M. R. Sitton let for West Virginia to spend two weeks with a friend.

T. M. Mitchell's grocery store has this week secured a new delivery truck.

Miss Virginia Herring, who has been visiting in Brevard, has returned to Hendersonville.

Mrs. Wm. Henry and daughter, Eliza, are visiting her mother for a few days at Easley, S. C.

Mesdames F. P. Sledge and Harry Patton returned this week from a short visit to Washington, D. C.

Miss Mary Lewis and Rev. John R. Hay left Friday for the Young People's Conference in Abington, Va.

Miss Henrietta Siniard has returned to her home here after attending Montreat Normal school at Montreat, N. C.

Miss Amelia Galloway has returned home from Winston-Salem, where she has been attending Salem College.

Harold Norwood, who has been attending N. C. State college this past session, returned to Brevard for the summer on Monday.

A. B. Riley, who has been teaching at Pembroke, N. C., during the winter, returned to Brevard last week for a visit to his wife here.

Miss Cora L. Tyner leaves Friday for Winston-Salem where she will spend a few days with friends before going to her home at Buies, N. C.

Morning service of the Presbyterian church next Sunday will be in charge of the Men's Organization of the church. Mr. T. G. Miller of Waynesville will be the special speaker.

Mrs. W. W. Zachary left last Saturday for Annapolis, Md., where she will attend the graduating exercises of the U. S. Naval Academy. Woodford Zachary is a member of the class of '22.

Mrs. Z. W. Nichols, accompanied with Mrs. Harry Patton and Mrs. Sledge, left last Friday morning for Washington, D. C., where they will spend a few days. Mrs. Nichols will come back by Chapel Hill to attend the commencement of the University, of which her son is a graduate.

Nicholson and Duclos have been busy lately finishing a contract for plumbing in Hendersonville. It surely looks as though Hendersonville will some day be a suburb of Brevard for the plumbing firm is not the only Brevard firm to extend its activities there. L. C. Loftis has the contract for doing some wiring in Hendersonville, also.

A party of young folks left Wednesday for Lake Fairfield to spend a few days and enjoy swimming, fishing and boating. Among this crowd were: Misses Mildred Bryant, Mary Sledge, Louise Townsend, Louise Patton and Marjory Cook. Also Messrs. Overton Erwin, George Alcock, Francis Sledge, John Fox and Dr. Dinwiddie. Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Macfie were the chaperones.

Rev. Chas. C. Smith, after an absence of two weeks, returned home on Thursday. While away Mr. Smith attended the Southern Baptist Convention in Jacksonville, Fla., and spent a week visiting his mother in Fitzgerald, Ga. He also spent a day each in Atlanta and Macon. He is a native of Georgia and greatly enjoyed the brief stay in his home state, but is glad to be back in Brevard.

IS CENTENIAL CHURCH YEAR

Mr. J. M. Hamlin Writes About the Founding of Local Churches.

Mr. Editor: Some writers have said of North Carolina that she is continually making history worth reading, but slow to preserve it. It that remark is truly applicable to the State as a whole it is applicable to each part unless exception can be shown. Transylvania can hardly prove an alibi. Our history so far is unwritten. Outside official records we are dependent upon tradition. What we may have learned of ecclesiastical, social, economic, industrial and educational development is called largely from traditional fragments. It may be the various churches are preserving records of denominational progress, but apparently making no efforts to make known the facts.

Take Presbyterianism, for instance the non-affiliated know nothing certainly of the actual fact attending the origin and early planting of Presbyterianism in this county. It has been handed down traditionally that about a century ago, Rev. Ephraim Bradshaw, D. D., was pastor of a Presbyterian church at Davidson River; that the Davidsons, Pattons, Claytons, Orrs, Neils and Yonques were members of this flock. Whether or not he was the first pastor, we do not know, but was the first, perhaps, who impressed himself upon the hearts of the people not to be obliterated in a century.

Methodism was introduced early in the ninth century. Perhaps Mrs. Sarah Paxton, daughter of General Charles McDowell, who settled at the Cherry Fields, if not the first, was among the first Methodists of upper French Broad. The Beaslys, Lances, of East Fork and Vandan Loftis of Dunn's Rock with her and her daughters constituted the first class; Haddens, Shuford, and others at Pine Grove. Preaching services for some time were held in private dwellings: Billie Wilson's house near Wilson's bridge and Benjamin Wilson's at Selica were favorite meeting places. Rev. B. H. Merriman was among the first assigned to this circuit which then embraced a large territory. The class (as these local church divisions were then called) at the Cherry Fields built a chapel near where Oat Bryson now lives, known for many years as Merriman's meeting house. During this pastorate, Mr. Merriman married Miss Paxton and it seems, retired from conference, but continued to preach in his chapel. During this local ministry his first born son, Augustus, was born—the only native Transylvanian that ever reached the United States Senate.

Episcopalianism came to us about 65 or 70 years ago by resort immigration from Charleston, S. C. Most of them bought and tilled large farms from the Everett farm up the river to Cos Paxton's place. In a central point among themselves they built the church St. Paul in the valley. Parson Hankle was rector up to the way, between the States. The war dealt a heavy blow to the progress of this church. Since reconstruction the rallying point has been at Brevard with a constituency more cosmopolitan in origin.

