FLAMING YOUTH OF THE COUNTY BLAZING THE TRAIL FOR ADVANCEMENT.

All Transylvania county ought to be proud of the young men and women who are laying plans for a greater Transylvania. While some people have been worried about the youth of today, our young people have been forging ahead in a manner that stresses earnestness and determination for advancement. We are thinking just now of the two Students' Fairs to be staged in the county—the first in Brevard this Saturday, when the class in vocational agriculture in the Brevard High School will give demonstration of their work; the other at Rosman on the 16th, when the boys and girls of that good place will present, through the means of a fair, evidences of their training and great ability.

There is inspiration for all who attend these fairs. There is something so appealing, so strength-giving in its fine qualities, in the efforts of young people to get started in life that any man who is not deeply touched by these efforts is dead to the appeal of youth and youth's ambition. It is to be hoped that the citizens of the town and county, both men and women, who are really interested in the young people will attend these events and encourage those fine fellows who are so nobly carrying on for the county. Then, too, there is much we older people can learn from these achievements of our young people.

And while we are singing the praises of heroic warriors, and worship at the feet of blubbery, babbling politicians, let us pause and give some praise where it is due, indeed. Julian Glazener and John Corbin, teachers of vocational agriculture in the Brevard and Rosman schools, are doing something really worth while in the training of these Young Tar Heel Farmers. No other men in all the county's active forces are rendering the real service to the county that these men are giving through their work in training the future farmers of the county. There is a work worth while, an influence that shall live always, so extensive that no man can even begin to calculate its great worth.

TURNING IN OF FALSE FIRE ALARMS DANGEROUS.

Any man who will turn in a false fire alarm is a potential murderer. Every time firemen answer an alarm they run the risk of losing their lives or suffering injuries that would make them cripples for life. Every time the fire trucks and the automobiles of fire company officials go rushing through crowded districts, the lives of citizens along the way are endangered. There is sufficient risk when firemen must go tearing madly to extinguish a blazing building. These men, and the public, ought not ever be exposed to this danger through a false alarm. Should death result from an event, then the man who turned in that false alarm is just as guilty of murder as though he had pointed a gun at some one and pulled the trigger which sent cold lead into the body of his victim.

Fire is the most exciting thing in all life. A fire alarm causes more nervousness and fear than any other sound that can be sent out upon the still air. Wherever there is a crowd of people assembled in a room, and the fire alarm is sounded, there is great danger of a stampede, with dire results. If a man should be killed, or a woman should lose her life at such time, or a little child should be trampled under foot and its precious life snuffed out, the man who turned in such false fire alarm would be guilty of murder in its greatest degree.

There is something wrong with any man who would turn in a false fire alarm. He is light in the head, black at heart, cowardly in his soul, dwarfed in mind, diseased in body, and utterly void of any semblance of principle. He is disgrace to the man from whose lions he sprang, a bitter, black disappointment to the woman who brought him into the world, a menace to a community, a wart upon society, an imbecile, worse than a thief and not fit to become the valet to a train robber or a horse thief. He ought to be hung.

TO THE SCHOOL TEACHERS OF THIS GREAT COUNTY

For the past thirty-five years The Brevard News, under its several managements, has stood four-square to the county schools, teachers and pupils. In the past four years, under the management of the present editor, it has been a great pleasure to do all that could be done in supporting the schools.

Things are different, however, this year, and The Brevard News is not being permitted to work in conjunction with the schools as in the years gone by. This is to be regretted, and is regretted, no doubt, by many teachers and pupils, and certainly by The Brevard News. Because of the muddled condition of affairs prevailing in the school work for the past year, it has been hard to tell heads from tails in the whole shebang. The part that The Brevard News has been accustomed to take in support of the schools has been largely diminished on account of the positive refusal of the county superintendent of public instruction to give us any information about the public schools of the county.

School children appreciate having their names published in the school honor roll. So far this year we have had none of these. We want all this news, and all other items that might be an inspiration to the boys and girls, or due recognition of the great work being done by the teachers. We do not know, of course, just what "orders" may have been issued by the powerful powers that be concerning the co-operation of the teachers with The Brevard News in these matters. We do say this, however, and say it in the greatest of faith: The Brevard News will be right here, pulling and working for the public schools and the advancement of the children of the county, long after the present school officials shall have passed from view on the stage of public activity.

If you can do so without embarrassment, we should appreciate it very greatly if you would mail or send in the list of your honor rolls, or any other school news that would be interesting to the children in the schools and to their parents.

