THE HARDWARE QUESTION SOLVED

Going to Build

No matter what you intend to build—whether it's a house, barn or merely a shelf in the pantry—you have to have tools. And the better the tools, the better the job. Poor tools are expensive at any price. They last only a short time and never do first-class work.

To be sure of getting tools worth buying, get them from us and you will be proud of your purchase. In addition to the tools, you most likely will need other things in the hardware line.

We have locks, doorknobs, hinges, brackets, nails and everything you will want.

PLUMMER-TRANHAM

THE FOURTH ESTATE

(By J. D. Boone, Editor Waynesville Mountaineer-Courier.)

Read before the Western North Carolina Press Association in session in Asheville, March 19, 1920.

The Fourth Estate, some people say is a state of toil with little pay, A state of anxious thought and care, Binding its victims to a chair, While his body may often freeze, or steam While his neighbors prosper and often frown On this good booster of their town.

He hatches schemes to bring them gold, While he's half-dressed, unfed and cold. He waits for subscribers to pay their dues In order to purchase his family some shoes. He waits for someone to advertise, And while he's waiting, often lies Of virtues and traits he gives to men Who ought to languish in the "pen."

He boasts and brags about the dead And sometimes then he drops his head, And prays for God to forgive his soul And keep him on the honor roll. In all small towns in all this land Dwells one, whom folks misunderstand Because he's modest beyond degree, This prototype of you and me.

One reason why he's in this fix is because of rotten politics. He often boosts and helps a gang When it often brings a hurting pang. He often helps elect a chap, Who for reward returns a slap. He keeps all others on the stage. While he is locked within a cage.

Of course he has himself to blame For never reaching after fame, He doesn't thing of self enough And doesn't call his neighbor's bluff. If he would but assert his rights, And shine along with other lights Methinks he soon would learn to smile And find his calling well worth while.

He has an awful lot to sell, If he could learn his lesson well. His space is worth far more to me Than I can tell you with my pen; But he is slow to realize The ways to make men advertise. And when you do to charge enough For you must surely "treat 'em rough."

He shouldn't print without his pay And should go dunning every day. And he should be as good as gold For all his creditors have sold. Then he should keep his name in print In every issue, without stint. If advertising brings success Then use it for yourself to bless.

The secret of success, I think, For those who fool with printer's ink, Is to work like whiz from week to week Instead of playing "hide and seek" Send out a handsome, newsy sheet So all will read it on the street Stay on the job each day and night And you'll be sure to fare all right.
