

TOURISTS COMING IN GREAT CROWDS

More Summer People Here Than Ever Before at This Time

Tourists are arriving daily now, and it is said that there are more visitors in the town now than ever before at this time of the year. Summer homes are filling rapidly, and boarding houses report unusual numbers for June.

So many homes have been erected here during the past two years, and so many new houses have been built for the purpose of leasing to summer people, that this community can absorb large numbers of visitors without appearance of any great change in population. One older citizen remarked yesterday that the number of tourists here now would have completely filled the town a few years ago, but now, with all the new buildings in and around Brevard, the numbers are not very noticeable.

It is believed the whole town can be filled to its capacity, with extra efforts being put forth right now. Tens of thousands of people throughout the South are now thinking of the cool mountains, and if Brevard can reach them with this community's message, sufficient numbers can be attracted here to completely fill every house, every spare room, every hotel room in the town and county.

The Chamber of Commerce is working hard in its effort to take advantage of the situation and fill the town. It is said if the citizens generally would arouse themselves to the opportunity now facing Brevard, that the work would be made easy—and certain of results.

EARLY MATURING PULLETS THE BEST

Make More Money Than Late Ones—Care Must Be Given to Make Money

(By JULIAN A. GLAZENER)
Professor Kempster, head of the Poultry Department of the University of Missouri, says: "The quickest maturing pullets are the best and most profitable producers. In our experience here at the State Poultry Experiment Station, we have found that as the length of time required to bring pullets into laying is increased, their egg production ability is decreased."

Experiments conducted in Kansas showed that where pullets had been well fed and managed during the growing season paid a profit of $1.30 for the first six months as compared with a loss of 7½ cents on the pullets that had not been full fed during the growing period. The ones that had been full fed during the developing period laid an average of 87 eggs from September to March, but the others produced only 34 eggs in the same length of time.

Dr. Kennard of the Ohio Poultry Experiment Station, did an interesting and instructive piece of work along this same line. He had fifty early maturing pullets in one lot and fifty late maturing ones in another lot. Both lots were hatched April 7th. During October, November and December the early maturing lot produced $64.00 worth more of eggs than the late maturing lot. The early pullets, however, went into a partial molt in January and February, during which time the late lot beat them by $10.00 worth of eggs. Yet we see there is a balance of $54 in favor of the early maturing pullets. Not only that, but the early lot beginning in March out-laid the others the rest of the year. Their egg yield was much higher during the late summer when egg prices were beginning to advance.

Since we have learned that early maturing pullets are our real money makers, it is our duty to see that the pullets get the feed and attention they are entitled to have. We need not be afraid of their laying too soon if they have a good frame, weight, development and are in good condition. This can be had only by proper care and the feeding of a good balanced ration for growth and development.

Each loser was host to his victor at a splendid dinner served at the club house by the hostesses, Mrs. Harry Patton and Mrs. B. H. Garner.

Many visitors were in the galleries, and exclamations were heard on every side as the great beauty of the country surrounding the golf course, while many compliments were heard from the visitors about the course itself, declarations being made that it is the most unusual and thrilling course the visitors had ever seen.

All members of the club were in accord that Sandy, the pro, is doing fine work this year, as he did last season, and new and greater interest in the club is being shown by the whole community. PRESIDING ELDER PREACHED SUNDAY

Unusually impressive and helpful were the services held at the Methodist church last Sunday, both morning and evening, at which were present a good attendance of members and visitors.

The pastor, Rev. A. L. Aycock, delivered an exceptionally forceful and appealing sermon at the morning hour of worship, and music by the choir and the congregational singing were especially adapted, singing the old familiar hymns composed by John Wesley.

Presiding Elder of the Asheville district, Rev. J. F. Kirk, preached the sermon at the evening hour, and in his characteristic manner gave many helpful suggestions for increasing one's spirituality and left with his hearers much food for thought.

Baskets of Easter lilies and Dorothy Perkins roses, effectively arranged, added much to the beauty and impressiveness of the occasion.

GLAZENER SAYS TO KILL POTATO BUG

County Farmers Preparing to Kill the Pests

(By JULIAN A. GLAZENER)
Instead of waiting to read potatoes in the field, I would like to see them in the pot. I would like to see them in the pot, that something should be done to help of protecting the crop that is now being grown.

There isn't any use in going to the expense and trouble to plant and cultivate a crop of potatoes and then let the bugs and blight reduce the yield several bushels. Of course not all the potatoes in the county are affected with either, yet I know several are, reporting trouble with the bugs and I have seen some signs of blight.

That spraying potatoes with a poisoned Bordeaux mixture increases the value per acre over the non-sprayed ones was shown by experiments conducted in Western North Carolina over a period of six years. The average increase yield was 52 bushels per acre, with a net gain, after the cost of spraying had been deducted, of $52,000 per acre. Four experiments conducted in Eastern Carolina showed an increase of 26 barrels per acre over the non-sprayed potatoes. These experiments were conducted by the Division of Entomology of the State Department of Agriculture and therefore can be relied on as reliable information.

To prepare the poisoned Bordeaux mixture one will need the following: Three good wooden barrels; four pounds of Copper Sulphate (blue-stone); five pounds of stone lime; two pounds of arsenate of lead; two wooden buckets and some thin cloth. Place the four pounds of blue-stone in a cloth and hang it in barrel No. 1 containing twenty-five gallons of water. It should be hung so the blue-stone is just covered by the water. Since it dissolves very slowly, it should be hung in the water the night before using or dissolve it in warm water. Now place the five pounds of stone lime in barrel No. 2 and add water gradually until slaking ceases and the mass is in somewhat of a creamy condition. Then add water to make twenty-five gallons. We now have four pounds of blue-stone dissolved in twenty-five gallons of water in one barrel and five pounds of lime in twenty-five gallons of water in another barrel. Now, in to the third barrel, which should be much larger than the other two, pour these two solutions at the same time through a fine strainer. After the two mixtures have been poured into the third barrel dip out a bucket of the solution and in it mix the two pounds of arsenate of lead and then pour back into the barrel and stir the solution well. We now have fifty gallons of Bordeaux mixture containing four pounds of Copper Sulphate, five pounds of lime and two pounds of arsenate of lead all dissolved and well mixed. The solution is now ready to be used.

It will take about one hundred gallons of the above solution to spray an acre one time as all the surface of the plant should be slightly wet with the solution.

Those who are having trouble with the beetles, but are not in position to spray with poisoned Bordeaux mixture, I suggest you take one pound of Calcium arsenate, mix it with seven pounds of fine lime and dust the potatoes early in the morning when the leaves are damp. You can use a thin sack to do the dusting or a dust can made for the purpose of dusting vegetables.

FLAG DAY PROGRAM GREATLY ENJOYED

Many residents and visitors, including men, women and children, gathered on the court house lawn and the library porch Thursday evening just before sundown to witness the celebration of Flag Day with fitting exercises, sponsored by the local chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Assisting on the program were members of the local Boy Scout and Girl Scout troops, who opened the exercises with a professional and flag drill on the lawn, which proved both entertaining and appropriate to the occasion. The principal speaker of the event was Rev. V. A. Crawford, who told in an interesting manner facts relative to the history of the flag, its proper use and respect due it. Helen Sitton, representing the Girl Scouts, and Fred Miller, of the Boy Scouts, gave salutes to the flag, which was raised on a flag pole in the center of the lawn. The municipal band added greatly to the enjoyment of the occasion with their splendid rendition of patriotic selections throughout the evening.
