REVIVAL SERVICES

The revival services at the Methodist church have begun most auspiciously.

Two strongly spiritual services were held on Sunday with large congregations.

The cottage prayer meetings are being continued this week. At the Monday night service the superintendents of all the districts were present and reported well attended, interesting meetings in spite of Monday morning being such a busy time with every housewife. The time of these meetings is from 9:30 to ten o'clock each morning.

At the Monday night service Mr. Welch's subject was "Fishers of Men." His sermon was full of inspiration to every follower of Christ to cast out the line and bring others to Christ through individual efforts.

The music is a special feature of the service. There is a good orchestra, two pianos and a large chorus.

Miss Hosford has organized a "Booster Chorus" of young boys and girls. They met for the first time Monday afternoon with more than a hundred children present as a result of Miss Hosford's visit to the school Monday Morning.

No effort is being made to have a sensational "boom revival." The aim is for a deeper spirituality in the lives of professed christians and the real conversion of the unsaved.

One of the features of the meeting is the cooperation and christian fellowship of all the churches. At the Sunday morning service a letter was read from Rev. C. D. Chapman praying God's blessing on the meeting that it might result in a quickening of life in all the churches. This letter aroused the deepest feeling of appreciation.

The community is fortunate in getting Miss Hosford in its midst for two weeks. She is a regularly ordained Baptist minister, a graduate of Crozier Theological Seminary. Her work so far has been in directing the music. At each service she has sung a solo carrying a wonderful message to the hearts of her hearers.

BOX SUPPER AT LAKE TOXAWAY

On Friday night, April 18 there was a Box Supper and cake contest at the Lake Toxaway school house.

An interesting contest followed when the cake for the prettiest girl was put up. Misses Raleigh Raines and Mamie Bowlie being the popular girls, the former winning.

We realized the sum of $118.00 from the boxes and cake. The highest box brought fourteen dollars.

The school will close May 7. The entertainment will begin Tuesday night May 6. The childrens program will be given that night.

The High School will give a play and chorus the last night. "The Poor Married Man" is the play to be given.

Everybody is cordially invited.

ATTEMPTED JAIL DELIVERY

On Monday evening a daring attempt at escape from the jail was made by A. V. Burchfield and Wad Bowers.

Both were convicted and sentenced at the last term of court. Burchfield was given two years on the roads for selling liquor, Bowers was sentenced on two counts, assault with intent to kill, two years on the roads, interfering with officer two years on the roads.

The suspicion of officers was aroused and upon investigation it was found that two iron bars had been sawed from a window and a rope was in readiness for use, made by knotting together blankets and towels.

The men were locked in a secure cell from which it will be impossible for them to escape.

"COME OUT OF THE KITCHEN"

Play at the School auditorium under Bettement auspices, Saturday May 10th., eight p. m.

This popular and attractive drama will be presented by a carefully trained cast of students from Weaver college on Saturday night May 10th.. The entertainment is sponsored by the Betterment Association which shares in the proceeds.

It is a play all will enjoy. A love story mingled with fun and humor carries an irresistible appeal.

Come out on Saturday night enjoy yourself to the utmost and help the Betterment raise funds for its many activities, chief of which is the care of the physical welfare of our school children by providing those things which minister to their health and comfort in the class rooms and their physical development on the play ground.

Mr. C. H. Trowbridge, former Superintendent of Brevard Institute and now president of Weaver college will accompany his young players to Brevard.

Tickets for the play at popular prices. School children 25 cents Adults 35 cents, and reserved seats 50 cents.

THE BAKERY MOVING

Mr. George Phillips is moving his bakery from the old building on Main street to his handsome new quarters on Jordan street.

The finishing up of the new building was done by Mr. George Hayes. The windows are especially attractive in their arrangement. There are many convenient cases built in the counters.

Particular attention has been paid to sanitary features in the construction of the kitchen.

There is a large basement for quarters.

Upstairs are commodious living storage.

Mr. Phillips emancipated the women from home baking and they should be deeply grateful to him.

If unexpected guests arrive every body knows where to go for bread, rolls, cakes or pies.

We wish Phillips' Bakery much success in its new quarters.

J. M. HAMLIN WRITES

aspirations for office were always defeated. J. H. Duckworth and William Aiken, both well competent were candidates for register of Deeds; Esq. B. F. Aiken offered himself as a candidate for representative in the legislature, all were defeated by Road men, not a member of the select court, no county commissioners ever halled from this part of the county, save in the first organization of the county, Col. John Clayton who was largely instrumental in securing the county was made a member of the first court.

This condition of affairs very soon led to the agitation for a new county embracing upper French Broad. To every session of the general assembly a petition to this effect was presented but was as often defeated. The representative were anti-River men in every case. While these efforts and reverses were transpiring, there was growing among the River men a bright aspiring lad who it was supposed felt no interest in the unpleasant character of local politics. He attended and graduated from Wake Forest college studied law and located in Hendersonville, built up a lucrative practice and became from his personal worth, very popular. The man alluded to was Joseph Pinckney Jordan, who in 1860 became a candidate for representative in the house of commons. Esq. B. F. Aikens from upper French Broad was also a candidate. Jordan promised the people to do his utmost for the new county and was largely supported by the upper faction and unanimously by the lower. Other aspirants had heretofore made the same promise but failed in their legislative efforts because of alleged inability to remove strong opposition brought to bear on the legislature by the Road party. Jordans promise therefor did not alarm the enemies of the new county but inspired its friends. Jordan was easily elected proved true to his trust, overcome opposition, had the electic pleasure of witnessing the ratification of the act of February 15 1861 that made Transylvania a county of North Carolina.

Among the early pioneers of this county there were three brothers said to have been born in England They were Rev. Robert Archibald and Joseph Jordan. Robert settled on the Hunter place, Archibald owned the J. E. Duckworth place and Joseph a farm near Blantyre. These gentlemen were noted for industry, quietness, self reliance and some oddities. Hon. Joseph Pinckney Jordan was the son of Joseph and Hannah Jordan and was born about 1825. He inherited the push industry and some modified family traits. He had a thirst for an education but saw no way to obtain by his own exertion. In his day the leading and surest way of accumulating money was by making corn, raising pigs and yearlings and selling them to less provident neighbors. This was a slow process for a boy at odd times to secure means sufficient to attend college, but this he did with some help, it is said from his brother Tom. He was the third man from the River section to obtain a profession and the first to remain with his compeers.

He was a man of strong individuality, independent thinker dependable in all relations of life, in religion he was a Baptist, in politics, a whig conservative but not dogmatic.

Immediately after the adjournment of the legislature Mr. Jordan hastened back to Hendersonville but probably never passed the line he so gloriously set between the River and Road men farther than the residence of his father. He was in haste to enter the service of his country; so much so his friends were precluded the coveted opportunity of extending and he of ever knowing their deep appreciation of the work he wrought.

He forewith set about to and succeed in raising a volunteer company for the Confederate Army which was mustered in as company G, 35 regiment N. C. T. of which he was commissioned captain Oct. 5, 1861. He was taken sick in the swamp near New Berne, removed to a hospital just before the city was surrendered, never regained his health and died April 23, 1862. Where he was buried, this writer does not know. It would be well for the U. D. C. to investigate and honor the grave where it may be found.
