

GARDEN NOTES

Keep a close watch on plants that are sown in hot beds or cold frames. Tomatoes, peppers and celery plants should be transplanted so as to give a more vigorous, stocky growth. When placed in cold frames tomato plants should be planted in check, so that the soil may be blocked out, and when plant is removed to the field transfer the block of soil with the plant so as not to interfere with the root system. This will give you tomatoes at least two weeks earlier than you will have if plants are pulled out and no soil carried with them. Clip a portion of the celery top back so as to make them grow more bushy. This should be done when plants are about 6 inches high.

Keep the garden soil stirred after every rain. This pulverizes the soil, kills weeds, liberates plant food and helps to retain moisture from the growing vegetables.

If your plants fail to grow as they should, top dress with Nitrate of Soda at the rate of about 200 lbs. to the acre.

A liberal supply of corn, beans, both bunch and pole, also limas, should be planted. A few hills of cucumbers, canteloupes and watermelons are in order. For these use a liberal supply of stable manure and acid phosphate mixed well with the soil. The hills should be large and flat, and only a little above the surrounding soil.

Watch for insects and begin war on them before they are so numerous. A mixture of 2 parts lime to one part arsenate of lead makes a good dust for shaking over the plants while they are wet, and is certain death to worms. Four ounces each of lime and bluestone dissolved separately each in one and one half gallon of water then poured together making a total of 3 gallons is an excellent solution for spraying. This solution acts as a repellent for small sucking insects, and should be applied frequently where trouble from these pests arises.

Anyone wanting additional information at any time should feel free to ask or write for it. Assistance will be rendered whenever possible and gratis.

We are looking for results from the Special Garden Campaign that has been conducted recently by Farm and Home Agents, we being ably assisted by Rev. Mr. Seagle, Mr. C. C. Yongue and Mr. Ralph Zachary. We take this opportunity of thanking them for their kindness in giving their time and valuable assistance.

Meetings were held at the following places:

Davidson River Schoolhouse, Little River, Cedar Mountain, Connetsee, Calvert, Quebec and Lake Toxaway. Due to conflicts and for other reasons several of the meetings planned were called off or postponed. We expect to visit other sections not mentioned in the above, for there are a number that have been left out that we hope to reach at an early date.

ROSMAN ITEMS.

Frank Morgan of Cherryfield was in Rosman Saturday.

Walter Lorne and wife spent last Saturday night in Lake Toxaway section.

Rev. A. J. Manley has been on the sick list for the passed few days.

Ward Breedlove of Lake Toxaway visited relatives here last week.

Miss Karrie Rexter of Carr's Hill Section spent last week with her sister here.

Mrs. Nancy Jarrett returned last Saturday from a week's visit to her daughter near Beaver Dam, N. C.

After a close down for more than three years the members of Pleasant Hill Baptist Church reorganized their Sabbath School, last Sunday with a large enrollment. We hope for them much success.

Many of the Rosman boys left last Saturday afternoon for South Carolina to attend the Greenville, Oconee and Pickens County Singing Convention which was held at Enon, S. C. The report is that there were three thousand present.

Rev. Ed Summey spent last week in this section after preaching at many of the other churches. He preached Thursday night at the Baptist Church here with a large congregation present. He preached from the subject, This Word A Pond, and the Devil Fishing with All Kind of Bait.

"Bro." Clayton Nail of Brevard payed a visit to the Baptist Church here last Sunday morning with the invitation for Zion Sunday School to attend the Convention which will be held in Brevard, May 11 to 14th, 1922.

The M. E. S. S. of Rosman observed Easter Sunday with appropriate exercises and some special music. A special program was rendered by the pupils of the Primary Department under the supervision of Mrs. Ockerman assisted by Mae White. This department has an enrollment of over thirty pupils and much interest is being felt in the work. The decorations for Easter Sunday were attractive in potted ferns, Easter lilies and crab-apple blossoms.

After spending six years in the missionary field in Africa, Miss McNeal returned to her home in Philadelphia, Penn. to spend a year's vacation there and in other parts of the States. During this time she became a welcome visitor in our town and while here we had the privilege of hearing her speak on the condition of the heathen country in which she labors. But now, her vacation being ended, she is en route to Ma Kump, Africa where she will resume her work again of preaching the Gospel to a lost people.
