RAILWAY FACILITIES NECESSARY

The growth of Brevard during the past six months has been phenomenal and those conversant with conditions in the town and county unhesitatingly express the opinion that Brevard and Transylvania are now at the beginning of a period of constructive development which can be made to surpass all past records if the people of Transylvania will give concerted support to the promotion of all measures tending toward the enlargement of facilities for exploiting natural resources of this section.

At present it is unanimously conceded that one of the greatest handicaps to the progress of this county is its inaccessibility to adjacent trade centers and cities. This drawback closes the two most feasible avenues of progress for Transylvania. This county has the natural resources required to make a summer resort or a manufacturing center and the first requisite for reaching either goal is adequate facilities for travel and for shipping between Brevard and the headquarters of the south's commerce and population. Indeed it is not too much to say that without some such connection with the outside world there is little hope that the town can ever reach any considerable distance along the road of improvement which now seems open to it.

During the tourist season which is just closing hundreds of visitors come here and this number could easily be increased to thousands if Brevard had direct railway communication with the section of the south from which tourists come. Most people in planning a vacation, unless they have some personal knowledge of Brevard's superiority to other resort towns near the Blue Ridge will go elsewhere because it takes practically eighteen hours longer to reach Brevard from all southern points than it does to reach any other of the sixty-four resort communities on the Asheville Plateau. If Brevard had a direct railway line to Greenville, S. C. hundreds of people would come to Brevard who never thought of the trip before, and four weeks of summer in Brevard invariably means a return for the visitor who has the average sense of appreciation for the beauties of nature and the generosity of a hospitable people. If the tourists ever really get started this way the matter of hotels and boarding-houses will adjust itself. And manufacturing enterprises will be the logical sequence to adequate railway connections. Let's all pull together for the electric line to Greenville.

LABOR AND COLLECTIVE BARGAINING

The National Industrial Conference meeting in Washington last week at the call of President Wilson, struck a snag when it reached the discussion of the resolution offered by the labor group recognizing the right of collective bargaining. The resolution set forth that wage-earners should be privileged to negotiate with employers through "representatives of their own choosing" and was approved by all the public and labor delegates in the committee from which it came and was opposed by the representatives of capital.

Proponents of the resolution "defied employers with the challenge that they could not deny nor interfere with 'the right of bargaining through chosen representatives'" which has been acknowledged by such governmental agencies as the War Labor Board and the Railroad Administration, and accepted generally in Great Britain, Germany and other countries. This condition was occurred in by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and other employers of the nation's greatest industrial organizations. But the cap-atlist group decline to be convinced by reason, logic or expediency, and insisted that labor should have no voice in the discipline of any industrial institution.

As we understand the proposition labor is not concerned in collective bargaining simply to get higher wages but in order that it may prevent the foremen from autocratically determining the conditions under which labor shall work. For every grievance that labor has in the shop he asks not that the foreman be removed, but that the foreman shall answer before a committee in which the workman has an equal voice with the employer himself. Labor wants no outsiders, no disinterested representatives of the public to interfere. It wants an equal voice, in the settlement of misunderstandings, in which the committee of the workmen shall have equal power with the representatives of the employer. Labor does not, as we believe, propose to take away from the foremen the power of discipline, but what it conceives to be his power of autocratic, unreasonable discipline.

It is perfectly plain that labor is not going to be content with an autocratic system of employment. The workman differs from the capitalist in that he gives up his liberty for a certain number of hours each day. He does not turn over his dollars. He turns over his body and his will to the command of the foreman and the superintendent. He is not concerned merely in the amount of wages he may get. He may get very high wages, but it should be borne in mind that he is getting those wages in exchange for his liberty. Capitalism has grown up not only on security, but on liberty. Labor has not experienced that liberty which capitalism has enjoyed. It has worked toward a common end, and that common end has been set for it by the commands of the foreman, superintendants and general managers, appointed by the employers.

We can easily recognize the two great essentials—credit and discipline—of the capitalistic system. We might as well recognize, at the same time, that capital has generally neglected to furnish to labor that same security upon which its own life depends. The workman of the nineteenth century has not had that security of his job which the capitalist has had in his investment. In order to maintain discipline he has too often been thrown about like machinery or like commodities, without caring for his future, without caring for his security. Capitalism must have discipline, but must it have it at the expense of the security of labor? Let the conscience of the honest capitalist answer.

The right must finally prevail.

YOUR HEALTH

Itch and other insects—One of our county teachers very properly and very promptly called my attention to an outbreak of itch occurring in a school. I have also been consulted as to the presence of lice on the heads of some scholars in another school. These things ought not to be seen in this 20th Century of ours, either condition is so objectionable and so easy to be controlled by proper treatment and cleanliness of the person, the body, clothing, the bedding and the premises. When we consider that cleanliness is the keystone of physical health and well-being everything that promotes it should be faithfully carried out. Itch can be controlled by proper remedies faithfully used for a short time and the thorough boiling of body and bed clothes for a half hour in a chloride of lime solution, the hair with soap and rubbing oil of sasafra on the scalp or by the washing of the head and hair and after drying rubbing thoroly with oil of sasafra. I would say there is no need to quarantine against either affliction but pupils attending schools must be clean for many reasons. The school should be and must be a community center of welfare and demonstration of good morals and customs.

Very sincerely,
 W. J. WALLIS.

WOULDN'T TAKE A FORTUNE FOR IT

All Her Friends Come To See What Tanlac Did For Mrs. Lynch.

"I wouldn't take a fortune for the good Tanlac has done me," said Mrs. A. F. Lynch, of 164 Central St. Galesburg, Ill., recently.

"I suffered from stomach trouble for about five years," she continued, "and hadn't been able to eat a regular meal for several years and during this time I suffered awfully with cramps, dizzy spells and terrible throbbing headaches. I was often troubled with gas on my stomach that bloated me up so I could hardly breathe. I also suffered with my kidneys and was so constipated that my condition alarmed me at times, for I just didn't seem to be able to get any relief from this trouble. I was never free from a dull, aching pain across the small of my back and got so weak and rundown that I was laid up for as much as a week at a time.

"Tanlac has done me a wonderful amount of good; I eat three meals a day now and am never troubled with indigestion, bloating or headaches. My kidneys don't worry me and I am not constipated now. My condition as improved so I can do all my household work. I am perfectly well in every way and people who have heard about my recovery come to see if all they hear is true and it don't take me long to convince them of the facts."

Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.—adv.

HERE'S PROOF

A Brevard Citizen Tells of His Experience.

You have a right to doubt statements of people living far away but can you doubt Brevard endorsement?

Read it:

J. T. Dean, shoemaker, says: "Some time ago I had an attack of kidney trouble. My back ached and I felt all run down. If I would bend over I could hardly straighten. I think that standing so much is what caused this complaint. I would get dizzy and black specks would come before my eyes and mornings I felt tired and weak. My kidneys acted too frequently and the secretion were highly colored, full of sediment and pain in passage. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I began taking them and they soon had my back strong again. I gladly recommend Doan's."

Calomel loses you a day! You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into your bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

Take "Dodson's Liver Tone" Instead!

When you feel bilious, sluggish, constipated and all knocked out and believe you need a dose of dangerous calomel, just remember that your druggist sells for a few cents a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is entirely vegetable and pleasant to take, and is a perfect substitute for calomel. It is guaranteed to start your liver without stirring you up inside, and can not salivate. Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and doesn't gripe.
