HALLOWE'EN PARTY AT HIGH SCHOOL THURSDAY

Ghosts, witches, clowns and skeletons, with wild, ghostly screams and acceptable Hallowe'en tricks will be attendants at the Community Hallowe'en Party, sponsored by the Athletic association of the Rosman High school on Thursday night, October 31.

The party begins promptly at 7:30 in the High school building. There will be the wise witch who foretells all the pleasant and horrible happenings of the future, and who knows all the bright and dark past. She will be present with all her store of knowledge to tell the fortunes of all.

The "Hall of Terrors," the "Room of Surprises," trips to foreign lands, loads of good things to eat, and well-just plenty of entertaining features will be here for all who will attend. Expect surprises, laughs, frights, screams and thrills for every moment of the entire evening.

Everybody is invited and is asked to come masked, wearing a costume. A prize will be given for the most individual costume.

The building will be attractively decorated and the athletic association insists that every patron and every student come and spend an enjoyable two hours in play together. It is suggested that each one slip a nickel or a dime into their pockets before leaving home, and thereby enjoy the evening all the more.

THE PRAYER CORNER

JOYOUS SERVICE

Foreigners tell us that we Americans make a work even of our pleasure, that we do not know how to be happy. I do not think that is true, and yet there is a tendency among us to carry burdens too seriously. Life is not a play, and yet neither is it a tragedy, full of awful portents.

As we look backwards how easily we see that the terrors which troubled us were really blessings in disguise! We must take life seriously, but not severely. And to help us in this we must have sunshine within.

"There is in this loud strumming tide of human care and crime With whom the melodies abide of the everlasting chime;

Who carry music in their heart, Thro' dusky lane and wrangling mart; Plying their daily task with busier feet,

Because their secret souls a holy strain repeat."

"Now we must go out into this sunshine that we may be blessed and find it mirrored within our hearts."

"I knew a minister once," said a devoted man, "who told me that when he came back from his visits to the poor and sick, after doing all he could for them, he simply made himself cheerful, knowing that gloom and sadness would incapacitate him for his work, and also reflect on God's goodness. He would play with his children, or sit down at the piano, and play a lively tune, forcing his nature to rise up from sorrow to the mountain top of gladness and love." I have often thought of it.

We cannot sympathize with suffering by groaning over it. That was the heathen way and there is some of it in Christianity still. We have all known good women who thought to cheer a sufferer by telling tales of woe. How much better a cheery voice and a bright smile, and a little singing! Wise physicians tell people not to whisper in a sick room, it speaks of death to the patient. Oh, this sunshine of the soul—how good it must seem to the dear-wise Father who loves us so, and longs for our happiness.

"As a child, I remember my dear mother singing a great deal about the house," said a writer whom I admire. "At night she would sing me to sleep; in the morning she would sing me awake. There is always music associated with my childhood." All service should be joyous. We should sing as we work, in spirit at least. How much easier the sailor's task becomes when he sings with his fellows, "Ye-ho" as they raise the sails or lift the anchor! How much nobler my struggle becomes when I am light-hearted and joyous! Indeed any service rendered slowly and heavily is unworthy. "Duty" is a poor word; it is prose, "Privilege" is poetry.

"Will you do this for me?" I ask my boy, said the same writer, and at once he and his little sister are on their feet, seeing which can out-strip the other, while my heart beats with delight. Con God be otherwise than hungry for a like service from us, measured not by "I must" but by "I wish to."

Ah, it is a great secret in work to be happy over it, and to count it a pleasure! It makes the work beautiful, the worker contented, God comforted and the world amended to see how religion has its burdens made light.

A PRAYER

Oh, My Father, I know well how cross and peevish and despondent I am, at times, and I pray Thee to forgive me. Fill my heart with such love for Thee, and such gratitude to Thee that I may prove the "beauty of holiness," and make men love Thee by the sunshine Thou dost create in me, for Jesus sake.

Make me a partaker of Thy Divine nature so that all that is truly human in me may be deepened, purified and strengthened, and so may I be a witness of Thee, a light of the world, reflecting Thy Light. Save me, dear Father, from the darkness of selfishness and unite me with wise and tender love to those who need me, and those whom I need. Help me to make religion a thing so beautiful that all men may be won to surrender to its power. Let me manifest in my life its sweetness and excellency its free and ennobling spirit. Forbid that I should go up and down the world with melancholy looks and dejected visage lest I should repel men and women from entering Thy Kingdom. Rather may I walk in the freedom and joy of faith, and with Thy new song on my lips, so that men looking on me may learn to trust and love Thee.

All of this, and more, which I cannot express, I ask in the Master's name. Amen.
