

SOCIETY

THEY TELL US

Mrs. Leon Fleishman and daughters, Jean and Mickey, of Fayetteville visited Mr. and Mrs. Sam Sackhoff this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Trachtenberg and family returned during the week end after having spent the summer at Carolina Beach.

Mrs. George Buchanan and Mrs. A. G. Walton, Jr. were visitors in Raleigh Tuesday.

Misses Eva and Sallie Simpson are spending this week in Boone.

Dr. A. M. Fountain of Raleigh was here this week visiting his father, Nick Fountain of Richlands who underwent an operation Sunday night at the Onslow County hospital.

Steve Stefanou, Jr. will leave next week to enter the University of North Carolina.

Mrs. Ibez K. English and Mrs. B. N. White of Pensacola, Fla., are visiting MGSgt. and Mrs. E. T. English.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Shugart and family have moved back home from their cottage at Swansboro, where they spent the summer.

Gene Koonce, a student at the University of North Carolina summer school, is spending the week end at home with his mother, Mrs. T. B. Koonce. He will return Monday for the fall semester.

Raymond Hartsfield made a business trip to Richmond Monday.

Valentine McCabe is attending a USO training course in Williamsburg, Virginia.

Mrs. Georgia Tolson of Aulander is visiting her daughter, Mrs. John D. Warlick.

Sgt. and Mrs. Stone Burnette of New Bern are visiting Mrs. Burnette's mother, Mrs. Lollie Henderson.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Henderson and daughter, Mary Lynn, of Wake Forest, are visiting Mr. Henderson's parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Henderson.

F. W. Frischkorn of Altoona, Pa., has returned after a visit with Dr. and Mrs. G. E. Gurganus.

Capt. and Mrs. John V. Huff of Quantico, Va. are spending the week with Mrs. Huff's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. I. Farnell. Mrs. Huff will stay here for indefinite period while Capt. Huff will report for new assignment at Pearl Harbor.

Rep. E. T. Tonnisson of Mecklenburg County was a visitor in Jacksonville yesterday.

Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Henderson attended the funeral of T. W. McCree, Sr., at Charlotte this week. Mrs. Henderson and Mrs. McCree are sisters.

Nearly all the gold produced in the United States comes from five western states—Arizona, California, Colorado, Nevada and South Dakota.

Mr. and Mrs. White, Miss Riggs Honored

An event of more than passing interest occurred Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the USO club in Swansboro when the Seaside Chapter, Order of Eastern Stars, gave a delicious seafood dinner honoring three members, Mr. and Mrs. S. P. White and Miss Henrietta Riggs, who are leaving to make their homes elsewhere in the state.

Mr. and Mrs. White will go to Tarboro where Mr. White will again enter the teaching profession as principal of the school.

The Whites have lived in Swansboro for the past six years. Mr. White first came as principal of the Swansboro school, but for the past year he has been director of the local USO club.

Miss Riggs will go to Duke University where she will become office manager and secretary of the North Carolina Conference Board of Christian Education.

Places were set for about fifty members and guests. In the center of the tables were arranged bowls of lovely fall flowers, and the club dining room was lighted with shaded lamps which gave a charming effect.

Following the invocation by Rev. Charles Mercer, a song "The More We Get Together" was sung by the group.

Mrs. Lillian R. Ray, Worthy Matron, welcomed and introduced the guests who had been invited to join the Eastern Star members in honoring these friends, John Meadows, Master Mason of Seaside Lodge, told of the pleasant associations which they had enjoyed with Mr. White and of their regrets that he and family were leaving the community.

W. E. Baggis, who is commander of the American Legion, also expressed regrets that these friends were leaving but wished them continued success and happiness in their new work.

C. E. Weeks, president of the newly organized Kiwanis club, spoke briefly saying that the Kiwanis club was an organization banded together for efficient service and not for personal gain. The local club will live just as long as the members live the aims and aspirations of the organization.

Weeks thanked White for his help in forming this new club. In behalf of the chapter Mrs. Ray presented a lovely gift to Mrs. White as she thanked her for serving efficiently as associate matron, with a perfect attendance since the chapter was organized.

