

MISS MARY HUNT

After two long years of suffering, of being ministered to instead of ministering, the spirit of Mary Hunt was released from its bodily form and joined the loved ones "Over There" on Saturday evening, Feb. 7, at a sanatorium in Asheville.

Miss Hunt was the last of her immediate family, though she leaves several nieces and nephews. Mrs. Maddox, of Lenoir, was with her aunt when the end came. Another devoted niece, Mrs. M. M. Chapman, came from Bradentown, Fla., and accompanied the remain to Brevard, where they were laid to rest beside her parents and beloved brother, the late Dr. C. W. Hunt.

Miss Hunt came with her parents and brother to make her home in Brevard when Dr. Hunt located here in 1881. Most of her time was spent here until the death of her parents.

Like her brother, she chose as her life work, ministry to the sick and suffering. She was a graduate nurse of St. Luke's Hospital, Philadelphia. For the past several years she had made her home in Asheville.

Miss Hunt was highly educated, widely read, and gifted with her pen. Among the many tributes paid Dr. Hunt at his passing last July, none surpassed her "In Memoriam" though at that time she herself was hovering between life and death.

Funeral services were conducted in Asheville by her rector, Rev. Willis G. Clarke, on Sunday. The remains reached Brevard on the 2:35 train Monday and the funeral cortege proceeded immediately from the station to Gillespie's Cemetery, where the commitment service was read by Rev. E. R. Welch, pastor of the Methodist church.

The pallbearers were Messrs. A. E. Hampton, Arthur Jenkins, John W. Duckworth, J. M. Allison, J. H. Pickelsimer, and H. R. Walker.

There were beautiful floral offerings from her co-workers, the nurses of Asheville, and other friends.

LEAGUE SERVES SUPPER

The Epworth League of the Methodist church serves supper at the church each Sunday evening at six-fifteen. All members and prospective members are cordially invited to partake of the lunch, and to remain for the League services immediately afterwards. Fifty-one were present at the last Sunday evening meeting.
