YOU WILL FIND HER IN BREVARD

(The following poem is written to Mr. James J. Boucher, in reply to the poem submitted by him and appearing in The Brevard News a few weeks past, entitled "The Quest.")

You seem to think the kind of girl
You're wanting for your wife;
To be your helpmate in this world
And make worthwhile your life,
Is now no longer to be found,
But let me tell you, pard;
You've surely never looked around
Among the girls here in Brevard.

The kind of girl that you desire,
I admit is hard to find;
In the towns and lands afar
You may meet none of her kind,
But don't you think they are dead,
Nor all in the discard -
With golden hair, black or red,
You'll find them in Brevard.

In the country and the city,
In the factory or field,
You can find them, smart and witty,
And they, too, can cook a meal,
To find the kind of girl that you
Are looking for is not so hard;
They grow them by the dozens
In, and around Brevard.
