

LIFE SKETCH OF G. W. WOODWARD

On June 12, 1845, in the town of Fayetteville, N. C., George W. Woodward was born. Educated in the schools of his native town and finished at Trinity college. Entered the Confederate army, Company F, Fifty-first regiment, Clingman's brigade, Hoke's division, in 1863. Was wounded at Bermuda Hundred, Va. Resumed service and was in the last battles of the war.

At the age of 15 he joined the Methodist church, in which faith and church he lived and died, and throughout all the years he attended upon her ordinances.

On May 7, 1868, he was married to Miss Della E. White at Chapel Hill, N. C. He resided in Durham, N. C., from 1881 to 1919, during which time he held the office of clerk of the city board. He moved to Brevard, N. C., in 1919, and died October 9, 1924, and his body was carried to Durham, N. C., and interred in Maplewood cemetery.

He leaves a widow, Mrs. Della E. Woodward, of Brevard, N. C.; a daughter, Mrs. C. C. Thomas, of Durham, N. C.; three sons, G. J. Woodward of Greenville, N. C., F. W. Woodward of Atlanta, Ga., and J. A. Woodward of Hendersonville, N. C.; four sisters, Mrs. W. T. Whitehead of Enfield, N. C., Mrs. D. A. McMillan and Miss Alice Woodward, both of Fayetteville, N. C., and Mrs. G. H. Hall, of Red Springs, N. C.

George W. Woodward was a gentleman and a scholar, and he lived and died a true lover of the old and the new south. He loved his native state as few men do. He believed in those great things advocated by the best minds of his beloved southland and in the atmosphere of the old southern home he grew and thrived strong, saturated with a love for his country that never for a moment waned.

A man of remarkable memory, he could discourse freely and fluently of the happenings of bygone years and there was no North Carolinian of note that grew up in his day and generation whose biography was not known to him. He loved her poets and her scholars, and all other things that has made North Carolina great were dear to him. He loved his church with a devotion that is seldom seen, and until he became afflicted, he was ever present. He was a Bible student and from this great volume he gathered manna for daily needs.

He bore the impress of a soldier and followed the south's great leaders through the stormy period of the sixties that tried the souls of all true southerners. He was permitted to stand above the smoking ruins of a prostrated south and to vision a new day that should call her back to her own. The privilege was his before he was called hence to see a new day and a new south and see this Dixie domain stand at the head of the column; struggling villages growing into prosperous cities and the places once devastated by fire and sword and musket becoming the habitation of peace and prosperity; and steep and winding wagon ways replaced by a system of great highways that have threaded all sections of this great state. It has been the lot of but few men to see such wonderful transformations take place, and it did him good to stand, Moses-like, with eye undimmed and mental strength unweakened, and view a strong, sturdy and happy section where the dearest traditions of our great country still abide.

George W. Woodward is gone but not forgotten. The splendid character that he fought for and maintained, the gentle and manly qualities that were his, shall live on in the hearts of those who knew him best.

When that peerless monument, Stone Mountain, whose builder and maker is God, shall have been completed and shall become the mecca for all true lovers of the old south and her matchless heroes, it will present to the world one of the mightiest undertakings of all time, and the living, breathing spirit of men like George W. Woodward will have a prominent place on this mighty fortress that shall last when the palaces and pyramids of the ancient Pharaohs shall have been forgotten.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY MEETS

The American Legion Auxiliary met in the president's office Tuesday, October 7, at 4 o'clock, four members being present: Mrs. Perkins, Mrs. Zachary, Mrs. Macfie and Mrs. Breese.

The secretary read a letter from Mrs. Magette thanking us for the check for $5.65 for the Service room at Washington and the Legion handbook. She also reported sending a check for $2 to the Carolina Creamery for a gallon of ice cream to Ward B-6, Oteen, August 26.

We were asked to sell forget-me-nots on November 8 for the disabled American veterans of the World War, but could take no action in the matter, as there were too few members present to transact any business. However, if any Legion or Legion Auxiliary members or patriotic citizens wish to give anything to this cause, the treasurer will be glad to take charge of the contributions. We are asking all Legion Auxiliary members to make candy to sell at the next Lyceum number, which will be held on October 23. Please send the candy to the president's office any time before 4 o'clock.

MRS. W. E. BREESE,
Secretary-Treasurer.

PROMINENT CITIZEN DIED ON THURSDAY

George W. Woodward, one of the most prominent citizens of Brevard, died Thursday, October 9, at midnight and his body was carried to Durham, N. C., for burial. A more extended notice will be found in this issue of The News.

The sympathy of all who knew this good man goes out to those bereaved relatives who survive him.

TARIFF QUESTION MISUNDERSTOOD

"The average production of sugar in Louisiana is one ton to the acre. The average production in Cuba is four tons to the acre with cheaper labor. It is to make up this difference to a few Louisiana sugar planters that 112,000,000 inhabitants of the United States are taxed 1 3-4 cents a pound on their sugar."—Tampa State Journal.

It is regrettable that the forgoing statement is in line with the misunderstanding that many people have of the sugar tariff. As a matter of fact, Louisiana cane growers are but a small part of the American sugar industry.

A tariff of 1 3-4 cents means $1.75 a hundred pounds. If the average American family uses three sacks of sugar yearly, theoretically it pays $5.25 more for sugar than it might pay if the foreigner did not have to pay this $5.25, as a tariff tax to support our government when he ships his sugar here.

Yet our domestic beet sugar production is the safeguard that prevents us from being completely at the mercy of the foreign sugar producer as to prices. But for the tariff that enables American sugar producers to exist and compete, American consumers would pay a higher price for sugar than they now pay with tariff tax. Also, any reduction in the tax now levied on foreign sugar which aggregates about $100,000,000 a year would have to be made up by increased taxes on American property.

Let the tariff question be understood as a business, not a political issue.
