Mrs. Gross Praises Tanlac for Overcoming Stomach Trouble of Long Standing—Says Results Are Priceless.

"Before I took Tanlac I only weighed ninety-four pounds and scarcely had strength to sweep the floor or make the beds; but now I weigh one hundred and thirty-two and am as healthy and happy as can be." This remarkable statement was made, recently, by Mrs. Mabel Gross, 1137 Aldrich St., N. Minneapolis, Minn.

"For nearly two years I had been in a seriously weakened condition and suffered nearly all the time from headache and backache. My nerves were beyond my control and I was terribly dizzy. I couldn't half sleep and my stomach was so out of order that even the sight of food nauseated me.

"The benefits I have received from Tanlac are priceless. I am now a perfectly well woman and my friends often speak of how healthy I look. I certainly have a great deal to praise Tanlac for. Health is worth everything, and that is what Tanlac has meant to me."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Over 35 million bottles sold.—Advertisement.

Doctor Tells Mothers to Give Baby Teethina

Physicians have long acknowledged the superior merits of Teethina in treating children's affections, and do not hesitate to prescribe it for their patients. In this connection, Mrs. J. B. Brock, Route A, Box 125, Bradford, Pa., writes:

"My baby was very bad off with his stomach and bowels. We tried home remedies without success, and then sent for Dr. who recommended Teethina. It relieved baby's trouble right away, and he is now fat and healthy."

Mothers need never hesitate to give the little ones Teethina. It cannot hurt the most delicate stomach, nor does it contain anything in the nature of opiates.

Teethina is sold by all druggists, or send 50c to the Moffett Laboratories, Columbus, Ga., and get a package of Teethina and a wonderful free booklet about Baby.—Advertisement.

Peace Looms in Franco-German Dispute as Result of Recent Events.

FRANCE DISAVOWS LAND GRAB

Joint Statement of French and Belgian Premiers and New German Movement Clarify Situation; British Hold Aloof; More Irish Executions; Lenin Reported Near Death.

Is the murder of two French officials by unknown persons in the invaded Ruhr district the precursor of Franc-tireur activities on the part of the civilian population in invaded Germany? Is history, as taken from the record of the days that followed the Franco-Prussian war of 1871, going to repeat itself?

HOPES FOR A PEACEFUL settlement of the Franco-German difficulties over the Ruhr occupation seem brighter as a result of three outstanding events of the past few days: the formal declaration of the French and Belgian premiers that imperialism had no part in their plans; the number of two French officials by some unknown persons in the occupied district; and the Ruhr and a new movement instigated by German capitalists expressing again the German government's desire to pay the reparations as fixed by the Versailles treaty "as far as Germany can go."

Taken chronologically the assassinations came first. Two French officers, M. Joly, a technician in charge of the railroad yards at Buer, and Lieutenant Collins, the army officer in charge of the station at that town, were done to death on March 10, their bodies being found in a road leading to Buer. They were thirty feet apart, when found, five bullet wounds being discovered in the head of each of the victims.

M. Maginot, minister of war in the French cabinet, addressing a group of French officers, gave France's first reaction when he said, "In our attitude towards the population our soldiers have unlimited sentiments of humanity, but such a crime cannot remain unpunished and it is only right to carry with it terrible reprisals."

The mayor of Buer, his assistant, the chief of police, and two prominent citizens have been arrested and are being held as hostages. The deaths follow that of one French soldier and two others wounded in the same district and this latest outbreak has put the troops in an unpleasant frame of mind. The deaths are laid at the door of the expelled German police by the French but no grounds that they may have for such a charge have been cited to this country. The underlying thought in the minds of those who are keeping track of events is to wonder if the Germans are starting in on the horrible Franc-tireur movement of fifty years ago that resulted in terrible reprisals by the German invaders.

STUDENTS OF CONTEMPORARY

History immediately associated with the murders the joint statement of Premiers Poincaré and Thomsen disavowing any thoughts of their two countries, France and Belgium respectively, being imperially inclined. Their statement was made less than two days after the double deaths near Buer and evidently was designed to offset the reaction expected from the world over the summary deaths. The statement says, categorically, that the invaders have no desire to retain permanently any additional territory over that granted them at Versailles and that the allied soldiers will retire from the occupied zone as fast as payments are made on the indemnity granted the allies by the treaty.

The statement of the premiers robbed the murders of much of their importance from an international standpoint. Had the double assassination been allowed to stand without anything else to occupy the public mind it would have removed the Ruhr controversy to the field of national prejudice, given the Germans a splendid chance to float more propaganda based on their inability to control the peoples of the occupied area, and given the French an equal opportunity to assail the Germans for injecting active armed force, coupled with murder, into a situation that is regarded by the allies as being more of a police measure than a military one.

