How Backache and Periodic Pains Yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Olean, N. Y. - "Every month my blood would go to my head and I would have such a headache. Inosebleed, backache and pains that I could not do my work. At night I could not get my rest and nothing seemed to do me any good. I read some of your testimonials about what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for others, so I decided to try it. I had only taken two bottles when I began to be better, and my back did not hurt me nor my head ache. I felt like a new woman. The Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine and I will always recommend it."-Mrs. A. D. EARLS, 530 N. 5th St., Olean, N. Y.

Mrs. Kelsey adds her Testimony Copenhagen, N. Y.-"I read your advertisement in the papers and my husband induced me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to get relief from pains and weakness. I was so weak that I could not walk at times. Now I can do my housework and help my husband out doors, too. I am willing for you topublish this letter if you think it will help others."-Mrs. HERBERT Kelsey, R.F.D., Copenhagen, N.Y.

It was upon the bridge and across it; they they skidded upon the mud of the road again, they could hear the bridge cracking behind.

"Harriet I" he pleaded with her. She steered the car on, recklessly, her heart thumping with more than the thrill of the chase. "They're the men who tried to kill you, aren't her to look about; she had to keep her eyes on the road at that moment when she knew within herself and was telling the man beside her that she from that moment must be at one with him. For already she had said It; as she risked herself in the pursuit, she thought of the men they were after not chiefly as sose who had were full of armed men. Their head-

She she had to know, "What should I call," con?" she demanded of him.

"My name," he said, "is Hugh," "Hugh!" she called it-

"Y 128 " "Hugh-" She waited for the rest expertly and the car shot from the but he told no more. "Hugh" she tions that, except for the removal of garage. She switched on the electric whispered to herself again his name

Her eyes, which had watched the road for the guiding of the car, had followed his gesture from time to time pointing out the tracks made by the machine they were pursuing. These tracks still ran on ahead; as she gazed down the road, a red glow bevond the bare trees was lighting the sky. A glance at Hugh told that he also had seen it.

"A fire?" she referred to him. "Looks like it."

They said no more as they rushed in; but the red glow was spreading, and yellow flames soon were in sight shooting higher and higher; these were clouded off for an instant only to appear flaring higher again, and the breeze brought the small of sect sound wood burning.

"It's right across the road" Hugh announced as they teared it.

An instant more she clung to him. The double headlights flaved into sight again upon the road, much nearer now and coming fast. She released him; he plunged into the bushes beside the road, and the damp, bare twigs lashed against one another at his passage; then she shot her car forward. But she had made only a they?" she rejoined. The speed at few hundred yards when the first of which they were going did not permit | the two cars met her. It turned to its right to pass, she turned the same way; the approaching car twisted to the left, she swung hers to oppose it. The two cars did not strike; they stonged, radiator to radiator, with rear wheels locked. The second car drew up behind the first. The glare of her headlights showed her both lights, revealing her to them, hushed suddenly their angry ejaculations. She recognized Avery in the first car; he leaped out and ran up to her.

"Harriet! In God's name, what are con doing here?" She sat unmoved in her seat, gazing at him. Men leading from the cars ran past her down the road toward the ravine and the burning bridge. Avery, gaining no satisfaction from her, let go her arm; his hand dropped to the back of the sent and he drew it up quickly.

"Harriet, there's blood here!" She did not reply. He stared at her

He jumped from the ear and ran to the assembled men. They called in answer to his shout, and she could see a tank pointing out to them the way Earon had some. The men, senttering themselves at intervals along the edge of the wood and molest each direction to watch the road, becold lands to her face; then, recalling how just you Eaton's hand had clungto bers she pressed them to her ling. Avery came running back to her.

"You drove him out here, Harriet!" he charged.

"Hun? Who?" she asked coolly. "Eaton. He was hurt!" The triumph in the ejaculation made her recoil. "He was burt and could not drive, and you drove him out."

He lett ber, running after the men into the woods. She sat in the car, listening to the sounds of the hunt. She had no immediate fear that they would find Eaton; her present anxiety was over his condition from his burts and what might happen if he encountered those he had been pursuing. In that neighborhood, with its woods and bushes and ravines to furnish cover, the durkness made discovery of himby Avery and his men impossible if Eaton wished to hide himself Avery appeared to have realized this; for now the voices in the woods reased and the men began to struggle back foward the cars. A party was sont on from across the ravine, evidently to guard the road beyond. The rest becan to clamber into the cars. She
