SOCIETY NEWS

B. Y. P. U. MEETS

The members of the Baptist Young Peoples Union met Tuesday evening, July 14, at the home of Miss Helen Allison, at Hillcrest Tourist Camp.

A delightful evening was spent in the Camp grove with various games, during which ice cream was served. About twenty young people of the church enjoyed this pleasant social affair.

M. F. G. SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS ENJOYS PICNIC

The young ladies of the M. F. G. Sunday School class of the Methodist church enjoyed a picnic party in the Mt. Pisgah Reservation section, Thursday afternoon and evening, July 16. Five cars conveyed the party to their picnic site, where the main features of enjoyment were the jolly pastime of wading in the nearby stream of water and a general time of merriment around a big camp fire, following the bountiful picnic lunch. Twenty-two young ladies, accompanied by their teacher, Mrs. H. A. Plummer, composed this happy group.

T. E. L. CLASS HOLDS SOCIAL

Mrs. W. S. Price and Mrs. S. C. Yates were joint hostesses to the T. E. L. Class of the Baptist church, Tuesday afternoon, July 21, at the home of Mrs. Price on Cascade Avenue.

The program was in charge of Mrs. Clarence Duckworth, who led a most interesting discussion on the subject of "Patience." This was followed by an open discussion in which a number of the ladies present took part.

The class colors of green and white were most attractively carried out in the rooms, and the quantities of Queen Anne's Lace and ferns used added a pleasing touch to the otherwise charming effect of the decorations. The color scheme was further emphasized in the ice cream and cake, which was served by the hostesses during the social hour.

About twenty members were present.

LIBRARY REPORT ENDING WEEK OF JULY 18

The public library continues to show a decided increase in membership and attendance from week to week. Four members have been added to the membership list during the past week, and 168 books were in circulation, with a total attendance for the week of 248. The library is indeed grateful for book donations, which continue to come in each week and which add value and interest to the already valuable library. During the week, two books were donated, one, "The Motorboat Boys Among the Florida Keys," by Lewis Arnold, given by A. J. Johnson; and another, "Georgian's Service Stars," by Annie F. Johnston, given by Mrs. Roland Owen.

THE DOCTOR OF THE FUTURE

A Health Counsellor

The medical schools of many countries, especially, perhaps, those of North America, Great Britain, and to a less degree of Western Continental Europe, are facing several problems of curriculum, of teaching methods, of purpose and of aim. An American committee has been formed to examine the course of study in the United States and to recommend changes. This committee will be expected to find answers to such questions as these: What kind or kinds of doctors ought the medical school to turn out in response to the needs and demands of the public? What should graduates know and be able to do? How best can they be helped to master this knowledge and skill? How can they be given the right attitude toward their work?

Probably three quarters of all doctors today are general practitioners, that is, physicians whose aim it is to recognize diseases, to deal with all the more common maladies by advice and treatment, and to know when to refer patients to specialists. This general practitioner is at present facing many difficulties. The specialist tends to monopolize prestige and to receive relatively much larger fees. Laboratory and hospital facilities which the modern doctor ought to have are expensive and often inaccessible. Sanitation and preventive medicine are restricting and even eliminating diseases like typhoid and malaria, which once afforded a good deal of practice. Free and pay clinics, school and industrial medical services, health insurance under government auspices in Germany and England, hospital associations and all efforts to spread costs of sickness over large population groups, and other forms of social medicine tend to encroach upon what was once the exclusive field of the general practitioner. There are people who assert that this type of physician is doomed; that he will disappear because he cannot compete with the specialist on the one hand and with preventive and social medicine on the other.

Such an outcome is to be viewed with concern. The well trained, properly equipped, experienced general practitioner of ability, character, and personality is a fundamentally valuable person. He is a good diagnostician. He sees his patient as a whole. He knows his peculiarities and circumstances. He can decide when to refer him to a specialist and when to protect him against the very real danger which is threatened by a narrowly specialist point of view. He cheers and encourages, warns and commands. He is not only a physician but a friend and counsellor. The disappearance of the general practitioner would be a serious loss. The stimulating philosophy of individualism with its insistence upon independence, initiative, and ambition seems to be embodied in the general practitioner.

He will survive only if he can win confidence and make a living, but he will have to meet the new conditions. He will have to submit to a measure of team work in the use of laboratories and other to recognize the public demand for sharing costs of sickness and, most important of all, he must become a practitioner of preventive medicine, a counsellor of health, a man who can recognize and correct the minor but important imperfections and ills of the human body.

LINEN SHOWER TO BE GIVEN FOR NEW HOSPITAL

The ladies of the town will give a linen shower for the benefit of Brevard's new hospital at some date next week, the time and place to be announced later. It is the expectation to hold an informal public reception at the same time at the hospital building, with two or more ladies representing each church acting as hostesses for the event. Each one attending will be given the privilege of bringing with her articles of bed linen, towels, or any article nec-