The French have shown a desire to confine the issue entirely to a commercial plane. They assert plainly that all they want is their money and that they regret being forced to use their army as a force of bill collectors. Until the declaration by the two premiers that they would evacuate the invaded territory as fast as payment was made the world felt there was the possibility that the Ruhr would finally find itself in the same boat as Alsace-Lorraine, a part of France.

A remarkable feature of the statement is that it stands exactly upon the words and actions of that arch-enemy of France fifty-two years ago, Bismarck.

History records that Bismarck, in occupying France, asserted he would retire with his army as fast as payments on the indemnity were made. The French peasantry of those days, as will be remembered, emptied the hidden corners of their cupboards and inside of three years paid over to the Teutonic warriors the enormous sum, for that period of the world's history, of five billions of francs, roughly $1,000,000,000, besides territory.

France went through the same strain that Germany now is undergoing. A vast portion of its people absolutely refused to aid in the payment of the indemnity and for two months the Communists, the Reds of that time, razed throughout Paris attacking constituted authority while the German army sat idly by and watched the situation clarify itself.

History appears to have repeated itself, as it has a habit of doing, in the present Franco-German dispute. Close students are watching to see whether the Communism will arise among the Teutonic peoples; whether the German equivalent of the Franc-tireurs will arise, as was indicated by the murders of the two French officials; and whether the indemnity will be paid finally.

THE MOVEMENT PUT ON FOOT by German capitalists is a variation from history and is therefore to be scrutinized with great care. In essence it is said to formulate plans whereby the entire structure of German industry will be placed in pawn to foreign nations as the basis of an international loan which is to be used to pay part of the country's indemnity.

Underground reports from Switzerland say that the German movement has proceeded to the extent that a tender of the equivalent of ten billions of dollars in gold was made to a French emissary. This offer is the largest that has ever been made and is considerably higher than Chancellor Cuno's tender at Paris, the rejection of which was signified by the occupation of the Ruhr. Acceptance of the offer will unquestionably result in the immediate retirement of the French from the invaded district, as soon as satisfactory guarantees have been made.

As the French have taken one leaf out of Bismarck's book by occupying territory, they will not act hastily in consenting to a reduction of the occupying forces. In fact another 100,000 soldiers were reported either in the Ruhr or on the way, tightening their already powerful stranglehold on the life-blood of industrial Germany.

WHAT PART THE BRITISH government had in forcing the declaration of France and Belgium that they would retire as soon as their war debt had been paid, is not known and may never be disclosed. British diplomats are never far distant when an important matter of foreign policy comes up. It is a prime principle of the king's advisers that England shall side always with the weaker power, building it up until it overshadows its former opponent, when, in turn, the British change their sympathies.

The British peoples have not forgotten the wounds inflicted by the German battle-hosts, but neither have they forgotten those decades around the opening of the Nineteenth century when Napoleon's name was used to frighten children to sleep, and when the menace of the Little Corporal, standing on French soil and gazing across at the cliffs of Dover while he assembled a host of fishing vessels to transport a great invading army, laid heavy on all England.

In spite of the terrible nature of the war waged by Germany since 1914 England can be relied upon to keep Germany in the concert of nations as an offset to the power of France. She has checkmated France already in several ways in the present imbroglio, chiefly by selling coal to the Berlin authorities to enable them to keep aloof in spite of the shutdown of all supplies from the invaded region. Keeping in mind the great principle of the British nation it is not difficult to forecast the fact that Germany will not be stripped of any of its Ruhr district, the life-blood of its manufacturing industries.

THE IRISH QUESTION WILL NOT

down and executions still are proceeding of the members of the "Irish Republic." Seven insurgents were shot to death in one day last week and the day following four more were executed by the same method, making a total of 64 in recent months. The firing squad is the answer of the constituted government to the assassinations of members of the Irish Legion and their families, along with a large destruction of property. Whichever side wins an enormous indemnity will have to be paid to victims of the civil strife. In this connection the refusal of the Canadian government to allow a representative of the Irish republic to enter the Dominion from New York state shows that the hand of the entire British empire is set against the revolutionists.

LENIN AND TROTSKY ARE REported near death by former Ambassador Charles R. Crane and the world is wondering what will happen to present Russian politics with the passing of either or both of these men, who are unquestionably great in their achievements, no matter how one views their activities. The death of Lenin would put the Soviet government to its greatest test and it alone will answer the question as to the depth to which his bolshevik teachings have penetrated to the mass of the people. Government is seized or perpetuated by three things: by heredity, by election or by a coup d'état. Lenin will have no heirs, even if they would be recognized by the soviet peoples, an unthinkable thing; while the country has no election machinery and a seizure by the military is not considered likely.

It is understood that a small coterie of Lenin's advisers, some eighty men, have already apportioned their part in the events that will succeed the dictator's passing from power but the world will wonder whether the extremists or the visionaries will be in the majority when that event comes to pass. Trotsky's illness is said to be slight by others who have seen him this month.

