BREVARD MUSIC LOVERS CLUB

The Brevard Music Lovers' club met Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Frank Jenkins, with Mrs. A. H. Kizer as joint hostess.

All the members expressed regret that the president, Mrs. Roy Long, could not be present, and sympathized with her in her recent bereavement. Mrs. J. M. Allison presided in her place. The business was short and consisted mostly in naming committees and starting plans for the celebration of music week and for the work of the club for next year.

Miss Bartholomew and Miss Merritt had the program on Irish music. The former spoke first, telling something of the history of the people, showing how this reflected in their music. The belief in fairies and other supernatural beings mark many of their ballads. This naturally gay and bright people were also sensitive to suffering and oppression. The English conquest brought sorrow and melancholy to their music. Patriotic songs resulted from the conflict. Mrs. Johnson played one of these, "St. Patrick's Day," which later has been used for jig dancing. Miss Biggers sang "St. Patrick was a Gentleman" and the club song, "The Wearing of the Green."

Miss Merritt emphasized the beauty of Irish music. Many of the songs are artistic gems that may be compared favorably with the works of famous composers. Moore, who was the first to popularize these songs, did not hesitate to change the melody to suit the words; hence his editions are not as good as those of later collectors who followed the original. Miss Merritt told the interesting history of many songs. Of these the club sang, "Robin Adair," Mrs. J. F. Winton, "The Last Rose of Summer," Mrs. Allison, "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," and Mrs. Allison, Mrs. O. L. Erwin and Miss Bartholomew, the Londonderry air with the words, "Love's Benediction."

The hostesses served delicious sandwiches with cake and coffee. After this the members enjoyed a pleasant half hour of conversation. Miss Strickland, the new member, was extended a hearty welcome.

FORTNIGHTLY CLUB IN REGULAR MEETING

Regular meeting of the Fortnightly club was held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Cordia King.

Following the transaction of business of the club, an interesting program was in charge of Mrs. Z. W. Nichols on the subject of "Children in the Home."

Following the serving of refreshments, the club adjourned to meet in two weeks at the home of Mrs. J. C. Wike, with Mrs. H. E. Boucher in charge of the program.

HELEN FULBRIGHT CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Little Helen Fulbright celebrated her eighth birthday with a party Saturday afternoon at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Fulbright.

Games and contests were enjoyed by the children, and refreshments of cake, cream and candy were served the children during the afternoon. The little hostess received many pretty birthday gifts. About twenty-five children were present to enjoy the occasion.

"What do you do behind the glass cage at the bank?"
"Oh, that's telling."

This is the ninth of a series of ten advertisements, sponsored by a group of some twenty-five citizens of the town and county, in an effort to set forth the absolute necessity of cooperation among the people of this county if the county is to endure and prosper.

Now Listen Friends, Doggone You!

(By R. K. GALLOWAY)

There is one thing we will give you credit for. You had enough sense at least not to ask the chain stores for credit when you were in trouble.

Now listen to us, friends, I want to talk to you seriously about this matter. Now, you Mr. Lawyer, how many cases do you try in a year for the chain boys? And Mr. Doctor, how many calls do you have a year from this crowd who take your money but give you none back? You, Mr. Dentist, how many teeth have you jerked out for the chain store crowd last year? You certainly must have lost your own wisdom teeth or you could see in the end you are cheating yourself, cause, you are not going to continue prosperous if your fellow citizens are not. And you, Mr. Farmer, you are the guy that thinks the whole world's agin you and yet you are spending your money with an outfit that does more to cut down the prices on the products you raise than any other agency in the world. If you don't believe this statement you should read the article on: "Farmers Now Face Chain Stores" by James E. Boyle, Professor of Rural Economy of Cornell University. He tells you of the methods used by the big chains to beat down the prices on the things you raise. Just one quotation from Prof. Boyle's article—"Every year some canner of peas, corn, tomatoes, or peaches and so on, cans too big a pack. He rushes to the chain store with his surplus. They recognize this surplus as distress merchandise and drive a hard bargain, often buying below cost of production. This stuff then becomes a leader. The effect if the chain be a large one is to depress prices of the product over the whole United States, for the market is very sensitive. Here again the farmer is the shock absorber in the end, for buyers can protect themselves best by paying farmers less. Now, what do you know about that. You farmers who have almost, by your action considered the chain crowd as a Moses to lead you out of the Wilderness. You want to get a new pair of specs at the ten cent store and look into things.

Mr. Banker, you are supposed to be a wise bird. You make your money loaning other peoples' money to some one else, but if the folks who leave their money in town when they have any, haven't any money to leave in your bank, where are you going to get any money to loan. You can't loan the chain store boys' money, that's a cinch.

Now Mr., Mrs. and Miss School Teacher, we will take up your case. You are supposed to teach the young idea how to shoot, to train the young minds in the way they should go. According to our idea you are doing a poor job, for the folks who really are loved to pay your wages are getting nothing back from you and eventually they won't be here to pay and they do say that it will only be a few years now until school and school teachers will be passe and the youths will all be taught by talking pictures. The Big Chain Picture concerns are going to attend to your case if you don't look out.

Mr. Property Owner, you are the fellow who ran Charles Smith out of his corner store cause he couldn't stand double rent and a ten year lease, but you have a lot of other property in town that isn't worth half as much as it was before, because all the Charlie Smiths in town haven't been doing so well. So, old man, you haven't derived a great lot of benefit from your high rent yet.

Now Mr. Preacher, you want to sell salvation at union wages and buy your goods at bargain prices, and you are supposed to advocate cooperation, brotherly love, etc., why say, every Sunday you should be preaching sermons advising your people to trade with those who make your salary possible, who occasionally help redecorate the church, buy a new furnace, or help to pay off that old note. Let your conscience be your guide. Are you giving your fellow man a square deal?

Mr. Undertaker, I see you sitting back there in the corner waiting for some one to kick in. How many coffins have you sold to the chain store boys? Right here we are going to touch off the dynamite. Did you ever see a Secretary of a Chamber of Commerce on a salary contributed by the Independent Merchants of a city, directing the efforts for a better community, and a better community spirit, come out of a chain store? Well we did last week and it was funnier to us than one of Will Rogers' best jokes. It is a good thing for him that we don't sign his salary check cause it certainly "wouldn't rain no more" for him.

And you, Mr. Newspaper Man and employees around the office. Who fed you all the years around here until you developed a sizable and profitable paper, and now isn't your paper full of propaganda put out by the Publicity Department of the big chain store organizations and run in your paper free as news telling of the holier than thou attitude of the chains, and how they are interested in the development of all communities in which they operate and all that sort of bunk, and they never gave a darn cent to make it possible. You run their stuff free and spend a lot of time wondering why Charlie Smith can't pay his advertising bill.

What good is an education going to do your children, if the chain store method of distribution is to endure? They will have no opportunity for them to use the one your sacrifice helped create. If all the thinking, planning, etc, is to be done in New York or Chicago, and all they need is a yes mam yes sir, wouldn't it be cheaper to buy a phonograph and be done with it?
