Archbishop Melchior has been sentenced to three years imprisonment by the Russian supreme court after conviction of counter-revolutionary activities and obstructing the soviet authorities in the confiscation of church treasures in 1917. Five priests of the orthodox church who were tried at the same time were given terms ranging from six months to two years.

Italy maintains that there can be no such thing as liberty. Benito Mussolini, the Italian premier, is reported to have said in a correspondence of the London Daily Express in London. "There is no such thing as liberty," he said. "There is only the freedom of the individual to do as he pleases within the limits of the law."

Two of the most important news items in the world are the discovery of a new element, radium, and the discovery of a new planet, Pluto. The discovery of radium was made by Marie Curie and her husband, Pierre, in 1898. The discovery of Pluto was made by Clyde Tombaugh in 1930.

Washington

The state of E. J. Thomas, a prominent Washington writer, was left in a state of confusion by the will of his late wife, Mrs. E. J. Thomas. The will, which was dated July 2, 1904, directed that his children be educated along lines that their talents and turn of mind suggested.

An investigation by the government's steamboat inspection was ordered the other day into the disaster which befell the steamship Mackinac. Secretary Hoover personally instructed George Fisher, inspector general of the service, to proceed immediately to Providence to go into all phases of the accident and its possible causes and to report back on the results of his inquiry.

John Temple Graves, widely known Georgia writer and publisher, who died in Washington August 5, left his estate to his widow, Mrs. Anne C. Graves. The will, made in Atlanta July 2, 1904, and filed in probate in Washington, directs that his children be educated along lines that their talents and turn of mind suggest.

Returning for a visit to the offices of the army air service in Washington, where he failed of re-appointment as assistant chief, Col. William Mitchell, described as a "mere kindergarten staff" of the war department's anti-aircraft force at Fort Tilden, N. Y. said he "had been a trying to hit the targets with the muzzles of the guns."

The much-debated question of reducing the nation's taxes at the next session of congress appears to be taking a somewhat definite form. That the administration's financial leaders are busily engaged in working out a tax reduction program is indicated from several official sources.

Secretary Mellon has asked that prosecution of Will K. Reynolds of Kansas City on the ground that he has threatened Mr. Mellon be dropped.

Negotiations looking to the funding of Belgium's $480,000 war debt has ended. The debt commissions of the two countries when the agreement was reached found both parties better equipped to proceed than at any time since the work was first started, and this is given as the reason for the settlement of the negotiations.

Admiral Conz, commander in chief of the United States fleet, will be assigned to command the fifth naval district with headquarters in Hampton Roads, Va., on completion of the Atlantic tour of the fleet.

With less than two weeks remaining before the country's new prohibition program goes into effect, the biggest dry conference since the Volstead act became effective has been held here. The announcement expected on the personnel of the decentralized machinery has thus far failed to materialize.

The MacMillan arctic expedition has abandoned hope of carrying out its full exploration program over the polar sea this year. Curtailment of the expedition's activities was forced by adverse weather which has locked the northland in ice and fog well ahead of the usual winter season.

Daniel F. Stock, Democrat, contending for the senate seat now held by Smith W. Brockhart, Republican, had gained 966 uncontested votes when the senate committee completed the count in 55 of the counties which use paper ballots in last year's senatorial election in Iowa.

Proposed new schedules cancelling new joint rates on livestock from Texas points to Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Louisville and certain other related points east of the Mississippi have been ordered suspended by the interstate commerce commission from August 20 to December 15.

ELOQUENT MAN IS MASTER OF MINDS

Wondrous Indeed Is Magic Power of Words.

Bismarck objected to rhetoric, as a barrier to judgment. He was a sledge-hammer speaker himself, relying on a crushing weight of argument, not on subtle finesse, in a debate. Some disputants are wrestlers, some are fencers. He was one of the former, and he felt an instinctive distrust of those who rely on a swift play of wit, like the flashing thrust of a rapier, to confuse and subvert the adversary.

What is the power of words that some men use to captivate and hypnotize their fellows? Many a crook has flourished because he talked so well. The proposal that he brought would never have been the searching analysis of daylight, but he wrapped it in a veil of words, and it took on the glamor of romantic mystery, the light of a fresh dawn of adventure. As he expounded it, it began to seem worth staking the soul upon, the only thing to do in a world of humdrum materialism. If he poured the vials of his scorn upon the liberal horizons of science they seemed to wither and shrivel like dry leaves in a hot sun, but what he approved was made in the mind's own toiling, some like the rose and the lotus, and some like the daisy in a soft green glade.

It was the magic language, beautifully composed, of words conjoined by eloquence to do a master's will. And he who used them so deftly in the music of his voice, he became magnificent in his own eyes and in the eyes of those who listened to him. He was always ready to let others say their say, but he would not let them say anything that he did not approve. He was a man of iron will, and he would not let anyone else say anything that he did not approve.

Not every man of iron will is a great speaker. Many a man of iron will is a great speaker, but many a man of iron will is not a great speaker. Many a man of iron will is a great speaker, but many a man of iron will is not a great speaker. Many a man of iron will is a great speaker, but many a man of iron will is not a great speaker.

IN JAMAICA

Traveling a la Mode in Jamaica.

Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C. NOW that Jamaica is becoming more and more important as a source of bananas for the United States, as well as for other less important products, it is worth our while to look into the island's resources and to see what it has to offer to the world.

It is a beautiful island, with a climate that is just what is needed for the raising of bananas. The soil is rich and fertile, and the water is pure and abundant. The people are friendly and hospitable, and they are well adapted to the work of raising bananas.