KINGS MOUNTAIN EVENT CAUSES SERIOUS THOUGHT.

Celebration of the battle of Kings Mountain, turning point in the Revolutionary War, was fittingly observed Tuesday when fifty thousand people witnessed the exercises and heard the president of the United States sing the praises of the heroes who fought and won that great fight. Carolinians are proud of the part that their forebears played in winning that war and establishing here a republic that stands head and shoulders above all other nations of the world, in so far as government is concerned.

The one big, absorbing, impelling force in that fight and in all the fights throughout the seven years—the force which encouraged men on and on in an unequal struggle to emerge at last victorious in the great cause, was the right of the individual citizen to a voice in his government. The president of the United States well said that America's danger is not to be found among foreign foes, but is lurking right here within our own confines. One of the greatest dangers, if not actually THE great danger, is that practised by cheap politicians who steal elections and stuff ballot boxes with illegal ballots. Such practise is direct violation of every urge and principle which actuated our forefathers in their great fight.

No reds from Russia, no socialists from across the seven seas, can ever do the harm to America that is being done by election crooks and thieves, who, by their thievery, rob the American citizens of the very thing for which the great Revolutionary War was fought. How can there be any great respect for government when people feel that they are being governed by men who obtained office through fraud? Some day our civilization must reach the place where an election thief will be looked upon as the men of the West used to look upon a horse thief. Such ought to be the case. A man who will steal another man's vote is far meaner than a man who would steal a horse, for he is stealing something far more valuable than a horse.

If our structure ever falls it will be due entirely to the rotting of the foundation, a condition that will be brought about by the activities of our own citizens, as they bore away at the sills of the governmental structure, causing a decay which will bring the house down upon the heads of those who do the boring.

See the Students Fair, without fail. The young men staging that event represent great possibilities for the Transylvania county soon to be.

MARY, THE MOTHER OF JESUS

Next Sunday's Sunday School Lesson is about Mary, the Mother of Jesus. It is the most beautiful story ever written about a woman. All men who are not in some other Sunday School class are cordially invited to attend the Men's Bible Class of the Brevard Methodist church, and hear our teacher, James F. Barrett, describe the life of this great woman who nursed and nurtured Our Saviour.

Pisgah Forest News

One thing about the drought! We are not worried about the frosts. If there is anything around our premises it can affect, except our coal bin, we don't know it. Another happy thing is we are even with the bean beetle. 'Twas about the only compensating thought as we would go into our garden this year. The fact is, a drought is about the only thing we know of that can cope with the beetle. We have hopes it will prove their extinction from this section.

Mrs. Jess Magle and children, Mrs. Searcy and brother Pinkney Morris, and Valry Carter motored to Concord recently to visit Messrs. Chester Cagle and Mitchell Morris.

Mrs. C. C. Morris and daughter, Audrey and Miss Nell Lipe of Biltmore, spent the week-end with the former's mother, Mrs. Emma Colburn.

Mrs. Henry Sentell and daughter, Corrinne, are visiting Ed Campfield at Henrietta, S. C.

The singing class of the Baptist church and many McCall relations from this section attended the McCall reunion at Little River Sunday.

Miss Lavada Orr is attending school in Charleston.

Mr. Corn of Mud Creek, is visiting his daughter-in-law, Mrs. E. C. Corn.

Allen Cody and Earl Frady were Asheville visitors Thursday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Neely were Rosman visitors Sunday.

Miss Myrtle Frady, who is employed at Asheville, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Frady.

Miss Lucie Burns entertained with a party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Burns on Thursday evening. Those enjoying the evening were: Misses Minnie Galloway, Louise Landreth, and Messrs Fleet Galloway, Albert and Reid Leverett, Foy Holden and Harvey Radford.

Valry Carter was a pleasant caller at the home of R. L. Capps Sunday evening.

Messrs R. E. Mackey, Frank Wilson and Tom Allen furnished some good string music at the school house Thursday night.

The seventh grade pupils of the Davidson River school have been transferred to the Brevard Elementary school.

Miss Florine Carter spent Sunday afternoon with Miss Ruby Whitmire in Brevard.

There's music in the air! The planing mill of the Carr Lumber company started Monday morning.

Davidson River Day at the Presbyterian church was well attended Sunday. In the morning services, R. L. Gash gave a sketch of the history of the church. Picnic dinner on the ground and services by Rev. Mr. Hutchison in the afternoon.
