News From State Capital

(By M. L. SHIPMAN)

Raleigh, July 13.—Raleigh sweltered during the past week with an average temperature which ranged close to 95 degrees and official circles were unusually quiet. Governor McLean, in order to speak and perhaps get cool, went to Asheville where he encountered temperatures which were not much lower than those of the capital.

The first day of the week, Governor McLean issued a statement showing to what extent the institutions and departments would be allowed to go in the matter of expenditures during the first fiscal year, 1925-26, under the Executive Budget Act. The Department of Public Instruction announced the cost of educating its rural population as compared with city children; the first move toward a decent Union Station for Raleigh was made, farm college editors of the nation met at State College; the national guard encampment opened and various other matters of lesser interest took place.

Governor McLean's figures for the coming budget year show that $10,070,518 will be allowed for general expenditures while bond issues for permanent improvements will amount to $5,125,000. Educational institutions will receive the largest individual shares of the funds as $2,288,132 will be spent for support of the institutions and $2,000,250 for the public school system. In addition, the institutions, meaning the colleges will receive bond issue funds for improvements amounting to $3,619,000. The charitable institutions hospitals will receive $1,669,500 for maintenance and $767,500 for permanent improvements. The reformatories will receive $821,000 for maintenance and 688,500 for permanent improvements.

An exclamation of relief tinged with unbelief went up from the population of Raleigh last week when it became known a survey was being made of a union station site by the city administration which will take the matter to the railroads and see for their co-operation. This means little-Greensboro has been waiting for years for a decent station—but it is a start and the people are hopeful. It is believed that the Capital city should be able to do better by its visitors than with present equipment.

There are six times as many children attending the rural schools, the Department of Public Instruction says, than are attending the city schools, but the amount spent for their education is only about three times as much. In other words, about two dollars is being spent on each city child for one dollar on each country child. North Carolina has done a great deal in education, but it still lags far enough behind other States for the populace to go ahead and act rather than to talk of what has been done. The average spent for education of a school child throughout the nation in 1920 was $4.15 and this has constantly increased. The average spent in North Carolina last year was less than half that amount.

Petroleum products which are brought in through Wilmington, from other States and redistributed in the State must be handled at an intrastate rate rather than inter-state. Judge Meekins held in Federal court last week in deciding a case brought by the oil companies against the railroads. The result may be to reduce somewhat the price of gasoline.

The amount of $38,535.07 has been distributed to the sufferers from the Coal Glen mine disaster in which 53 lost their lives, a statement issued by the Red Cross shows.

The capture of the members of the mob which mutilated Joseph Needleman in Martin County was to have cost the State a large sum in rewards, about $25,000. However, the Governor stipulated the men were to be delivered to State prison when he offered the rewards of $400 each. They were delivered to county authorities and it is not known yet whether the State under the "economy" administration will take advantage of the technicality to refuse to pay the rewards. The matter has been the subject of a conference.

Two hundred and fifty persons registered for the summer courses at State College which is an increase of 65 percent over last year. Several courses are being offered.

With the expected removal of Meredith College to its new home on the Durham road, the old property will be sold at auction this week. It is in a valuable residential section of the city and easily accessible to the main business area.

Jessie Wyatt, Raleigh police officer charged with the murder of S. S. Holt of Smithfield, will go on trial Tuesday if no further legal barriers develop. When first placed on trial the indictment was thrown out because the grand jury had been drawn by a 12 year old boy, whereas the law stipulates 10 years. It is not anticipated there will be further delay. Wyatt shot Holt to death when the latter was a passenger in an auto which the officer believed contained liquor runners. No liquor was found.

The State Board of Agriculture held its semi-annual meeting in the office of Commissioner Graham during the week, heard his report and recommendation and adjourned. In his report the Commissioner stated that he approved going under the budget system and keeping a close check upon departmental expenditures. He also expressed the opinion that too much money is being expended for test farms and recommended the discontinuance of food nutritive tests and that other feeding experiments be taken over by the State College of Agriculture and Engineering. Mr. Graham heartily favors Agricultural vocational work and so whatever appears to be helpful to rural development.

The Salary and Wage Commission is expected to announce results of its investigations during the week and State employees are on the "anxious bench." The Commission has been extended wide powers in the fixing of salaries and considerable changes may be made, although the consensus of opinion seems to be that few salaries will be reduced. Killing "dead timber" will likely cut some figures in the "operations."

SERVICE AND COURTESY PAYS

Service and courtesy are two leading agencies for success. Mercantile and public service organizations recognize their value in business. Following rules are emphasized by the Portland Electric Power Company.

When the customer comes in with a complaint, don't send him or her from pillar to post; that irritates.

Classify all complaints. Study the cause of complaint; eradicate them at their source.

Completeness of your reply is only one half courtesy; the manner of your reply is the other half.

Be polite and pleasant, thus making the party glad he or she called on you.

Show individuality to each customer; make him feel he is Mr. Simpson and not just one of the throng.

Get the other fellow's point of view.

Don't argue, inform.

PATENTS

are being quickly sold to manufacturers and capitalists. If you have an invention, send us a model or sketches for search and report on patentability. Our book on patents and trade-marks sent to any address.
