

SUNSET VALLEY

The very name is suggestive of green trees, glowing skies and blue, blue hills!

One afternoon in late September we took the trail to Sunset Valley—along a road of clay, so red it seemed to have a reflected glow, which was no doubt caused by the ardent kisses of old Sol., who is at his best in the mountains. We passed a few mountain cabins, with their over-flowing inmates and bright hued flowers. Next appeared a quaint old farmhouse with a view calculated to broaden the narrow soul, on every side.

After some miles of road, lined with tall sentinels of graceful queen of the meadow, golden rod and deep purple iron weed, we came around a sharp curve and the old mill came into view. The old mill, there gray in the distance, with its great wooden wheel, so suggestive of latent power! A few yards further and our ears caught the tinkling of running water, one of nature's offerings to man—and surely no sweeter sound can come to human ears! Just before we reached the mill, we stopped to examine the great hand-bellows and forge, relics of primitive days—bringing up pictures of the times when man indeed earned his bread by the sweat of his brow. We walked on for a distance, ascending a hill, at the top of which we turned and beheld "Sunset Valley" in all its glow, a green knob in the foreground, with cattle grazing peacefully, the old mill in all its picturesque beauty, and beyond, and always beyond the dim, mysterious hills, rising higher and ever higher, until they seemed to touch the sky.

The streams go safely flowing down to Sunset Valley! Nothing earthly seems to frown in Sunset Valley. The winds are cool and soft and sweet in Sunset Valley; The wild flowers gather at your feet in Sunset Valley. The old world seems so far away in Sunset Valley; Oh! I could worship every day in Sunset Valley.

MUSCLES TIED IN A KNOT HE SAYS

That Is The Way J. F. Holley Says His Rheumatism Acted—Is A Well Man Since Taking Tanlac He Says.

"This Tanlac is the first medicine I have ever taken that did what people said it would do," said J. F. Holley, residing at 427 Breckenridge street, Lexington, Ky.

"I was in an awful fix for over two months," he continued, "and my whole system seemed to be rundown and worn out. Rheumatism was my worst trouble, my muscles seemed to feel as tired in the morning as when I lay down at night. My digestion was affected, I had no appetite, my nervous system was disordered, and I suffered with awful headaches. The rheumatism would draw me up so I couldn't use my right arm at all.

"One day a friend of mine told me about Tanlac and I got a bottle and started taking it. It has certainly made a new man of me. I can eat anything I want, and this is something I haven't been able to do for years, and I sleep like a log at night. That awful rheumatism is all gone and my strength has been restored and built up in every way. I am sure glad to tell others what Tanlac has done for me."

All druggists sell Tanlac.
