of Season In Game Tuesday

Defeat Farm Life Team, 12 To 6; Boys Lose by 26-9 Margin

The Farm Life and Plymouth High schol teams halved a double bill on Tuesday night of this week in the local gymnasium. The local girls registered their first win of the season, by coming out on the long end of a 12-6 count, while the local boys' team was defeated by the score of Tice was high scorer for the Farm Life boys, with 9 points, while R. Basnight, with 6, led the Panthers. For the Plymouth girls, Jackson scored 8 points, three field goals and a couple of free shots; while Roberson and Lilley, with a field goal apiece, were best for Farm Life.

There was a large crowd on hand for the games, and organized cheering by adherents of both schools.

In the boys' game, Plymouth got off to a short-lived lead when Ayers looped in a field goal shortly after the whistle. Farm Life came back quickly with a counter offensive that skyrocketed the score to 18-2 at the end of the half. In the last period three field goals were made by Basnight and a foul shot by Winesett for the local, but they were unable to keep up with the visitors, who rung up 8 more points in the period. In the first half of the girls' game. Jackson and Brown made a field goal apiece for the Plymouth team, and the local led 4 to 1 at the intermission. Jackson rung up 6 points in ning with one goal from the field and

Gurganus with a free shot.

Are you, Mr. Representative going to sit up there and let upwards to 5.000 strikes occur in 1944, as it did in-1943, as the loss of time means the loss of lives of our boys on the battle front? Are you, Mr. Representative, going to take the advice of our president and put a curb on strikes and cut down the big profits of capital?

The service men's vote helped put you in office. Give them their vote. W. A. DAVIDSON. Plymouth, N. C., January 17, 1944.
