WILLIAM BARTON

William Barton was born in this county about 1832; is related to the Bartons and Simpsons of this county. He married Miss Harriet King and settled in Hogback township. He entered the Confederate service Dec. 4 1862 in Co. "F" 1st regiment of S. C. volunteer cavalry, made a good soldier up to Johnson's surrender, in April 1865. Thinking there was no chance for an ex-Confederate soldier to rebuild in the South he pulled up and left for the West, stopping in Missouri about 1868. He built up with the country, raising a nice family, some of whom occupy honorable positions professionally and as good citizens.

RESOLUTIONS

Whereas, it has pleased God to call to his last reward, on January 7, 1922 Brother William Barton, aged 90 years, a distinguished and faithful member of our church, whose wise and safe counsel has been both helpful and sustaining to our church, and Whereas, the said brother Barton, like a patriarch of old, full of years and honors, was strong in the faith; lived a consistent Christian life which to us is a priceless heritage; dignified to church of which he was a member, and bequeather to the community a name of which it may well be proud. Therefore,

Be it resolved, that the Baptist Church of Bourbon, Missouri, of which he was an active member for 23 years, sensibly feels the loss sustained in his death; remembers with profound sorrow the parting of earthly ties; but at the same time rejoices at the exhibition of a firm and steadfast faith in the promises of God as manifested by Brother Barton in his last days.

Be it further resolved, that, as a church we will be faithful to his memory; grasp the colors fallen from his hands; gather inspiration from his long and useful life, and strive to meet him at the last day when the Lord shall come.

Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be preserved in the records of our church; a copy sent to the bereaved family; a copy sent to the Bourbon Standard for publication, and a copy sent to the Brevard News of Transylvania County, N. C.

W. G. Stephens: Committee.
Joe Creswell:
C. O. Wainwright:

The above resolutions are approved by the Baptist Church of Bourbon, Missouri, this 11 day of February, 1922, at its regular February meeting.

SHADOW OF EVIL

"I'll be back in a few minutes," said Henry Goudie, cashier of the Bank of Liverpool, to one of his associates. "I'm just going across the street to get a bite of lunch."

An hour later the officials of the bank began to wonder where Goudie was, but the fact that his hat still remained upon its accustomed peg indicated that the cashier wasn't far away, and that he would soon return. But at the closing hour that afternoon Goudie was still missing—and when an auditor went over his books it was discovered that a hundred and seventy-five thousand pounds (some $350,000) had also disappeared!

Inquiry at the house where Goudie had lodged failed to bring to light any trace of the missing cashier, who had left home that morning as usual, apparently without any intention of being away over night. His clothes were in their accustomed position, and even his toilet articles were untouched. In fact, if it hadn't been for the disappearance of the money from the bank, the police would have searched the hospitals, on the theory that Goudie had met with an accident.

But, as Frank Freost, superintendent of Scotland Yard, pointed out, it was hardly likely that a bank official and $350,000 would vanish at one and the same time without some connection between the two events.

"As luck would have it," continued Freost, one of the ablest detectives in England, "Goudie has chosen the simplest manner in which to make his escape—the easiest from his point of view and the most difficult from the standpoint of the police. It is comparatively simple to find a man who lays his plans in advance. You can usually trace his baggage or his railway tickets. But Goudie just walked out to lunch and lost himself somewhere. He left only one clue behind him—his hat."

Therefore, working on the assumption that a hatless man would be quite conspicuous, and that Goudie, knowing this, would immediately purchase another hat, Freost made the rounds of the shops near the Liverpool bank. From the clerk in one of them he obtained the information that a man answering to the description of the missing cashier had purchased a cloth cap of a distinctive pattern only a few moments after noon on the day that Goudie vanished.

By means of this clue and a detailed report on Goudie's appearance, Freost soon had every man connected with Scotland Yard searching for the absconding cashier. But it was several weeks before he was located and captured in a lodging house in the north of England.

However, the arrest of the man who looted the Bank of Liverpool did not by any means close the case.

Even before he was discovered, Freost had found out that Goudie had been in the habit of playing the races—patronizing a clique of "hand-book men," who had played upon his cupidity in such a manner that they, and not he, had secured the benefits of his dishonesty. In order to recover the money, Freost therefore had to round up the members of this gambling ring and force them to disgorge.

It developed that the leader of the organization, sensing a way in which to make a lot of money, without running any risk, had approached Goudie with an account of a "fixed race" which was to be run at Epsom Downs, and that the cashier, believing that he could clean up a fortune in a single day, had taken twenty-five thousand pounds from the bank, falsifying the accounts to conceal the shortage. The man's credulity is evident from the fact that he placed the money at odds of 20 to 1, which meant that he stood to win half a million pounds, or $2,500,000 if his horse came in first. Of course, no bookmaker could afford to pay a bet of this size—but Goudie overlooked this fact and cheerfully wagered his "borrowed" capital. The horse naturally failed to win, and, in an effort to recoup his losses, the cashier commenced systematically to loot the bank's funds.

One of the odd features of the case which Freost discovered, by blind luck, Goudie one day placed a big bet on a horse that won. When he went to collect his bet, with the firm intention of squaring his accounts with the bank, he was casually informed that the wager had not been placed in time, and he was advised to put it on another "sure tip," which lost. When his defalcations reached a point when it was hopeless to attempt further concealment from the bank authorities, Goudie "went out to lunch."

It didn't take Freost long to discover that, in planning a round-up of the gambling gang he was tackling one of the most difficult jobs of his career.

One by one Freost picked up the various threads of the tangled case. One by one he followed the various clues, at least one of which led to the suicide of a member of the book-makers' clique. But, in addition to seeing that Goudie was sent to prison for ten years, Freost secured evidence which forced the return of all but a small amount of money which had been taken from the Bank of Liverpool and placed upon horses, which, save in a single instance, had no chance whatever to win.

SHE LOOKS SO WELL AND HAPPY

See the rich, red blood, the sign of health, showing in her lovely cheeks

Some women have naturally beautiful complexions that tell you there is plenty of richness in their blood. Their figures become well formed, supple, rounded and graceful. Those are the results of rich, red blood, and plenty of it. There is no need of being thin and scrawny from poor blood. Get a few bottles of Gude's Pepto-Mangan—take it with your meals for a few weeks. It will give you plenty of red blood. By building up the blood, you give the entire system a chance to restore itself naturally, and that brings natural bloom and beauty and all the effects and joys of good health.
