CHAMBER MEETING

There will be a regular meeting of the Jacksonville Chamber of Commerce at the Federal Building USO on Thursday evening, March 1, beginning at 8:30 p.m. All members are urged to be present.

Onslow Guards Chapter Holds Regular Meeting

The Onslow Guards Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy met with Mrs. L. R. Turner, with Mrs. Gordon Mattox as joint hostess, Monday afternoon at three o'clock.

The meeting was opened with the ritual and salute to the flag, led by Mrs. Annie Price, in the absence of the president, Mrs. J. J. Cole.

The roll was called and the minutes were read by Mrs. Price and a letter read from the North Carolina division president, Mrs. Paul Borden, of Goldsboro, urging support for the name of Sidney Lanier in the "Hall of Fame" this year and for the continued and increased pensions for Confederate veterans and widows.

An impressive and instructive program followed the business session.

Mrs. Mary Bender read the poems, "The Marches of Glen" and "Sunrise."

Mrs. Price read a letter Lanier wrote to his wife just before he died. In it he said "Let my name perish. The poetry is good poetry, the music is good music, beauty does not die and the heart that meets it will find it." A book of Lanier's poems will be donated to the school library this month by the Daughters.

During the social hour, the assistesses served delicious lemon pie and hot coffee.

Spring Fashion Show Held at Lejeune

Springtime entered feminine hearts at Camp Lejeune last Wednesday when Mrs. J. J. Cole, steward of the Officers' Club at Paradise Point.

The affair, following the usual Wednesday luncheon for Officers' wives, was inspired and executed by Mrs. W. N. New, hostess clairman for the day, Assisting Mrs. New were Mrs. J. J. Curry and Mrs. A. S. Ingelhart.

Sara Senz, buyer and professional model for Weir's, supervised the show and Kay Rodney, steward of Weir's, acted as announcer, accompanying each presentation with descriptive chatter as befitting to feminine ears as the song of the first robin. Members of the Camp Lejeune orchestra furnished music for the occasion.

The lovely and graceful models were Ethel Skinner, Joy Janney, Jurell Miller, Elise Mitchell, Althea Anderson, Rosemary Jam, Mieke Adams and Ross Feilderley, all of Camp Lejeune.

Betsy Taylor, representing Camp Lejeune, carried out the Valentine motif of the day in the opening number. She wore a white and silver ensemble, and bearing a bow-and-arrow in one hand and a bright nosegay in the other, she stepped out of the pink-beribboned style booth right into the hearts of her audience. The nosegay she presented to Mrs. John Marston, wife of the Commanding Officer of Camp Lejeune. Betsy is the three-year-old daughter of Lieut. Colonel and Mrs. W. C. Taylor.

Following Betsy were dozens of numbers in waltz-time succession, numbers ranging from day-time to date-time, from bath suits to formal.

Highlights among the numbers shown were feather and flower prints, rayons and tulle, chiffons and woolsens, with the influence of inspiration ranging from Scotch to Chinese. Each seemed designed to give mid-lady that silhouette of simplicity and fluidity, keynotes of the coming season. Accent was strong on peplums, boleros, slit pockets and revers.

Hats exhibited were not hats at all but dreams a-resting on the forefronts of lovely up-swept hair-do's.

All in all, it was better than a day at the races. There's nothing that so challenges a woman's imagination as the sight of another beautiful woman. Mrs. New did the trick with her very fashionable style show.

FACTS ABOUT COAL

It's scarce, due to: shortage of labor in the mines and locally; restrictions on coal distribution, gas, and trucking; and the manifold needs of war and war plants. With utmost care and conservation by all of us, there'll be enough.