Miss Margaret Ennett presented Miss Riggs' gift, wishing in behalf of the chapter, success and happiness in the important work which she has been called to do.

Rev. Mercer presented Mr. White's gift as he thanked him for the help and inspiration he and family had been in all civic and religious activities while living in Swansboro. At the conclusion of an inspirational response from Mr. White, "God Bless America" was sung and their closing with "Bless Be The Fire".

The hospitality committee com-

Circle To Sponsor Christmas Boxes

Circle Number One of the Woman's Society of Christian Service held its monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Leon Gray Monday afternoon.

Mrs. C. E. Warren led the devotional and conducted the study, "The Words of His Grace."

At a short business session with Mrs. O. L. Russ acting as chairman, it was decided that the circle would sponsor a number of overseas Christmas boxes.

Members attending the meeting were Mrs. John Warlick, Mrs. Holmes Bush, Mrs. Russell Brendle, Mrs. W. Y. Richardson, Mrs. F. W. Marine, Mrs. S. S. Ambrose, Mrs. W. T. Turlington, Mrs. George H. Bender, Mrs. Alfred Taylor, Mrs. C. E. Warn, Mrs. G. G. Carmichael, Mrs. Ramon Aske, Mrs. I. W. Starling, Mrs. O. L. Russ, Mrs. Jack Burcham and Mrs. E. L. Cox.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. T. Turlington, Sept. 24.

Mrs. J. W. Burton Is Hostess To Circle

The meeting of Circle No. 2 of the Woman's Society of Christian Service was held at the home of Mrs. J. W. Burton Monday afternoon.

In the absence of the chairman, Mrs. J. P. Henderson, Mrs. W. L. Ketchum presided. Mrs. Dave Sabiston gave the devotional and Mrs. J. C. Petteway led the study course, "The Word of His Grace."

Those attending were Mrs. Aaron Farnell, Mrs. Daisy Bell Henderson, Mrs. J. C. Petteway, Mrs. Dave Sabiston, Mrs. W. L. Ketchum and Rev. Leon Gray.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Dave Sabiston, the date to be announced later.

Home Demonstration Club Meetings Set

The schedule of Home Demonstration club meetings next week follows:

Tuesday: Hubert, with Mrs. Wallace Morton as hostess.

Wednesday: Haws Run Club, with Miss Thelma Shepard as hostess.

Thursday: Meadow View Home, with Mrs. M. S. Barbour as hostess.

Friday: Mrs. Fred Pitman, Mrs. Pearl Ennett, Mrs. Mary Belle Fournier and Mrs. Elizabeth Venters made the arrangements for the supper. They were assisted by Miss Mamie Pinar, assistant director of the Swansboro USO Club.

HOLLYWOOD News and Views of Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood — (AP) — Burgess Meredith is a very restless man. Or so he says.

This fact was brought out when I asked him about the report that the life of Ernie Pyle would be filmed.

"If it is done, I don't particularly care about playing Ernie again," said Meredith, who portrayed the late war correspondent in "Story of G. I. Joe."

"Why not?" I asked.

"Because I'm too restless," he declared. "I can't see myself being tied down to a series."

"Does your service in the Army have anything to do with your restlessness?" I inquired.

"No, I was even more restless before the Army," he replied, exploding my theory.

What would Meredith like to do about his restless feeling?

"I want to travel," he said. "I want to get out and see the world. There are going to be exciting times in the future and I want to be in the thick of them."

At present, the actor is appearing in "Diary of a Chambermaid," which he is producing with Benedict Bogaus. But much of his dreaming time is occupied with a scheme to make movies abroad.

"I'd like to be in Europe when so many exciting things are happening," he remarked. "I've been doing some investigating about making a picture in France, or maybe in Palestine. It's not as fantastic as it seems."

He said that with the perfection of the 16 mm. camera, pictures could be made anywhere.

"Why couldn't you make your own picture on the Persian Gulf, for example?" he proposed. "The actors would love the travel. All you would need is a crew of about five men to shoot the picture. It seems to me that a picture like that, if professionally done, could compete with any of the Hollywood productions."

He described an orientation film he made in the Army.

