

ODD BELIEFS ABOUT AMERICA

In the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Centuries, Country Was Held to Be a Wonderland.

The Spaniards were not the only race to visualize the New world as a wonderland of rich mines and beautiful cities. Throughout the Sixteenth and for the first half of the Seventeenth centuries adventurers of various races were fully as credulous.

As early as 1700 the belief that the continent was peopled by the descendants of the lost tribes of Israel was asserted.

Then there was Norumbega, as the Penobscot river in Maine was called. This name also included the mythical kingdom extending from the coast to the head of Penobscot, with the fabulous city of Norumbega located where it now stands. Dwarfs and giants lived there in much splendor, and Champlain went to investigate and found the Abnaki wigwams.

All these various yarns fell in nicely with John Law's scheme, popularly known as "the Mississippi company." In the literature and maps booming that enterprise Louisiana was represented as being embarrassingly crowded with rich mines.

Mountains of gold and cities of wondrous loveliness, pearls and precious stones—all these were ever just over the horizon. Not until after the French-Indian war did the people fully realize that their gold must be won from prairies and the forest, and their cities be built by their own hands.—Adventure Magazine.

PROCURE BUTTER FROM FISH

Indians of British Columbia and Alaska Have a Never-Failing Supply of the Delicacy.

It is not generally known that the Indians of British Columbia and Alaska obtain their butter from a fish known to scientists as the oolichan. It is from six to eight inches long and very fat.

Every summer this fish comes from the ocean up the rivers to spawn, like salmon. Millions are taken in nets. First they are thrown into rough bins made of cedar logs, where they lie for a few days to soften in the sun.

Then they are placed in great cedar vats of boiling water, the latter being heated by hot stones which are dropped into them. This primitive method of heating has been found to produce better butter than when the fish are boiled in the more orthodox fashion.

As the oil rises to the top it is skimmed off. It hardens quickly and has the appearance of lard. Beautifully white, it is not easy to detect if from butter, there being not the slightest odor of fish about it. The Indians pack it in water-tight cedar boxes, making enough of this fish butter during the summer months to last them throughout the year.

Joke on Householder.

A prominent Cleveland, reports the Plain Dealer, of that city, was awakened in the night by mysterious noises from the lower floor and going down found a fellow filling his pockets with the silver on the sideboard.

The Cleveland man leaped on the burglar and speedily reduced him to the "got enough" stage. Then he let the man up and asked him what he meant by adopting such a disreputable profession. The fellow pleaded his youth and drink and bad company, and claimed it was his very first offense.

Whereupon, the householder, after exacting a promise from the prowler that he would give up his nefarious calling, opened the door and let him go.

"Perhaps that part of the adventure was all right," said the Cleveland man, "but, confound the fellow, I forgot all about making him take my silver out of his pockets."

And for years that story clung to him.

Hugging Bargains for Protection.

The other morning when a heavy shower came up there was rather an amazing sight downtown. About every other one was bearing a hat bag and she carried it in front of her across her bosom, in sort of chest protector fashion. "What does all that mean?" asked a Mere Man, as he stood waiting for a car.

"It's a millinery sale," replied a woman near him. "I mean, there is a big millinery sale downtown today, and about every other woman who came shopping bought a bargain hat. Now they are afraid they'll get their bargains wet, and holding them up to their chests like that is the only way to be sure of keeping them directly under their umbrellas."—Springfield Union.

Sounded Good.

Sir Walter de Frece is said to be one of the best raconteurs in English clubdom. One of his latest is of the man who accosted another in a West End saloon bar. "Pardon, but you are Dr. Smith, aren't you?" he inquired. The man addressed denied that that was his name. "But, surely," said the first speaker, "you attended my wife?" "I did not," was the answer, "nor am I a doctor." "Then you must have a double?" "Thank you!" said the man; "I will."—Argonaut.

It Wasn't Conscience.

"Tommy, when you were fighting the little Smithers boy what did the still, small voice say?" "It said, 'Punch 'im in th' stomach, ma.'"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

If the chemists continue to find new uses for cobs the corn will be regarded as an edible by-product.

At twenty men and women are more sophisticated and pessimistic than they are 30 years later.

Science never explained the aptitude of mosquitoes for picking out the most popular summer resort.

Draining the hose doesn't satisfy the autolst buying gasoline now. He insists that it also be squeezed.

The real smart thing for a new girl baby to do is to capture the name of Mary Jane and then live up to it.

It is a strenuous life these days, hurrying home from the ball game in time to tune up for the radio concert.

Nothing is harder to understand than why the corn crop can stand in the hot sun all day and seem to like it.

Concrete Pits Prevent Manure Waste

Use Lehigh—the National Cement
Rotten manure not only enriches the ground but increases the water holding capacity of the soil; one load of well rotted manure from a concrete pit is worth two loads of ordinary manure. A concrete manure pit is simple and cheap to build.
It's a good plan to have several sacks of Lehigh Cement always on hand for use about the place.
