WILD FAMILY IN NEW YORK

Parents and Four Children Discovered by Official of a Village Board.

FLED FROM RAMAPOS

Woman Dumb and Youngsters Never Had Seen Comb, Pencil or Paper— Came From Place Inhabited by Halfbreeds.

Nyack, N. Y.—Judge Charles W. Haughey, a member of the town board of Orangetown, brought to the attention of the board the condition of a family named Thompson, consisting of father, mother and four children, refugees from the interior of the Ramapo mountains, who took possession of a tumble-down shack on the edge of the Pearl river near here recently.

Judge Haughey said that the couple and the two elder children, a boy of ten and a girl of seven, appeared to be suffering from a skin disease due to lack of water. Their hair was matted and they presented a wild appearance.

Came From Ramapos.
In his report Judge Haughey said that he found the man sitting on the doorstep of the shack. After much persistent inquiry the man finally said that he and his family came from the interior of the Ramapo mountains, northwest of Nyack. The interior is a desolate place, inhabited by a few halfbreed Indians, mountaineers and "Jackson whites."

Thompson's only garments were a blue flannel shirt, a pair of old trousers held up by a twisted rope and a pair of old shoes. Judge Haughey was unable to find out the man's first name after half an hour. He learned that none of the children had ever been to school nor had they ever seen pencil or paper. The two youngest children were a boy of five and a girl of four. They were almost naked.

After considerable coaxing Judge Haughey induced Thompson to call his wife, who had remained inside the hut during most of the interview.

Woman Has No Name.
"Woman, come here," cried the man. A frail, huddled form emerged, clad in a black wrapper, worn through at the elbows and knees. The woman's hair was matted. Thompson swore at her, and after she had given several laughs, he said she was dumb. He told Judge Haughey that his wife and children had never had a comb so far as he could remember.

After Judge Haughey made his report it was decided that it would be best to remove the family to an institution.

In the memory of the oldest inhabitants of this section this is the first time that any of the inhabitants of the inner recesses of the Ramapo mountains have ever issued forth to civilization. From time to time lawbreakers have sought the wild mountain trails when pursued by the police, but once they entered the mountains they have seldom been heard of. The residents of this section never go into the interior, knowing the character of the gypsy-like inhabitants.

TWO WIVES AT 70 TOO MANY
New York Judge Tells Aged Bigamist He Had Better "Forget Women."

New York.—Roscoe Belch, seventy, of Woodhaven, formerly of Easton, Pa., where he held the position of county auditor, pleaded guilty to bigamy in the Kings county court.

Belch admitted that he had a wife when on August 7, 1919, he married Augusta Heimund. Belch leaned heavily on a cane. Judge Martin, in suspending sentence on the aged prisoner, said:
"You are surely old enough to realize that any man has all he can do to take care of one wife. While you might be admired for your courage, you certainly cannot be commended for your common sense. My advice to you is to forget your women."

MANY INDUSTRIES TIED TO TOBACCO

Prohibition of Weed Would Mean Big Financial Loss to Allied Trades.

WHO USES THE MATCH?

The Smoker Mainly—Also Responsible for Spending Hundreds of Millions Annually for Licorice, Sugar, Coal, Cigar Boxes, Tin Foil, Etc.

By GARRET SMITH
"Got a match?"
How many times a day is that question asked in these United States? How many more times is the question unnecessary because most pockets are kept well supplied with the useful little article? Anyhow, inasmuch as it is estimated that there are 30,000,000 tobacco users in the country, we would guess that the answer to that question would run into the hundreds of millions.

For if it weren't for the smokers in these days of electric lights how many matches would be used? A pretty small proportion of the number of these "sticks of blazes" produced in the country every year. Abolish tobacco and the match business would be shot to pieces.

But the match business is only one of a dozen or more allied industries which derive large revenues directly or indirectly from the tobacco trade and would suffer heavily if national prohibition of tobacco were to go into effect as some of our reformers would have it. The annual sales of tobacco products, based on retail prices, is estimated at $1,937,000,000. Of the cost of producing and selling this quantity of cigars, cigarettes and other forms of the weed, some hundreds of million dollars are paid out for other things than the raw tobacco and labor of making it up.

$25,000,000 a Year for Boxes
For example, the tobacco trade consumes each year 45,000,000 pounds of licorice, 50,000,000 pounds of sugar, both used in flavoring tobacco, and 650,000 tons of coal. It is estimated that the value of wooden cigar boxes used is $25,000,000 a year, quite an item to the lumber business and to manufacturers of the boxes.

In making these boxes 550,000 pounds of nails are employed. Other large items used in making and preparing tobacco for sale are tin and lead foil, paper for bags and cigarette wrappers, cloth for tobacco bags, labels, coupons, etc., involving the printing trade extensively.

Then building contractors and manufacturers of machinery are largely interested. Investments in plants and machinery employed in manufacturing tobacco are estimated at $102,000,000. Replacement, up-keep and interest on the investment make no small sum annually.

And let realty men note there are approximately 325,000 tobacco farms in the country, with a total estimated valuation of $160,000,000. Of further interest to real estate men is the fact that there are 700,000 retail establishments selling tobacco, involving a total rental and up-keep impossible to estimate, besides the large amount of office space occupied by administrative branches of the general business.

The insurance men, too, have their share of the pickings. The tobacco business pays out annually $7,000,000 in premiums in the United States.

And there are the railroads who reap revenue from 2,210,000 tons of tobacco products every year.

As for the advertising business, here again it is impossible to form any estimate of the enormous annual outlay.

The prohibition of tobacco would also knock a good-sized hole in the receipts of the United States government. The internal revenue receipts from tobacco for the fiscal year 1920 amounted to $295,809,355.44. Customs duties provided an additional $25,000,000 in round figures, making the total revenue returned to the government $320,000,000.

Influence on Popular Sentiment
It is this interlocking of the tobacco business with so many other interests and the vast amount of financial loss that would be involved in the abolition of tobacco that is one of the most serious aspects of the proposal to prohibit the sale of tobacco, a proposal, however, which has little support by public sentiment if the newspaper editors of the country are correct in their estimate of that sentiment.

In a poll of the editors made recently by the Tobacco Merchants' Association of the United States, through the Press Service Company of New York City, 95 per cent of the 7,847 editors who replied expressed the opinion that the people of their communities were opposed to any law against tobacco. As these editors represent some 30,000,000 readers the results form a pretty general test of national opinion.

In their remarks accompanying their replies many of the editors expressed it as their opinion that the opposition of their communities to the abolition of tobacco was based to some extent at least on the damage such a change would do to the business interests of the community. This was particularly true in the tobacco growing states and centers where there were large tobacco plants.

But when the extent of the business involved in the allied interests of the tobacco trade is considered, as above briefly outlined, it is clear that there is hardly a section of the country that would not be affected directly or indirectly by abolishing tobacco.

An Honest Face

Not handsome, but good, is the old saying regarding human faces. This applies to our nickel alarm clocks. A loud ticking clock is not always the one that keeps the best time, nor is the handsome and most costly one always the best time-keeper.

We do not handle the cheaply made, inferior German clocks sold at general stores, but we offer for about the same money an honestly-made, reliable time-marker. The America at $2.00; the Sleepmeter at $3.00, and the Big Ben at $3.75.
