and read that thrilling story of Robinson Crusoe, how he left his home in York, England, when he was 19 years of age, and on September 1st, 1651, sailed for the coast of Africa. If you have forgotten the story, ask any boy or girl how breathlessly and anxiously they followed the adventures of Robinson Crusoe! Leaving Africa, Crusoe sailed in another ship for Brazil and became a rich sugar planter. Again sailed for a second trip to Africa, Crusoe's ship was wrecked and everyone on board except Crusoe, was drowned. Crusoe was washed ashore on a desert Island—constructed his famous raft, met his black man Friday and lived on that Island until December 19, 1686, when he sailed for England, arriving June 11, 1687, after an absence of 35 years! But there's a part of Robinson Crusoe's story that is especially interesting and thrilling. It's where he made his many attempts to signal a ship, so that he could get back to England. Crusoe made desperate efforts to get a ship. (He fixed up a ship on a rising hill of rock, which commanded a good view of the sea so that if any ship came in it flying day after day. He did not leave it up for only a while and then take it down,—but he kept everlastingly at the job of getting a ship, and finally did! Robinson Crusoe was a great advertising man—that is why Crusoe succeeded in getting his ship.
