herself because she decided not to submit an estimate. She started to The Brevard News office, she reports, with an estimate of 9,580, and because her subscription was paid up to August of this year, and she would have had to pay another dollar to qualify for entry, she decided not to submit the bid. Had she continued on her task, and submitted the estimate, she would have won the Chevrolet car.

Adjoining counties have shown great increases during the 10-year period. Henderson county is given a population of 23,388, nearly two and one-half times more than Transylvania county has. Haywood county as a population of 28,462, or three times as much as Transylvania. Jackson county has 17,477, or nearly twice the population of Transylvania. Clay county, with 5,436, and Graham, with 5,841, are the only counties in Western North Carolina with population smaller than Transylvania.

Numerous families formerly living within the great boundary of 70,000 acres of land in this county taken by the government in the formation of Pisgah National Forest, have moved out during the past decade, many of them going into the adjoining counties, thus accounting in some measure for the small growth of this county and adding to the increases as shown by the adjoining counties. The Carr Lumber company, operating ten years ago at full blast in Transylvania county, has now extended its operations into Henderson county, and many of the employees of that big concern now live in Henderson county who were, formerly, citizens of this county. Then, too, Enka and other big manufacturing centers, have taken hundreds of people from here. With all these things taken into consideration, leaders here express satisfaction that the county shows an actual increase in population over the 1920 census.

Yancey, Madison and Swain counties show a decrease in population from the census of ten years ago. Buncombe county is the largest in Western North Carolina, with Rutherford as second in size and Haywood now in third place. A study of the census report shows that Western North Carolina is rapidly becoming an industrial section. The large counties in population are the counties in which industries are being established. In Buncombe, there is the big Enka plant; in Haywood there is the big Champion Fibre company, while in Rutherford county there are numerous textile plants.

The contest staged by The Brevard News, in offering a new Chevrolet Coach to the subscriber making the nearest correct estimate of the county's population has caused widespread study of the county, its several communities, its changing and shifting population, the causes for same, and above all, the possibilities offered by this county to people who would be interested in either agriculture or industry. It is found that there is ample room here for farmers—lands that are rich, acres and acres of them, offering unlimited opportunities to the farmers of other sections.

Perhaps the finest promise here is to industry. In no other section of the country can there be found such natural sites for manufacturing plants with an abundance of pure clear water as that found in Trans-

SIMMONS - BAILEY FIGHT HOLDS THE CENTER OF STAGE

man who has received as much at the hands of his party as Simmons has received, ought to stand by the party nominee, regardless of everything else.

Simmons supporters counter this argument with the assertion that Simmons did not desert the party—that it was Smith himself who deserted the party when he repudiated the democratic platform, and topped off his sins by appointing a wet republican as national chairman of the democratic party.

One of the most interesting developments in the bitter fight is the charge by the Simmons men that Bailey supporters in Raleigh have registered hundreds of negroes in the primary to vote for Bailey next Saturday. This is denied by the Bailey leaders, but all agree that negroes have been registered as democrats in the primary registration, but both factions deny responsibility for such registration of the colored men and women.

Simmons is being charged by the Bailey followers with the responsibility for North Carolina going for Herbert Hoover in last election, therefore, it is argued by his enemies, that he should no longer be supported by the democrats. Followers of Simmons meet this charge with a counter charge that Smith, as the democratic nominee for president, repudiated the democratic platform and aligned the democratic party with the liquor interests and further violated the principles of the democratic party by naming a republican as national chairman, and claim that Simmons was well within his rights as democratic leader in punishing Smith for these violations. It is one of the hardest fought campaigns ever waged in North Carolina, and both sides are claiming the victory to be decided in the primary next Saturday. Predictions are that Bailey will carry Western North Carolina.

The Republican Senate Fight
On the republican side there is for the first time in many years a contest for nomination of a republican candidate for United States senate. George M. Pritchard, in congress from the Tenth District, is asking for this nomination. Irvin B. Tucker and Rev. Grady Dorsett, both from the eastern end of the state, are also candidates for this nomination. The nominee will be decided in the republican primary next Saturday.

Congressional Races
Former Congressman Zebulon Weaver and Major W. B. Stone are contesting for the democratic nomination for congress. Mr. Weaver was in congress from 1916 to 1928, when George M. Pritchard displaced him. Major Stone is not so well known over the district, but is making a vigorous campaign for the nomination.

Brownlow Jackson has already been nominated by the republicans to contest in the November election the democratic candidate to be named next Saturday.

Solicitor Contest
Candidates of both parties for the office of solicitor of the 18th district are to be selected in the primary Saturday. On the democratic side J. Will Pless, Jr., present solicitor, is being opposed for the nomination by I. Curtis Arledge, Hendersonville lawyer. On the republican side there is a three-cornered fight for the nomination. Ralph E. Fisher, of Brevard, is believed to be the leader in this race, and his friends in Transylvania and Henderson counties are making an especially strong fight for Fisher's success. C. C. Lisenbee, of Marion, and S. C. Lisenbee, of Rutherfordton, are also in this race for the nomination as candidate for solicitor.

County Contests
No contests are to be settled by the republicans in the primary Saturday for county offices, all candidates for county offices on the republican ticket were selected in convention. There are several hotly contested fights on the democratic side, however, in the county. For the legislature there are especially strong men battling for the nomination. They are W. M. Henry and W. H. Duckworth, both of whom have served in the legislature, both having large followings in the county. No one has made prediction as to which will be successful in the primary Saturday.

Otto Alexander is opposed for the nomination for Clerk of the court.

For sheriff-tax collector a warm fight is on between T. E. Patton, Jr., present sheriff, and Eck L. Sims and T. E. Reid. All three have made active campaigns, and a second primary is expected to make final nomination in this race.

Jess A. Galloway, Dewey Gravely and Clyde Blythe are asking nomination for register of deeds on the democratic ticket. All three are well known and have large followings. This contest may also result in a second primary, it is said.

In the treasurer's race there are also three strong men, as follows: H. C. Aiken, E. Carl Allison and George M. Justus.

Two men are to be eliminated in the primary contest for the board of county commissioners. Seven were filed for the five places on the board. E. A. Plummer, W. L. Aiken and O. L. Erwin, all of Brevard, and W. B. Henderson, of Quebec; L. V. Sigmon of Lake Toxaway; Gaston Whitmire, of Cherryfield; and Carlos Lyday of Penrose are the entrants, and from this group five are to be chosen as nominees.

Much interest is being taken in many of the township races also, and in Brevard township the vote for constable will be between Genn Burrell and W. L. Wood. It is believed that a heavy primary vote will be recorded in Saturday's primaries.
