IT'S EASY TO PAY FOR A CHEVROLET, "ASK WHIT" AT

VOTE FOR JOHN W. DAVIS

DEMOCRATIC SUCCESS ONLY BAR TO FUTURE THIRD PARTY (Special Correspondence.) In a long and thoughtful editorial entitled, "How to Head Off a Third Party," the New York Times analyzes the present political situation, discusses the significance of the attempt of the LaFollette group to control government, by blocking it, and urges the election of John W. Davis as the safe course to progressiveness without the risk of paralysis. The New York Times is an independent journal of conservative views and in general is not unfriendly to the Republican party. This editorial is taken to reflect the opinions of a good many Independents and Republicans for whom the Times often speaks. After reminding its readers in effect that the spread of the La Follette movement is likely to be more rapid and disturbing following the presidential election, the Times says: "They (LaFollette and his followers) do not expect to win this year's election. The utmost they hope for is to prevent anybody from getting a majority in the Electoral College. But afterward, should the resulting confusion and the crystallizing of discontents into votes warrant the formation of a Third Party, one will be formed. That constitutes a political peril still distant but visibly threatening." The outcome of this movement, the Times believes, would be a "division among our citizens, not according to sectional lines or political principles, but according to the supposed interest of a single body among our citizenship." There would be the danger also, as the Times sees it, that either the Republican party or the Democratic party would be tempted or terrorized into a merger with the new group, thus repeating in the United States the recent and current history of political parties in England. "What can be done to prevent it?" the Times inquires, and declares that, "Whatever is to be done must be done quickly. It is a thing which must be taken in hand before the coming presidential election. For it is obvious that its result will powerfully and perhaps decisively affect the political situation and the alignment of parties for years to come. With this in mind, how shall independent voters, accustomed to swear by no political masters, cast their ballots next November? The question comes down to this—will the success of the Republican party, or that of the Democratic party, tend more to weaken and break up the weight of the Third Party movement? In our opinion, the weight of this particular argument is in favor of the Democratic party. The editorial points out that "the Republican party has come to stand in the public mind as the party predominantly of the well-to-do, of conservatives who dread all change, of people who live in constant fear that their property rights may be impaired and their special privileges cut down," and that the "return of that party to power would promptly inflame the resentment and feed the agitations upon which the Third Party will be built, if at all." "If the Democratic party wins," says the Times, "the case will be plainly different. By tradition and inheritance, that party numbers within its ranks many more than the Republicans can pretend to of those representing the very kind of political material which Senator LaFollette hopes to draw to his support. If these men and women see the Democratic party successful in the election, they will cling to it and work through it. They will seek in that party agency a means by which workingmen can be more represented in the Government without endeavoring to absorb the whole of it. Say what we will, the long history of the Democrat party has been marked by a constant attempt to give due expression to the aspirations of the great masses of the people. . . . It is a fair inference therefore, that the Democratic party triumphing in the Presidential election would have a much better chance than its rival to avert or greatly weaken a disrupting and demoralizing third party movement." The editorial declares that: "The question is one for patriotic citizens, be they Republicans or Democrats, to consider conscientiously for themselves." These citizens can not shut their

OUR RALEIGH COMMUNICATION

Raleigh, N. C., Sep. 22.—Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, brought a message of cheer to North Carolina democrats on Thursday evening. Speaking to an audience numbering at least five thousand, at the city auditorium, the Senator set the pace for a speaking campaign which will hearten party adherents from one end of the State to the other. The Senator stated at the outset that he did not expect to make a speech and came only to indulge in a heart to heart talk with his fellow democrats. He went on to say that he enjoyed nothing better than speaking to democrats, except standing on the floor of the United States Senate and telling the republicans what he thought of them. But he did make a speech and an effective speech at that. He disavowed any intention of a complete review of the entire unsavory record of the republican party, as that was impossible. The republicans, the senator declared, were swept into power four years ago on a wave of discontent, and promises, not a single one of which has been redeemed. Many democrats were deluded into "following the crowd" in 1920, but came back by the thousands two years later. This year they are returning by the millions. The Senator eloquent in recounting the amazingly fine record of the democratic party under the leadership of Woodrow Wilson and declared the party had this year named the equal of its great leader in 1912, and 1916. John W. Davis, he said, is by character and training the best man the party could have named as its nominee for president, and all signs point to his election in November. The people can not survive on promises, they want performance, he shouted, and democracy will live up to expectations in every particular. The speaker took President Coolidge to task for his failure to exercise the power vested in him to reduce tariff rates, especially on sugar and other necessities. He flayed the republicans for raising the tariff rate on cash registers shortly after the president of the corporation that manufactures them had given $80,000 to the republican campaign fund, and for adding a duty to the manufacture of chewing gum after "Billy" Wrigley had given his check for $25,000. He paid his respects to various forms of corruption which have been saddled upon the present administration, called names and recited instances which confirmed the truth of his allegations. Senators Simmons and Overman, and the entire delegation in the House from North Carolina, were commended for their efforts to compel the enactment of legislation in the interest of the whole people, rather than yielding to the pleadings of special privilege. Senator Simmons was highly praised for the tax plan he worked out and which was finally accepted over the protest of Secretary Mellon and the republican majorities of both the Senate and the House of Representatives. Senator Harrison freely predicted the election of Davis and Bryan and a democratic Senate. His views are not in accord with those who fear a dead lock in the electoral college or in the House of Representatives. He feels that the democrats are going to win at the polls and handed out a line of convincing talk to sustain his contention. The pleasing and convincing way in which Senator Harrison presented the democratic cause has awakened interest anew in the ranks of the party hereabouts. He brought the right message, at exactly the right time. There will be a McCall reunion at Little River Church the first Sunday in October. All the McCall's of Transylvania and Henderson Counties are invited to bring baskets and come. eyes to the fact that "the Democrats have taken for leader this year a man of unblemished character and unusual capacity," says the Times. "If he is chosen President and has a united and eager party at his command, it will go hard but he will be able to head off any large movement of the dissatisfied. On the other side, there is at least a strong likelihood that a Republican victory would be followed by an extravagant and dangerous political agitation in the United States."