With the Baptists, this is a centennial year; but not a word has been uttered publicly of the fact. It is a matter of record that the Baptist cause became formally and permanently organized in the constitution of Cathey's Creek church, which took place July 22, 1822. The territory embraced in the constituency of this church is identical with the present county limits—the field of the one church in 1822 is the field of Transylvania Association in 1922.

Previous to this time the above field was regarded as a mission station under the surveillance of French Broad church, now of Henderson county, having Rec. Benjamin King as spiritual leader. For several years he preached in private dwellings, rotating from Francis Allison's, near Penrose via Samuel Kings, John Nicholson's, Robert McMinn's to John C. Galloway's, near Old Toxaway. For some time in summer he preached under a large spreading poplar tree on Esq. Paxton's farm. Under this tree a revival was held; the following were baptised: Sallie Gillespie, Bessie Reed, Peggy Hooper, Jonathan Siniard, Peggy Siniard, John Aiken, John Galloway, Jr., Bessie Galloway, Vacey Nicholson, Sallie Aiken.

A revival was held at Robert McMinn's; the following joined: Peggy Davis, Wm. Gillespie, Robert H. Gilman, Anna Owen, Pheba Burrell, Hannah New, Joshua Sealf, Isaac Fram, Wm. Galloway, Surry, Galloway, Esther Glazener, Surry Glazener, David Hadden and Millie Gillespie.

The mission built a meeting house in 1819, which was placed on a pretty eminence near the present residence of J. A. Mull, supposed to be the central point between Penrose, East Fork, Toxaway (rather, Cambridge) and Gloucester. At this house, or one built soon after, near the place of the present meeting house at Cathey's Creek church, the permanent organization took place.

In looking over the last century, the writer was impressed that the readers of the News, as well as himself, knew too little of the genesis of things relating to the history of our county. That history, commendable history has been made is not exotic for any son to claim. The churches and other enterprises have made progress, we see and proudly realize. How, by whom, what were the incentives to action, what the obstacles overcome?—of these we have little authentic knowledge. Let honor be to him to whom honor is due. I opine we are passing the century mark of Presbyterian, Methodist, and Baptist achievement without recognition. It ought not to be lightly passed by. Why not a husiastic centennial gatherings formulate, read, print and file in the archives the record of the one hundred year's struggle, made by our fathers and mothers for denominational foothold and resuscitate the names of those who wrought gloriously through the heat of the day? Why not?

J. K. MILLS.

Thomas A. Edison has become such an American institution that it is difficult to recall the time when he was not inventing things and revolutionizing modern life by his remarkable discoveries. It must be over 40 years ago that his name became almost a household word, and in all the intervening period the luster of his fame has kept glowing until now it is as well known in every quarter of the world as in his native land. And yet he is only seventy-five years old. Long may he live to continue his beneficent labors in harnessing the electric current for the benefit of man! He is distinctly a man of genius, of whom few appear from time to time. His millions of well-wishers will be glad to see him spared for at least 25 years more.

Those persons who delight in delving for the cause of things are now turning their attention to why the young men of America have become so much more "dressy" than they used to be. A writer who claims to have studied the subject carefully says they undoubtedly are; declares the pocket mirror and the lipstick are now the constant companions of many men and predicts it is but a question of a short time till men will again wear ruffles and laces and costly fur collars. The war is said to be to blame for these affairs, the young men having become so vain and so accustomed to admiration while in uniform that they do not relish returning to the sedate clothing they once wore.

It is explained that the mute who asked for a divorce because of what his wife said to him in the sign manual was not unreasonable, as things can be said that way that a person wouldn't dare say out loud. Still, the average man who can hear wouldn't care anything about what she said by sign. For instance, instead of calling him a "piece of cheese," she would bring him a piece of it and tell him he would call for a slice of bread, and then proceed to eat it.

It is hard for the consumer to make both ends meet, according to the retail dealers, because they will not buy the meat ends, but maybe the consumer would do that if the dealer could make the ends meet.

Now it develops that the fortifications at Panama are inadequate and that enemy ships could lie out of range and bombard the canal at will—provided, of course, Uncle Sam did not try to do anything about it.

In Memoriam, 1918

Love and our dreams are over; Hope is dumb.
Your coffin closed the darkness on my hours,
Your grave has left its slime upon my flowers.
I live your Death; with lagging feet and numb
I turn to paths where you will never come.
To passing men—and your gaunt shadow towers
On all I meet—your words like sudden showers
Break through the hot wild clamor.
And when a drum
Mutters below my window, or a flute
Shrills the false merriment we bring to War
Or fools' hoarse cheering blares across my peace—
I curse the Thing that left you, damp and mute,
In alien mold—then suddenly know you are
Safer than I—and thank God on my knees.

Most Worthy Celebration.

Memorial day is best celebrated by that deep appreciation of the loyalty, devotion and heroism making this a united nation, which impresses us with our own responsibility for keeping it united for generations that are to follow us.

"There's no night in heaven," sings a poet. It will never suit our nocturnal jazziers.
