From left to right the couples are: Mrs. and Mr. Groh, Mrs, and Mr. Frisch, Mrs. and Mr. Ryan, Mrs. and Mr. Meusel, Mrs. and Mr. Wilson and Mrs. and Mr. Crump. I held this week in Chicago, the "All Out o' Doors Annual Nature Exhibit." Its purpose is to foster outdoor recreation, and to interest the public in nature study and in the conservation of plant and animal life. "Good Manners Out of Doors" was the subject of general discussion at the annual

This exhibit is important. Many varieties of wild flowers are doomed to extinction unless the American people can be educated to mend their ways. Outdoor recreation is being promoted by many thousands of good Americans who see in it the best antidote for the manifold ills of a civilization too strenuous and complex to be sane and safe.

And our out-of-doors manners are unbelievably and increasingly bad. They are so bad, indeed, that unless her are greatly improved property owners in many parts of the scenic West are likely to establish shotgun quarantine and the camping automobile tourists will be herded into auto camps under police regulation.

DEAD as a doornail is apparently the "protocol of arbitration and security" of the League of Nations. Austen Chamberlain announced its rejection by the British government. M. Briand defended it. Doctor Benes of Czecho-Slovakia proposed that it be referred to the next League assembly in September. This was done. It is the capital's belief that President Coolidge will call a second arms conference for next fall in Washington in advance of the League assembly. It seems to be the general opinion that security has been solved-which is a problem for European nations rather than for the proposed arms conference.