BREVARD - MILLS RIVER - ASHEVILLE

JOINT MEETING AT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE ON TUESDAY NIGHT. Following the mass meeting at Mills River last week in the interest of a through highway from Brevard to Asheville, via Mills River, the committees appointed from the counties interested held a joint meeting in Brevard last Tuesday evening, at the Chamber of Commerce. In addition to the local committee, about half of the members of the Chamber of Commerce were present, as well as several cars of visitors from Mills River and beyond. There was a general discussion of the road, from all angles, and special discussion as to conditions in Mills River and Henderson Counties, by Messrs Cathey, Fowler and Greenwood. Committees were appointed to secure additional data required for the next meeting, and a special committee to make arrangements with the Buncombe committee and the Buncombe authorities for a mass meeting to be held in Asheville. As this goes to press, the committees are meeting in Asheville, to arrange for a mass meeting to be held in that place, either next week, or within the first few days in October. BENEFIT EPWORTH LEAGUE The famous picture entitled: The Shepherd King will be shown on Monday and Tuesday Sept. 29 and 30 at the Auditorium in Brevard, N. C. Four shows starting at 2 p. m. CARD OF THANKS The many friends of Mrs. W. T. Bossee and family wish to express their sincerest thanks to Corporal Elmer D. Miller who escorted the body of Corporal Ernest Bossee to Brevard. It is understood that the two officers were the closest friends, and this is evidenced by the fact that Corporal Miller showed great respect and untiring courtesy in answering questions concerning Ernest's army life. FAMILY DAY AT METHODIST SUNDAY SCHOOL, SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1924. It is the hope of all that are interested in the work of the Sunday School that there will put forth a special effort to have every member of the family—father, mother, and all the children present on the above date at 9:45 A. M. Will the parents bring the children. It is good to send them, it is far better to bring them. We will look for you—we shall be disappointed if you are not there. If Sunday School is a good thing for the community, then it is your duty to help support it. Officials of the Sunday School. BIBLE CLASS RESOLUTIONS FOR MRS. LOFTIS Whereas Brother T. W. PATTERSON'S WILL BE CLOSED MONDAY AND TUESDAY ON ACCOUNT OF RELIGIOUS HOLIDAY.

