

FIRST PLACE IS GIVEN TO LACE; SCARF WIELDS MAGIC OF CHARM

AS FIRST aid to costume charm lace leads fashion's roll of honor. Silken dresses made up with lace dyed exactly to match are presented this season in a galaxy of entrancing models. Especially combined with crepe de chine is lace, an ally of all that is most lovely in the frock of summer inspiration.

To the lure of lace and silk is added the magic of exquisite color, dresses expectation, but it is making a record for itself. It takes two to produce the picture, namely the scarf itself and the wearer thereof. It would, indeed, be presumption on the part of any dictator to attempt to coach a lady on the art of wearing the scarf. She has the situation well in hand. It is an inborn gift, a knack, a matter of feminine intuition, this wielding of the scarf about fair shoulders with a being fashioned in monotone ecru, almond green, citron, narcissus, peach or apricot, beige, while two of the most popular shades of the season are gray and poudre bleu. It is the latter delectable coloring which enhances the charm of the frock pictured. The top portion of the straight crepe de chine slip is plaided with tucking. The lace skirt is of the identical beautiful blue as the crepe. Broad rainbow-stripe ribbon is used for the sash. This model is ideal for afternoon formal occasions and for evening wear; it serves with equal charm.

In many of the lovely tinted georgette frocks the lace of same color is dquancy and coquetry which causes every onlooker to bow in admiration. Genius, too, is at its best in the creation of the scarf. It requires but nimble fingers, crafty hand-stitchery and material of any sort, all these guided by the power of imagination to produce lovely scarves.

Inset as rows of insertion or in diamond-shaped motifs, the entire finely plaited from neck to hem. Ties of lace ruffle georgette or crepe de chine straightline frocks, but in every instance the style requirement is that the lace be accurately matched to the fabric.

The scarves in the picture are inspirational to those who would fashion their own. The one to the left is fashioned of gray supple satin lined with white. Notice the latticework at one end with a handmade medallion at the other from which is a tremendous tassel made of skeins of gray and white floss intermingled. It looks as

Quite a few of these enchanting chiffon and lace frocks are accompanied with wide scarfs to match. The scarf's the thing. All fashiondom has enthusiastically turned scarfward. Indeed a costume without a scarf is a rare sight this season. A heap of responsibility is imposed on the scarf these days. It is depended upon by stylists to wield a sort of magic which shall convert the simplest frock or wrap into an ensemble of irresistible charm and chic. Not only is the scarf beautiful proving up to

Guard at New York State Penitentiary Suffered Ten Years From Catarrh

Now Well He Used PE-RU-NA

Mr. Charles S. Many, 12 Water St., Ossining, N. Y., writes:—"I had catarrh for ten years, tried a lot of medicines, spent a lot of money, but it did me no good. Instead of getting better I grew worse. My eyes were bloodshot, my nose smelled bad, and I would get so dizzy I would be forced to catch hold of something to keep from falling. I used about ten bottles of Pe-ru-na and am cured of catarrh, the dizzy feeling has left me and I am not bothered any more. I keep Pe-ru-na in the house and when I feel a cold coming on I take a little. It does me good."

How Mme. Thiers Saved the Scraps

A striking instance of the frugality of the Thiers household was given by "Le Petit Homme Rouge" in his "Republican France." In the winter of 1872, when M. Thiers, though occupying the Elysee, was residing at Versailles, the author had occasion to call there on the morning after an official reception.

The commissary of the palace, to whom he was talking, was called away by a message that Madame Thiers had arrived. When he came back he explained that the lady and her sister invariably returned to Paris on the morrow of a reception in order to lunch off the remains of the dinner or supper of the previous night.

"The journey costs them nothing," he said, "for they travel at the expense of the state, and when they have lunched they carry all the food which still remains uneaten to Versailles." In proof of his statement he led the author to a window and showed him the palace servants unloading baskets and parcels from the brougham of Madame Thiers.

Much of common sense consists in simply doing nothing when there is a row on.
