

REMINISCENCES

I am in receipt of a letter suggesting an article on women of the early days. I thank the writer for the thought for they are worthy.

The women of those days were females. They dressed according to the season—good clothes in the winter which protected the neck and chest and skirts to the shoe top. There were no catarrh troubles in those early days. The shoes were mad and worn for comfort and health, hence no corns. Women knitted their own hose; wool for winter and cotton or flax for summer. Girls were taught to knit their own foot wear. They called them stockings. You could not see the full length of their stockings as they walked.

In those days women wore bonnets and veils and you scarcely ever saw a freckled woman in those days. Girls were taught to spin, weave, cut and sew, wash, iron, scrub the floor and sweep the yard, in fact they were taught all the arts of housekeeping and home making. They married for love, and worked for riches and no divorces in those days; no poodle dog where a baby ought to be.

The women of those days were as pure as the riven snow, beautiful as the rose of Sharon, the queen of the home and the ideal of her husband. She rode a side saddle and did not want to vote. Even today, be sure young lady that the girl who knows how to keep house will not be long without a house to keep. Men everywhere are on the lookout for you.

"A beautiful face, a graceful figure, a fine disposition constitutes a remarkable combination in women.

What is more, it is as rare as it is remarkable."

In six states today, women are eligible to sit on juries. What does that amount to; they have always been eligible to sit on their husbands any time they had a mind to.

BREVARD INSTITUTE NOTES

Misses Callahan and Poindexter have returned from their summer outing at various points of interest.

Miss Alma Trowbridge returned Tuesday from Chicago and Dubuque.

A few of the summer students are still at B. I., but the majority of them have left to visit other resorts in the mountains.

Miss Ethel Leatherwood, formerly of B. I., now household economics demonstrator in Halifax County, N. C., is spending her vacation at Virginia beach.

Miss Myrtle Baber leaves this week for her vacation which she will spend with friends and relatives in North and South Carolina.

Several B. I. boys who have been in Oklahoma working in the wheat field, are expected home this week.

MISS CARSON ENTERTAINS

Miss Frances Carson entertained on Wednesday afternoon with two tables of bridge in honor of Miss Eugenia Brunot of Pittsburg, Pa. Those playing were Misses Eliza Wallis, Seplima Holmes, Margaret Blythe, Eugenia Brunot, Margaret Hill and Mrs. G. C. Kilpatrick.
