

Pale Faced Women Take Phosphates to Make Rosy Cheeks and Beautiful Forms.
Men need Phosphates to Make Strong, Healthy, Vigorous Bodies.

Athletes increase their strength, energy and endurance 200% or more by simply taking a few weeks treatment of Argo-Phosphate.

Atlanta, Ga. Dr. F. A. Jacobson says that Phosphates are just as essential to any man or woman who tires easily, is nervous, or irritable, worn out, or looks haggard and pale to make a strong, robust, vigorous healthy body, as they are to cotton to make it grow. The lack of Phosphate is the cause of all emaciated conditions and the administration of 5 grain Argo Phosphate tablets, will increase the strength and endurance of weak, nervous, care worn men and women 300 per cent in two or three weeks time in many instances, and their continued use will build up the whole nervous system, and give new life, vim, vigor and vitality to the whole body. I always prescribe Argo-Phosphate to patients who are pale and colorless, and it is surprising to see how quickly a few weeks treatment will transform a pale face to a rosy cheeked beauty. There can be no rosy cheeked, healthy, beautiful women, without their system is sufficiently supplied with Phosphates. In recent interviews with physicians on the grave and serious consequences of a deficiency of Phosphates in the blood of American men and women, I have strongly emphasized the fact that doctors should prescribe more phosphates in the form of Argo-Phosphate for weak, worn out, haggard-looking men and women. When the skin is pale, and flesh flabby, it is a sign of anemia. When the phosphates go from the blood, the pink cheeks go too. The muscles lack tone. They become nervous, irritable, despondent, melancholy, the brain lags and the memory fails. Therefore if you wish to preserve your youthful vim, vigor and vitality to a ripe old age, you must supply the deficiency of Phosphates lacking in your food by using Argo-Phosphate, the form of Phosphates most easily assimilated.

NOTICE: Argo-Phosphate which is recommended and prescribed by physicians in all chronic cases is not a secret or patent medicine, but one that is sold and recommended by well known druggists everywhere, and physicians are easily subscribing the constituents contained in it. Being entirely unlike many other Phosphates, it is easily assimilated and will be found effective in the treatment of indigestion and stomach troubles, as well as for care worn, nervous conditions. The manufacturers of Argo-Phosphate will forfeit to any charitable institution $200.00 if they cannot treat any man or woman under 65 who lacks Phosphates, and increase their strength and endurance from 100 per cent to 300 per cent or more in one month's time, if they are free from organic trouble. It is dispensed by all reliable druggists.

If your druggist will not supply you, send $1.00 to the Argo Laboratories, 10 Forsyth st., Atlanta, Ga., and they will send you two weeks treatment by return mail.—Adv.

V.

In the year 1838, while Hodge Rabun was representing Buncombe county in the state senate, and Montreville Patton and Philip Beaman were in the lower house they were prevailed upon to take a part of the county of Buncombe and Henderson county. The act establishing the new county did not locate the county seat, but referred the matter to a committee composed of Col. John Clayton, Col. J. W. Kilian and Hugh Johnstone. After careful consideration this committee recommended a site near the present town of Horse Shoe, just across the river from the station and proceeded to lay out a town there.

A site where the present town of Hendersonville now stands had been tendered the committee by Judge Mitchell King, and when this site was turned down the judge proceeded to head a faction in securing an injunction against the committee. The Horse Shoe site received the endorsement of all the people living in what is now Transylvania county, while the King site was endorsed by all the other sections of the new county. The agitation that ensued resulted in a new political alignment, and from then on there were two parties known as the "Road Party," those favoring the site on the Greenville road where Hendersonville now stands, and the "River Party," composed of those favoring the Horse Shoe site on the French Broad river.

After the service of the injunction against the committee restraining them from proceeding further at the river site, the situation soon became so acute that the legislature took the matter out of the hands of the committee and ordered an election on the matter. The campaign waged by the advocates of the two sites was doubtless the most strenuous ever witnessed in the State. Every voter in the new county was appealed to by leaders of the two parties.

When the votes were counted it was found that the "Road Party" had won by a narrow margin, but at a fearful cost. For the next twenty-five years the bad feeling engendered in the matter was fanned to a flame in every succeeding election, and every issue to come up in those years was a trial of strength between the road and river men. The river party, soon after their defeat in locating the county seat of Henderson county, began agitating a new county for the upper French Broad section, and each succeeding legislature was bombarded with petitions and besieged by committees asking this action.

After almost a quarter of a century of strife the road party, which had always had the advantage of a majority of the votes in the county, finally surrendered in 1860, and allowed the matter of a new county to become a campaign issue in that year and "River" men were placed on both tickets for the legislature. R. F. Atkins, a resident of the upper French Broad valley, was opposed by Joseph P. Jordan, a Hendersonville lawyer. Jordan was elected, and he it was that passed the act creating Transylvania county, and to him is due the credit of giving it one of the most beautiful names of any of the counties in the state.

While it is not known just what suggested this name to the representative, it is quite probable that he adopted it from the "State of Transylvania, which was organized by Daniel Boone and Judge Richard Henderson in the present state of Kentucky in 1775. The word is Latin, and means "across the forest."

Joseph P. Jordan, who thus figures so largely in the county's history, was born on a farm near the present town of Blantyre. He was a graduate of Wake Forest college, and prior to 1860 practiced law in Blantyre and a fearless leader. After his work in the legislature was finished early in 1861, he immediately came back to Hendersonville, where he organized a company of volunteers for the Confederate army, and on October 5, 1861, he was commissioned as captain of this company, which was mustered into the Confederate service as Co. G, 35th North Carolina regiment. Early in the following year Captain Jordan's health was undermined by exposure in the army, and he was carried away from the battle of Newberne on a stretcher just a short time before that town was surrendered to the Yankees on March 14, 1862. He never regained his health but died on April 23, 1862. He was about 40 years old at the time of his death, and was never married.

Should Transylvania ever wish to honor any of her departed sons by the erection of a monument, surely the first should be raised to perpetuate the memory of Joseph P. Jordan, the fearless patriot who removed the cause of so much ill feeling in the valley of the French Broad, and then laid down his life for the Confederacy.

The act establishing Transylvania county was ratified on February 15, 1861. In a supplemental act, passed at the same session, it was provided that the county was not to have a representative in the legislature until a future legislature shall otherwise provide and direct, the county in the meantime to be represented by representatives from Henderson and Jackson counties, just as if a new county had not been created. The first senator to represent Transylvania was M. Patton, and the first representative was M. N. Patton, who were members of the session of 1861, three years after the county was organized.

ANGELERS ENJOYING THE GOVERNMENT'S PRIVILEGES

Brevard is coming to be known as the "Doorway to the Pisgah National Forest" on account of the many sportsmen who are passing through town on their way to the streams of the government's park in quest of minnow and speckled trout. Tuesday of last week was the opening day of the fishing season.

The government regulations require fishing with unbleached fly hook, returning to the water with the least possible injury speckled trout under six and rainbow under eight inches. No night fishing is allowed and not more than four days in the season to one fisherman, with a maximum catch of fifteen trout for one day.

TEA DRINK OURS

TEA is a most healthful drink—if made of good tea. The Japanese and Chinese are the greatest tea drinkers in the world. But did you know that they are less afflicted with "nerves" than any other people? It's so. Drink tea yourself. Give it to the children. But be sure you get good tea. Come in here, buy ours and be safe.