"It was called 'Welcome to Britain,' and it was shown to nearly every soldier who landed in the British Isles. To make it, we just got a camera and started out. We took scenes in the pubs and in the country and wherever it struck our fancy. But because it was done by experienced men it was a very interesting and professional picture.

It seems to me that the pictures that have been made by the Army and the Navy present a challenge to Hollywood. The movie makers have been saying that documentaries are not as salable as the so-called entertainment films. But what could be more exciting than "The Fighting Lady" or "San Pietro." That's the real McCoy. If we could combine that realism with an entertaining story, we would have something."

"No, I was even more restless before the Army," he replied, exploding my theory.

What would Meredith like to do about his restless feeling?

"I want to travel," he said. "I want to get out and see the world. There are going to be exciting times in the future and I want to be in the thick of them."

At present, the actor is appearing in "Diary of a Chambermaid," which he is producing with Benedict Bogaus. But much of his dreaming time is occupied with a scheme to make movies abroad.

"I'd like to be in Europe when so many exciting things are happening," he remarked. "I've been doing some investigating about making a picture in France, or maybe in Palestine. It's not as fantastic as it seems."

He said that with the perfection of the 16 mm. camera, pictures could be made anywhere.

"Why couldn't you make your own picture on the Persian Gulf, for example?" he proposed. "The actors would love the travel. All you would need is a crew of about five men to shoot the picture. It seems to me that a picture like that, if professionally done, could compete with any of the Hollywood productions."

He described an orientation film he made in the Army.

"It was called 'Welcome to Britain,' and it was shown to nearly every soldier who landed in the British Isles. To make it, we just got a camera and started out. We took scenes in the pubs and in the country and wherever it struck our fancy. But because it was done by experienced men it was a very interesting and professional picture.

It seems to me that the pictures that have been made by the Army and the Navy present a challenge to Hollywood. The movie makers have been saying that documentaries are not as salable as the so-called entertainment films. But what could be more exciting than "The Fighting Lady" or "San Pietro." That's the real McCoy. If we could combine that realism with an entertaining story, we would have something."

"No, I was even more restless before the Army," he replied, exploding my theory.

What would Meredith like to do about his restless feeling?

"I want to travel," he said. "I want to get out and see the world. There are going to be exciting times in the future and I want to be in the thick of them."

At present, the actor is appearing in "Diary of a Chambermaid," which he is producing with Benedict Bogaus. But much of his dreaming time is occupied with a scheme to make movies abroad.

"I'd like to be in Europe when so many exciting things are happening," he remarked. "I've been doing some investigating about making a picture in France, or maybe in Palestine. It's not as fantastic as it seems."

He said that with the perfection of the 16 mm. camera, pictures could be made anywhere.

"Why couldn't you make your own picture on the Persian Gulf, for example?" he proposed. "The actors would love the travel. All you would need is a crew of about five men to shoot the picture. It seems to me that a picture like that, if professionally done, could compete with any of the Hollywood productions."

He described an orientation film he made in the Army.

"It was called 'Welcome to Britain,' and it was shown to nearly every soldier who landed in the British Isles. To make it, we just got a camera and started out. We took scenes in the pubs and in the

WOULD YOU ADD TO THE HAPPY DAY?

Advertisement for 'The Flower Shop' featuring 'Say it with Flowers' and listing Mrs. Mabel A. Nauff Prop. with phone number 278 and address in Jacksonville, NC.

Advertisement for Dr. E. F. Menius, Optometrist, listing services and address in New Bern, N. C.

Advertisement for Dr. Mike J. Palmer, Optometrist, listing services like eye exams and glasses fitting, and location 'Next to Bus Terminal'.

Advertisement for Births, listing several names and dates of birth, including Miss Ruth Shepard and Miss Teeny Sabiston.

Large advertisement for Fleishman's clothing store, announcing the fall parade and listing various clothing items and prices.

Advertisement for WJNC radio station, featuring a man holding a sign that says 'WJNC WILL PAY $25 For A SLOGAN!' and promoting a slogan contest.

Advertisement for 'Your Club Roanoke Island', a supper club offering excellent food, dining room open from 5 to 12 P.M., and music and dancing.