

"BIG TREES" WORLD WONDERS

United States Government is Keenly Alive to the Demand for Preservation of the Redwoods.

Our great parks, the Yosemite, Yellowstone, Sequoia and General Grant, must be kept under military supervision in order to preserve their natural wonders against injury from trespassers. Of all these miracles of nature, the "big trees" are the most astonishing. There are two species—the sequoia sempervirens, or ordinary redwood, and the sequoia gigantea, which is, strictly speaking, the "big tree" of California.

These stately creatures are so impressive that it seems quite fitting to honor them with distinguished titles. Nearly every state in the Union and many of the distinguished generals of the Civil war have names among them. The "General Grant" and the "General Sherman" are individuals of the largest size, and, with the "Grizzly Giant," are probably the biggest of all trees.

Before one of the national exhibitions the government ordered a section of redwood thirty feet long for exhibition and for this it agreed to pay $7,000. Before the lumber company had succeeded in delivering it on the cars it had cost nearly that amount, for a mountain wagon road five miles long had to be built to get it out, and a trench was dug as long and as large as the tree itself to set it in.

The same company also furnished another tree for another exhibition, which was cut in General Grant park not a hundred yards from the spot where the "General Grant" stands in all its majesty. In the same grove lies the "Fallen Monarch," through the burnt-out heart of which a mounted horseman can ride with ease.

In the Yosemite is the "Wawona," a tree with a hole burnt in its base, through which the road runs and big automobiles are driven without difficulty; and on the "Mark Twain" stump of the General Grant park eighteen full-sized cavalry horses have easily stood. It is twenty-six feet in diameter.—Washington Star.

Primitive Eskimos.

Ten years among the Eskimo, five of which were spent among the so-called "blonde Eskimo" of the Mackenzie delta and Coronation gulf districts of the Arctic, is the record of Rev. Edward Hester, a Church of England missionary.

The Coronation gulf Eskimos are very primitive, he states. Their weapons consist of bows and arrows made by themselves. Raw meat is their principal food diet, the diet varying only with the hunting seasons. In seal-hunting time seal meat is the daily bill of fare; in caribou time, the caribou only is eaten.

Though the Eskimo may have both seal and caribou meat on hand at the same time, his peculiar beliefs forbid him to eat seal meat at caribou time, and vice versa. Neither may he eat a land meat, such as caribou, when on water or ice, so he lives on seal meat.

When he takes to the land in the spring he must not eat seal flesh. The breaking of either of these rules will call down upon his head the wrath of the departed, who are always very evil spirits, says the Eskimo.

Would-Be Burglar Suffered.

Conversational powers of two women holiday-makers at Brighton, England, saved them from robbery. On the first night of their holiday, occupying the same room, they gossiped about one thing and another for hour after hour until daylight appeared. Then, in the gray light of dawn, they saw a man getting out of the window of the room. It appeared he had been under the bed all night hoping to obtain some valuables from the room when the occupants were asleep, but was forced to leave the room on the arrival of daylight, after having listened to hours of private conversation. This gift of woman has often been suspected.

The Light-Six

Now $975

So far this year Studebaker has built and sold more cars than during the entire year of 1921. And 1921, in spite of a general business depression, was the biggest year in Studebaker's 70 years' history. This steady volume of business, plus the savings resulting from Studebaker's methods of complete manufacture, reduces manufacturing and selling costs. And it is a Studebaker policy of long standing to share these savings with the customer. Hence, the new low prices.

That's why you can buy a Studebaker Light-Six today at its new low price of $975—the lowest price for which it has ever sold and the lowest at which a car of such quality was ever offered.

Only the price is reduced. Quality is better than ever.

Stop in and see the Light-Six. Let us demonstrate its easy handling, its lack of vibration, its great comfort. Let us prove its endurance. Then drive it yourself.

Cowl lights; cowl ventilator; high-grade, nickel-plated combination robe and hand-rail across back of front seat; thief-proof transmission lock; large rectangular plate glass in rear curtain; 9-inch seat cushions of genuine leather; 40 H.P. motor with inclined valves and internal hot spot.
