MONEY SAVED MAKING TAPE

New York "Tricks of the Trade" Taught in Home Dressmaking Classes— Idea of Iowa Woman.

There are many little "tricks of the trade" taught in home dressmaking classes conducted by extension workers which are much appreciated by workers who must also learn how to economize in every way. One such trade practice of value in home-sewing is the making of bias tape. An Iowa woman found she could make 40 yards of bias tape from a yard of 36-inch material. She picked up three remnants of gingham and percale, each piece a yard long, and at a cost of 48 cents and a time investment of 45 minutes made 104 yards of tape which was one-half to three-quarters inch wide when finished.

SQUASH PIE FILLING NEEDS LONG COOKING

Rich Flavor Developed If on Stove for Four Hours.

Not Economical to Run Gas Stove for Extra Two Hours—Tested Recipe by Department of Agriculture Is Given.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Throughout the fall months squash and pumpkin pie may well appear in the bill of fare. If a coal or wood fire is kept up in the kitchen for other purposes, it is well to cook the squash for a long time to develop the flavor, but it is not economical and may not be advisable to run a gas stove for an extra two hours for the sake of flavor alone. The United States Department of Agriculture has found that when the squash used for filling is cooked four hours it develops a richer flavor than when it is cooked only two hours.

The recipe below can be used for either squash or pumpkin pie. It has been thoroughly tested in the department's experimental kitchen.

Squash Pie.

- 1 1/2 cups of squash, thoroughly cooked (strained squash may be used)
- 1 cup of milk
- 1/2 cup of sugar
- 1 teaspoonful cinnamon
- 1 teaspoonful salt
- 1/2 teaspoonful all-spice
- 1/2 teaspoonful nutmeg
- 2 eggs
- 1 tablespoonful butter

Put all the ingredients except the eggs and butter in the double boiler and bring to the scalding point. Beat the eggs well, and add to the hot mixture. Stir until it starts to thicken. Add the butter. Bake the empty crust until a very light brown and pour the hot filling into the pre-baked crust without removing it from the oven. Bake the whole pie in a moderately hot oven until the filling sets.

Providence, R. I., has begun a systematic war on rats, it is reported. It could be wished that every city and town in the country would engage actively in this war. The rat's menace to health is not the only reason why he should be destroyed. He is a heavy economic liability, for he does millions of dollars worth of damage every year in the United States. He destroys vast quantities of foodstuffs, and is responsible for many fires. Rats are vermin, wholly undesirable from every point of view, and they should not be tolerated in a civilized country.

A farmer near L'Islet, Quebec, meets a band of gypsies and swaps his son for a horse. The law rescues the lad and brings the father to account. His defense is: "The boy is mine. I can do with him as I please." Once that was the normal attitude. It still is in parts of the Orient, where children are sold like dogs. Today our courts hold that children have rights even before they are born. You can measure a nation's degree of civilization by its care of its children.

REMINISCENCES OF J. M. HAMLIN

hundred and fifty or until there were no more to enlist; the county was left bare.

Of these men in action, it is written in letters never to be effaced "North Carolina first at Bethel, farthest at Gettysburg and last at Appomattox."

Then came April 9 and 27, 1865, when these dreadfully decimated commands stacked arms, crushed at the annunciation: "The Cause is Lost." This favored few with honorable, but as yet meaningless, paroles in pocket, turned their faces toward home and their backs upon the bones of once brave comrades, bleaching upon the soil of Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania and left, as the supposed field of strife, singing in their hearts: "The War's all over and we'll go home."

It soon developed, however, that the darkest day lurked in the future, not a ray of light came to him who found an impoverished home, though filled with love that have intensified the darkness. Love in a home stripped of needed comforts, surrounded by empty cribs and garrets, fences burned and broken, stock driven off, and fields grown to briars. No neighbor to whom he might turn for help for all were helpless. No charity fund to extenuate, no bank to lean upon, no hospital to heal, no pension to help, nothing absolutely, but the fact: "Dig and wait." Conscious of inherent honor and stimulated with a clear conscience, he dug and lived.

Looking away from personal embarrassment to catch a ray of hope from abroad—some silver lining from the impending clouds above, he is made to recoil under crushing congressional enactments, executive rulings and military orders, which finally stripped him of manhood sovereignty and placed under the dominion of enfranchised slaves willingly led by hordes of advantage aptly denominated "carpet-baggers," who cared for naught but spoils. As they moved on conditions grew intolerable. Endurance ceased to be a virtue.

On the approach of '76 the veterans of '65 came to the front with every nerve tingling with the sense, that, "Tis Enough." Armed with reason and justice, casting shackles to the winds determined never to capitulate, they, in one voice, entreated for fight. In this bloodless war of words, the sons trained in and fired with the same spirit were mobilized into a strong reserve and held in readiness at a beckon sprang into action at the decisive hour. When the hour came every man was in his place—Victory! Appomattox reversed; resting its pedestal on soil from Mantua to Cherokee. Carpet-bagging was doomed and fled with crisp in hand beyond the Potomac and Ohio rivers.

The day brightens but still a haze is in the flesh politics. The old veterans' waiting ranks have grown lean; they can lean no farther. "Young men for war, old men for council" is an accepted proverb. To make a long story short, North Carolina must be a white man's government and to secure it will require a stubborn fight. Sentiment abroad and disaffection within stager the faint hearted and sows the war with imponderable obstacles. A brave people under a sense of insulted patriotism is ready for any fate. With wise counsel, expert leadership, all impediments are overcome and North Carolina begins the twentieth century with a white man's government.

The chasm made in the 60's being bridged by the commandship of the North and South in the Spanish and World Wars has brought about an era of good feeling. We are talking about erecting monuments to memorialize achievement and achievers. The State never achieved a greater trophy than that of 1900. Those who were wise and energetic enough to secure the prize erected their own monument. The renaissance of education there and then made possible is memorialized by the thousands of school structures—some imposing—reared up throughout the state. Not only so but the hum of the spindle and the towering shaft-like smoke-stack impress the ear and eye of the glory of that day, and willing homage is paid to the immortal Simons, Aycock and their followers. As these and other institutions grow with time and volume and number they will add luster to these men and their measures.

What is to be done for the other achievements men earned? It is a foregone conclusion that the World War veterans are to have a thousand dollar cobble-stone monument tendered by the whole people of Transylvania. What are the U. C. V's, dependent upon southern sentiment, to do? It is written in answer "later." How came the Confederate Veterans' claim before the committee is unknown to the writer. Have the U. D. C.'s relinquished their guardianship? We have for quite a while been relying on the affectionate recognition. We would have no other monument erected, not so much to us personally, but as a memento of intense suffering as above imperfectly described. We did our best and were unprofitable servants. Whether or not our cause has been turned over, this writer feels it no assumption on his part to speak for the few survivors and for the six hundred dead, in terms of a poor language, to express the degree of appreciation for the unselfish work already done by the daughters. We would have no other monument than the perpetuation of the love of our daughters. What love may touch in a material way to ameliorate the suffering of the 60's touched every Southerner's heart. The embarrassment, handicaps and self-denials attending their efforts, must be close akin to that they assay to commemorate.

We look forward with them to a time "later" when their work and influence will be much enlarged—having a lot in fee simple containing a structure of architectural beauty reflecting credit upon the originators, gratification, contributors and an ornament to the town. Why not have an campaign on the five year installment plan, put shelves in this new building, increase the stock mightily and support a librarian for all time and be happy? Fifty thousand can be secured and anxiety driven away.
