THE PRAYER CORNER
"The Lost Birthright"

"Esau, who for one morsel of meat sold his birthright."

The bargain was sealed, the price was paid and accepted. The birthright was Jacobs now, and the pottage was Esau's. His hunger was satisfied for an hour or two, but his birthright was gone. The hunger would soon return, but the birthright never could be his again. He had traded rank, position, power, possession, headship, special Divine and very blessed promises for one morsel of food.

There are several things to notice in the terrible folly of such bartering. One is that the present is not all. For the instant it seemed all. The giving of the passions or appetites immediate gratification seems bliss. Everything is forgotten, but the moment's pleasure for gain. But the present is not all; there are days, years, ages afterward when the life will go on in shame, darkness, bitterness. Would it not be well to think of this before blackening all the future for one hour's sinful enjoyment? "Better give up my birthright than die than part with your birthright, for the bitterness of such sin is that you cannot undo it. You cannot get again the birthright which you have sold. Tears will not bring back lost honesty, lost innocence, lost virtue, lost character, a lost Christ.

By his reckless act Esau showed that he despised his birthright. He did not value it; he rated it as worth no more than a morsel of food, yet it really was worth everything to him.

Men and women are all the while despising their own birthright. They are holding in one hand purity, noble character, usefulness, joy, peace, power or heaven and in the other some little gratification, some transient pleasure, some prize worth nothing in the end, and are rating these momentary indulgences, as better than all the blessed possibilities of their higher nature. Think of selling the right to a fortune of a million for a glass of wine or a few faded flowers. What fools we are! Shall we not seek to prize and honour the things to be really prized and honoured? M.

A PRAYER.

Almighty God, our heavenly Father, help us never to commit the terrible folly of bartering our birthright for a mess of pottage as Esau did.

May we never forget, that the present is not all; the immediate gratification of our passions or appetites may seem bliss. Everything may be forgotten, but the moment's pleasure or gain. But the present is not all. There are days, years, ages afterward when our life will go on in shame and darkness and bitterness. Oh help us to think of this before blackening all our future for one hour's sinful enjoyment. It would be better to die than part with our birthright, for we cannot get again that which we have sold. Tears will not bring back our lost honesty, lost innocence, lost virtue, lost character. Give us grace never to despise our birthright, or rate the momentary indulgences of some little gratification some transient pleasure, some prize worth nothing in the end; as better than all the blessed possibilities of our higher nature, better than purity, noble character, usefulness, joy, peace heaven, but to prize and honour these birthright things and die rather than part with them.

In Christ's Name we ask it, Amen.

LOCAL MANAGER WANTED

Unusual Opportunity for Right Man.

A large brokerage firm doing a successful business with well-rated concerns throughout the country, wants a capable man at once to develop and handle their local business.

The opportunity is an unusual one because of the possibilities offered for substantial earnings in a highly respectable business which will steadily increase as it becomes more firmly established locally.

The position requires a man possessing executive and sales ability with business experience and having commercial banking connections, although no investment is necessary. He may devote only a portion of his time to the business at first if desired, though we prefer a man who is able and willing to give the business his entire time and best efforts.

The local branch should pay from $2,500 to $10,000 the first year, according to population and the ability of the manager, as the commodity which we handle is a staple, always in demand, and which our large buying facilities permit us to sell at less than the average market prices.

Owing to the demand, we must fill this position at once. Send your application to Guarantee Coal Mining Co., 1318 Como Bldg., Chicago, Ill., do not write unless you can satisfy us as to honesty, reputation and business ability.
