A TRANSYLVANIA BOY MAKES GOOD

Lamar Galloway, a Transylvania boy, now completing his Junior year in Wofford college, Spartanburg, S. C., was selected by the College as one of the two young men to represent that institution in the inter-collegiate debating contest for the state of South Carolina. This contest was staged at the Citadel Military school, Charleston, S. C., between the University of South Carolina and Wofford college.

The subject of the debate was: Resolved, That the United States should cancel the war loans made to the Allies in Europe for the purpose of carrying on the war.

The University took the affirmative, Wofford the negative. The negative won by unanimous verdict of the judges.

It is always gratifying to note that our own county boys are forcing their way to the front and bringing honor to themselves, their parents and the institution they represent.

HAPPY the GRADUATE to whom the years of study have taught one great lesson—the Value of Time.

"Time," cried Plato to the men of Athens, "is the gift of the gods."

"Time," says the teacher of today, "is the essence of scholarship."

"Time," adds the waiting world of business, "holds the secret of success. Give us graduates who have learned to safeguard the minutes. Money is made of minutes."

An unusual line of down to date watches for your inspection.