Wm. A. BAND WILL TAKE OVER TIMES COMMERCIAL PRINT SHOP

(Hendersonville Daily Times) William A. Band, editor of the Brevard News since 1917 will take charge of the Times Commercial Job Printing Plant on October 1. In this connection, it may be briefly announced that the commercial printing shop will have new equipment, and will be ready to print any thing from a card to a book. Mr. Band is another one of those forward looking men who has seen the vision of Hendersonville's future and he is after long consideration a firm believer in the great possibilities of the community. He has been in Brevard for the past seven years, and succeeded Loyal Hollowell, now editor of the Hendersonville News. At the time of this occasion, Mr. Band was one of the youngest editors in the state. The plant at that time was worth $3,300. It is worth several times that amount, all due to the aggressive constructiveness of Mr. Band's activities. His ability as a business man, combined with his journalistic work have enabled Mr. Band to do much toward the promotion of Brevard. He is at all times an ardent booster for his state, county, and town. He has been a prominent leader in the advancement of good roads, better schools and the "Trade and Home Program." Mr. Band has a wide and varied experience in the printing and publishing industry, despite the fact that he is still quite a young man. Canadian born, his early experience in this country was with the American Sales Book company, at Niagara Falls, N. Y. This is one of the largest commercial printing houses in the United States. He was later for a period of seven years connected with the mammoth firm of Band and White, printers, at Spartanburg, S. C. Altogether, he has had nearly twenty years experience in the printing business, and has been in the South for a period of sixteen years. Mr. Band is a North Carolinian by adoption, and by the choice of a wife. He married a native born and reared at Flat Rock, N. C., and his four children are American by birth. At the September term of United States Court, Judge Webb presiding, Mr. Band swore allegiance to this country and became a full citizen of the United States. In politics, Mr. Band is a democrat. His paper, the Brevard News, has however, been operated as an independent publication, and has been an accurate reflection of its owners' conscientious belief in fair play. CARD OF THANKS Mrs. W. Bossee and family wish to express their deepest thanks for the many helpful services, the beautiful floral contributions, and the expression of sympathy shown to them in their recent great bereavement. ROCKWOOD - KING Friends in the city will be interested to learn of the marriage of Miss Jessie King of this city to Mr. Alvin Rockwood of Boston, Mass., in New York city on September 17. Mr. Rockwood comes from one of New England's wealthiest and oldest families and is a direct descendant of John Alden of Mayflower fame. He received his education at Cushing Academy, Lowell Inst. and Wentworth. Upon completion of his education at Wentworth, he expects to go abroad where he has accepted a position as Chief Draftsman of a large oil concern. Mrs. Rockwood, before her marriage, was Miss Jessie King. She has hosts of friends who wish her happiness, as she was one of the most popular of the younger set. Her family is well represented in the D. A. R. of the Florence Chapter, Florence, S. C., and prominently connected throughout the South. The couple will make their home in Boston. BAPTIST CHURCH NEWS A week of prayer is being observed all over the south by the Baptist churches for the victorious completion of the 75 million campaign. This week is being observed at the Baptist church here. Each night a different organization within the church has charge of the program. A very helpful, instructive and interesting program is rendered. On Tuesday night the little Sunbeams had the program and everyone enjoyed it. The leader and those who helped deserve commendation. Mrs. W. H. Righton, the leader with Mrs. Moore, and Mrs. J. A. Bishop worked faithfully so did Mrs. Perd Osborne. Mrs. Osborne used her car to help in getting golden rods and other flowers with which the church was decorated. On Wednesday night the program will be in charge of the G. As. So also on Thursday night the G. As. demonstration. Friday night the Y.

THE PRAYER CORNER

Our Glad Brief Summer It is not until the last golden days of September are slipping away, that we begin to realize that our glad brief summer has gone, never to return. True, we have felt the keen little breezes blowing, the nights have grown cooler, and the mornings and evenings take on a mistiness which is as faint and purpling as the bloom on a ripened plum. Oh let not the season drift by without leaving some token of its presence! Give to some heart a harem of joy, or touch of love, or a waterlily of purity, to have and to hold during all the winter days to come. Let no season go by without keeping some mementos of it. Happy is he who can gather blessings in a time of plenty, and scatter them in a time of need. Praise God for the glad brief summer days that have gone, for even the grasses praise God. There is not a blade among them but has a tiny mission to perform, and not one of them but is large enough to hold a drop of dew, what an example for us! when we complain that our strength is too small for the burden laid upon us, why do we not trust our Father to uphold us, and give us the power to carry dew drops of love for our fellow men? Little smiles as we pass each other by, a touch of the hand, a word of sympathy, a tear—ah, what bright drops of heavenly dew they are! The merest grass, Along the roadside where we pass, Lichen, and moss, and sturdy weed, Tell of His love who sends the dew, The rain and sunshine too, To nourish one small seed. A Prayer O God and Father of us all, let not the Glad Brief Summer drift by without leaving some token of its presence with us. Give to our hearts a harem of joy or a bunch of love, or a waterlily of purity, to have and to hold during all the winter days, let no season go by without our keeping some mementos of it. Happy shall we be if we can gather blessings in a time of plenty to scatter them in a time of need. Help us to praise Thee, our God, for the glad brief summer days that have gone, for even the grasses praise Thee. We know that there is not a blade among them but has a tiny mission to perform, and not one of them but is large enough to hold a drop of dew. Let them be an example for us, when we complain, as we often do, that our strength is too small for the burden laid upon us, then help us to trust Thee, our Father, to uphold us, and give us the power to carry dew drops of love for our fellow men,— little smiles as we pass each other by a touch of the hand, a word of sympathy, a tear, Oh! what bright drops of heavenly dew they are! and this we ask in the name of Him who was so tender and compassionate and helpful, our Blessed Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, Amen. C. D. C. CARD OF THANKS Corporal Elmer D. Miller, who came to Brevard on such a sad mission, desires to express his appreciation of all the kindness shown him by the friends of the bereaved family. W. As. will be in charge of the program. A pagent on christian education. On Saturday the fourth of October the women of the Woman's Missionary Union of Transylvania Baptist Association will have their first independent association. It is to meet with the church at Brevard. Women from all over the county are expected to be here representing their churches and societies. The services will begin at 10:00 A. M., and close early in the afternoon with dinner served at the church. Those from outside our association who are expected to be here are as follows: Mrs. C. A. Klutz, Div. Supt. from Asheville. Mr and Mrs A. R. Gallimore from Hakkas, China; Misses Miller and Heatt who are now teaching at Fruitland Institute. These last were trained in the W. M. U. Training School at Louisville, Ky. They know the work of the women both from experience and training. It is earnestly hoped that a good delegation from all the churches will be present. Rev. Wallace Hartsell, pastor of Brevard Baptist Church will preach next Sunday Sept. 28th, at 3 P. M.
