BIGGEST STRIKE IN THE NATION'S HISTORY GOES UNHINDERED ON ITS WAY.

We are so easily excited when a few hundred working people go on strike for higher wages that sleep is impossible, our digestion becomes impaired, our blood boils with "righteous indignation," and we talk about taking the fomenters and agitators out to a quiet spot and there hanging them to the limb of a tree. "Doggone 'em," we say, "these devils hurt business."

For many months now a strike has been in progress that is so far-reaching in its damnable effect upon business that tens of thousands of men are spending restless nights in wrestling with their problems; business houses are being closed because of the strike; young men and young women are being denied the privilege of pursuing their studies at colleges and universities because of the effects of this, the nation's biggest strike. Some suicides have resulted, and others will follow, all because of the terrific forces turned loose from this strike influence.

We're now talking about the strike of the dollar—the interest earner. Fabulous wages, or interest, have prevailed for some time in America's hell-hole, on Wall Street, in New York. That thing known as "Call Money," with which our righteous citizenship indulges in the art known as gambling, offers the country dollar three times as much wages, or interest, as can be paid in that dollar's own community, so the community dollar leaves his own folks and highballs it to New York, to become a part of that high priced gang of striking dollars.

So far-reaching is the effect of the striking community dollar, that business in the communities throughout the country cannot be carried on, all the working dollars have write such glowing and vivid accounts of the strikes of a few hundred cotton mill workers? Why are they not belching forth their usual gobs in denunciation of those who stop business and bring on suffering?

Many a Dixie dollar is dancing around the gambling tape in New York right now, while his former employer is looking for a cap from the sheriff to close him up, because these Dixie dollars struck for higher wages and followed the wailing delegate of the Gambler's Den into Hell's headquarters on earth—the stock market.

IT MAY BE OF INTEREST TO KNOW WHAT THE OTHER FELLOW THINKS OF YOU.

We often fall into error in thinking that our opinion of someone else is the only thing that matters. We like him, or dislike him, as the case may be, and dismiss the matter in the mistaken idea that that's that, and the end of it.

Well, it isn't. What the other fellow may think of us is just as important (often more so) as our opinion of him.

You've heard a man say: "I do not like that preacher; he doesn't appeal to me at all, and I don't like him." All right. But suppose that man would stop for a moment and ask: "But what does that preacher think of me?" He, doubtless, would be surprised, and his pride wounded, if he could but know just what that preacher thought of him.

Perhaps it is some officer that you hear a man expressing himself about. He will say: "I do not like

SCHEMERS FOLLOW SUMMER CROWDS LIKE LITTLE BEES SEARCH FOR BLOSSOMS.

With the coming of the summer tourists there comes also that gang of fly-by-night salesmen and saleswomen, peddling their wares to both the tourist and the Brevard resident.

This paper is thinking just now of printing peddlers who sell advertising schemes to the boarding houses and business houses. Extremely high priced schemes they are, too, with but little merit to any of them, yet they manage to sell a little piece on a board or a card for a price that would be prohibitive in legitimate business.

Some of the business men of the town told these printing peddlers this week that they would not buy their scheme for several reasons. Among these reasons is the fact that the schemes usually are of no particular benefit to the advertiser. One reason given by some of the merchants was the fact that The Brevard News is here 52 weeks in the year, working in season and out for the advancement of this community and the business interests of this section, and that their advertising money must first go into the columns of The Brevard News. You know we appreciate this attitude and fine spirit of loyalty.

One firm that owes much to this paper, both in money and that greater obligation of personal service rendered, gave a printing peddler a ten dollar bill for a little old space on something that is not worth ten cents, and then told this paper's largest of these one hundred mills. Is it not significant that the Loray mill has had more labor troubles than all the other 99 mills of Gaston county combined?

Why? Have the editorial writers who are so jealous of the state's good name, and so fearful of the activities of the communists, ever been to the Loray mill to make a study of these conditions, and ascertain why it is that this particular mill has had so much more trouble than other mills about it?

This writer happens to know something of the methods employed by the Loray mill, while it was under the management of one Mr. Hayes. At the instance of Manager Hayes, the Gastonia police arrested two men for soliciting subscriptions to a newspaper that was published in Charlotte. On the witness stand Mr. Hayes stated that he published a weekly newspaper and put in it such things as he wanted his workers to read. He stated further that he objected to his workers reading the paper that was published in Charlotte.

With such an un-American and high-handed method of a mill management, is it any wonder that such an industry has more labor troubles than are experienced in mills about it?

Let's make a soil here in North Carolina in which communism cannot grow, then we shall never be bothered with the hateful thing. Simply cussing communism will never eradicate it.

EDITORS INVITED TO BREVARD (Rutherford County News)

Editor James F. Barrett of The Brevard News and Mr. W. C. Russ of Hendersonville, passed through town Monday enroute to Kings Mountain on business. Mr. Barrett has extended an invitation for the 1930 North Carolina Press Convention to meet in his city and indications are that the editors will hold their next annual summer meeting at Brevard.

collector he could not pay a bill which he has been owing The Brevard News for many moons. You know we DO NOT appreciate this attitude.

The Brevard News is doing all it can all the time for this community. Night after night, week after week, from one year's end to the other, the editor of this paper is in meetings with other citizens, working and planning for a better business for all the people of this community.

The Brevard News is equipped to do any kind of advertising that is necessary in the interest of the business life of this community. The Brevard News feels it is justly entitled to the support of the business life of the community, in return for what it endeavors to do for the community.

The fly-by-night printing peddlers and advertising schemers care nothing about Brevard and do nothing for Brevard, other than to bleed it for all the money they can get, and then hot-foot it to another town, there to ply their trade.

Of course, nothing herein can be referring to the splendid camp papers that are published during the season. The camps bring their tens of thousands of dollars annually to this community, and are a part of the community life, and a great part at that. We are talking about the straight out peddler, the schemer, the slick-talker, the guy who sells you a scheme, charges an unusually high price for it, and then laughs at the way he stung his victim.
