Armenia's Cry For Help

From the far away land of Armenia To America the "Land of the Free", There comes to each one this message; A message to you and to me. 'Tis the heart-rending cry of the helpless, The moan of the starving to death. "Oh hasten with help, noble brother, If you would sustain our last breath".

"Our men have been foully butchered And we are driven from home. Now, wandering o'er Syrian deserts Many long weary miles we have come. There is no one left to defend us From the desert tribes of wild men; No Food, no Clothing, no Money To take us back home again."

"So won't you send of your bounty To save us poor Christians from death? This is the cry we are sending Perhaps with our very last breath. As you sit in your homes of plenty Enjoying your three meals a-day O give to the hands that are empty, And God will reward you each day."

The Trained Watch Eye

Sees many good watches that are allowed to go without cleaning and oiling until the oil is entirely dried up and the pivots are cut and rusted in such a manner that it costs twice as much to put the watch in order as it would if taken in time. If your watch has stopped once, it will again—and when you don't want it stopped. Now is the time to bring it in. The best of work and reasonable prices.