THE PASSING OF DR. GEORGE

Francis Lydston, eminent Chicago physician and surgeon, at his home in California, has robbed the world of an outstanding figure. He was that admirable figure, a radical in thought who confined himself strictly to the orthodox practice of his profession. It was Doctor Lydston who first attracted attention by the transplantation of glands to a human body, his experiments being on himself first, showing his sincerity. He asserted, as a result of his researches, that gland transplantation afforded only temporary relief from the penalties of old age. It was a favorite assertion of his that the relief lasted only six months and had to be renewed to be effective. Doctor Lydston never asserted the glandular operation was a benefit, except in cases of dementia praecox among women or advanced age, on many of whom he successfully operated.

Another brilliant achievement of his was the sterilization of a criminal in Michigan, who was given his choice of a suspended sentence or the operation. His fame extended to the four corners of the globe and was added to by his writings, which he varied by incursions from strictly medical works to books of fiction.

WANTS TO STOP BUILDING PLAN

HOOVER RECOMMENDS STATES AND CITIES TO SLOW DOWN IN WORK.

LABOR IN FULL EMPLOYMENT

Think That Public Construction Work Should Be Done When There Is Unemployment.

Washington, Government building and construction work now under way should be slowed down and the initiation of new projects delayed, Secretary Hoover recommended to President Harding in a letter made public in order that they may be pushed forward at some later period when there is less private construction activity and need for alleviating or preventing unemployment.

The commerce secretary in a report made at the President's request suggested that state and municipal governments consider the adoption of a similar policy, which accords with suggestions resulting from the national unemployment conference of 1921 that government projects of all sorts be utilized as an employment reserve, so far as possible, by which demand for labor and materials might be thrown into markets during periods of depression.

Mr. Hoover said that a survey of the situation in the construction trades had brought out several fundamental conclusions which he listed as follows:

The year 1922 was a year of very large employment and activity in the construction trades and at the end of the year stocks of construction materials were much reduced. Since the beginning of the present year there has been even more activity than in the same period last year and the contracts let in the past few months are of larger volume than any hitherto entered into in a similar period. Advances orders for construction materials are upon a very large scale.

Labor in the construction trades and in the manufacture of materials is not only at full employment, but there is actually a shortage in many directions.

That position facilities, available for the building materials are fully loaded and almost constant car short-ages are complained of with such frequent repetition in production.

"In conclusion," said the secretary, "from all this it is that at least for the next six months the trades will be fully occupied by private construction all of which is generally needed by the country.

"For the government to enter into competition at the present moment will also no additional employment to labor and no additional production of materials but must in the broad sense in the end displace that much private construction. The government, nationally and locally, are in a much better position to hold construction work in abeyance than are private concerns, and are in better position to speed up in times of less demand as we did in the depression as the result of the unemployment conference. We can by this means contribute something to a more even flow of employment not only directly in construction work but in the material trades.

"I would recommend, therefore, that you direct the different divisions of the government to initiate no new work that is not absolutely necessary to carry on the immediate functions of the government and that there should be a slowing down of work in progress, so much as comports with real economy construction, until after there is a relaxation in private demands."

Cottonseed Crushed Shows Gain.

Washington.—Cottonseed crushed in the seven-month period, August 1 to February 28, amounted to 3,815,861 tons, compared with 2,631,751 tons for the same period a year ago the census bureau announced.

Production manufactured during the period and on hand February 28 were:

Crude oil produced 860,054,846 pounds, compared with 860,064,177 and on hand 83,866,608 pounds, compared with 68,995,639.

Cake and meal 1,988,799 tons, compared with 1,181,263, and on hand 158,739 tons, compared with 215,293.

Linters 562,226 bales, compared with 348,763 and on hand 74,431 bales, compared with 154,747.

Exports of oil, cake and meal, and linters were not available, department officials say.

Steel Output Is Growing.

New York.—Reports of increased business and increasing speculative markets were features of the past week in trade and finance. All signs point to the continuance of the industrial revival, which has now reached a point where the volume of the country's production probably exceeds anything on record.

Steel output is still growing and steel prices are still rising and railroad traffic is extraordinarily large; but the gains are not limited to the heavy industries.

The Cave Spring School.

Few springs were better known, or more used in this border of civilization, than was the "Cave Spring," that served the pioneers and their children to the second generation. It is scarcely necessary to mention its site on the present Graham boulevard near the crossing of Cleveland street. Here, according to family history, recalled by Mrs. Nellie M. Harris, a school was taught by Mr. Piper. This school was in existence about 1840 and the pupils now remembered by Mrs. Harris as attending were her uncles, Washington H. and Joseph Smith Chick, and William Mayes.
