ARRANGE TO PULL TOGETHER

Citizens of Kansas City, Kan., Pool All Interests for the Benefit of the Community.

The various improvement associations of Kansas City, Kan., are pointing the way to a big way. The associations represent many separate districts of the city; each has been pulled for this or that improvement here and there. The result has not been satisfactory. It has consisted of a little spreading up of different sections in a haphazard fashion.

Now the associations propose to pull together. They demonstrated their ability to cooperate when a permanent organization of citizens of all interests was formed. The idea is a pooling of interests; a united pull to secure benefits, not on a city-wide basis, but on a district basis. It is a pull of all interests in a district, and not a pull of all interests in the city.

WARNS OF RAILWAY CROSSING

FOLLOWING IN OUR FOOTSTEPS

With three times more territory than the United States, Latin America has at present about the same population as the United States. In 1900, namely, 80 million. But her foreign commerce today is twice what ours was 20 years ago. In the hundredth year of the independence of the United States we had a population of 50 million and foreign commerce of one and one-half billion dollars. Latin America has just celebrated the centennial of her independence, and her population is 80 millions, with a foreign commerce of five billion dollars, writes Samuel G. Inman in Current History.

Can anyone doubt that with more rapid transportation, more scientific machinery and a greater economic efficiency, and with three times the territory, Latin America will make at least the same record in the next 40 years as the United States did from 1800 to 1900? That would mean a population of 150 millions and a foreign commerce exceeding 10 billion dollars in 1940.

One of the wonders of nations on this continent is the career of our own American land of beautiful white plains, called the "Midwest" in the north. The westward movement and the westward movement of the land has been a long one. It has been a long one. It has been a long one. It has been a long one.

GROWING USE OF CONCRETE

The growth of the Portland cement industry in this country is one of the marvels of our industrial development. In 1922, we were told, only 20,000 barrels of cement were produced in the United States. One hundred years later we are believing an annual production of 100,000,000 barrels. Concrete has innumerable uses for the construction of houses, public buildings, skyscrapers, wharves, grain elevators, dams, bridges, public highways and other structures in which strength and durability must be combined.

As the demand for cement expands at the rate of millions of barrels each year, formerly cement was manufactured at certain centers widely separated where the product had to be shipped at great expense to distant localities. Now the industry has spread until no point is remote from a center of production. Alabama is one of the places in which to enter upon the production of cement, and it is already attracting attention as a source to be reckoned with.

As her timber reaches the South is turning to her substantial resources and is preparing to speed cement in line of the timber which the nation has been so lavish in its use and abuse. It is a good thing that the depletion of southern forests, but it is gratifying to note that the South's part in the supply country process is not a small one.

The names of our most noted statesmen, including as they do the difference between noble and more noble, are familiar to those who have had a chance to read the history of our country. It is not to be believed that the names of our statesmen are not in the hands of the people. It is not to be believed that the names of our statesmen are not in the hands of the people.

The United States Coal commission announced that testimony has been given before it that the price of coal is too high. If they were any more of the same kind of testimony, the coal owners will give them a line on 10,000,000 expert witnesses.

Government salaries are so small in Switzerland that a competent citizen cannot be expected to take on an official position as anything but a side line. The film industry takes the business position that people will go to see a performer who amuses, even though they do not admire him personally.

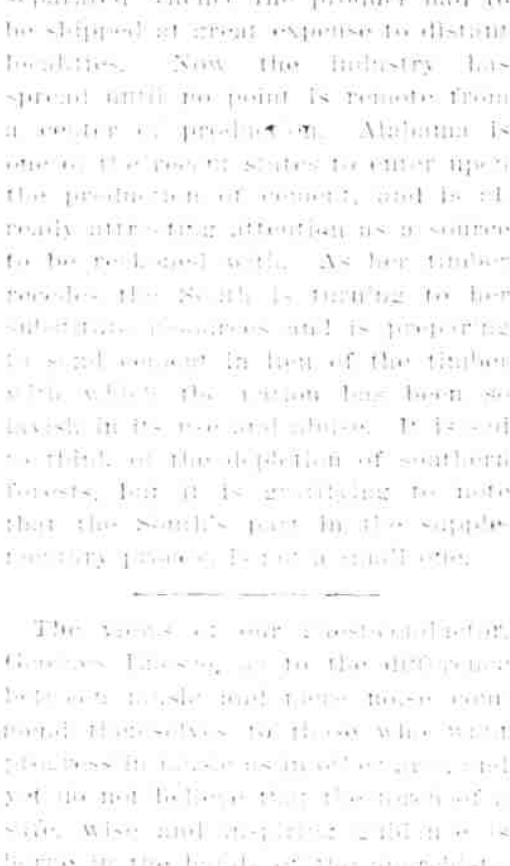

AS NATIONAL SHRINE

DAUGHTERS OF AMERICAN REVOLUTION SAVE MONTPELLIER.

Home of General Henry Knox, Revolutionary Patriot, Will Be Reproduced Exactly as It Was.

General Knox chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, announces that it is well under way in its campaign to procure the necessary funds with which to reconstruct as a national shrine, Montpelier, the old home of Gen. Henry Knox.

Although the buildings comprising Montpelier were razed in 1871, the chapter is in possession of complete plans, printings, and drawings of both the interior and exterior, from which

FINDS HUSBAND'S DEAD BODY

Remains of Man, Dead About a Month, Discovered in Box in Tin-Smith Shop.

New York.—The body of Charles G. Service was found jammed in a box behind the counter of his tin-smithing shop in Brooklyn, by his wife, Mrs. Mary Gordon Service and Louis Strittwolf. An ambulance surgeon said that the man had been dead about a month.

The box is about four and a half feet long, two feet deep and two feet high. It was closed and the husband was down over the staple when Strittwolf unlocked the door of the shop and found it behind the counter. Probably nothing will be known of the manner or cause of death until an autopsy has been performed.

Mrs. Service told the police that her husband frequently left her and stayed away for weeks at a time and that the last time he went away was two and a half months ago. She visited his shop several times but found nothing to lead to any clue. She had a key which she had given to a friend who was notified. He included the box and the body was found.
