GOOD MARKETS EXIST FOR BLACK WALNUTS

Both the hulled nuts and the black walnut kernels or meats are in demand by grocers, confectionery shops, or candy plants and the sale of the walnuts may be made a regular farm income.
 "There are many farms in North Carolina having black walnut trees producing nuts of exceptional value each year," declares R. W. Graeber, extension forester at State College. "Last year was a poor walnut year in most sections of the state and it is possible that the drought has interfered with the crop this season; however, the crop prospect is worth immediate investigation. Good black walnuts are always in demand and there are local markets available in nearly every town in the state."
 In preparing the nuts for market, they should be gathered as soon as they fall, the hulls removed and the nuts spread out to dry, says Mr. Graeber. This keeps the kernels bright-colored and sweet. An old corn sheller may be used to remove the hulls rapidly and easily; if done while the hulls are still green. Scrubbing in an old churn or similar receptacle will polish the shells and make the nuts more attractive to the eye.
 To cure, spread the nuts on a screen wire or board surface not more than three nuts deep. A moldy nut soon becomes rancid and of poor quality.
 Mr. Graeber says that many farmers of his acquaintance have developed a good trade direct with the consumer through the curb markets. Others sell by parcel post and still others sell directly to the candy stores, ice cream plants and other local markets. If any farmer should have difficulty in finding a local market, Mr. Graeber offers to send him information about outside markets.

OVERHEARD AT THE FAIR SATURDAY

"Look that map over and ask the boy any questions you want to about it."
 "Yeah, I've got one just about that size."
 "Nice potatoes, alright."
 "That just looks fine."
 "Look at the ducks."
 "Aren't these beautiful?"
 "Well, I've heard of Jersey cows but never heard of a Jersey pig."
 "I ought to have gotten some corn and brought to this thing."
 "That's exactly right."
 "I wouldn't mind sticking a tooth in one of those pies—would you?"
 "That's beautiful work."
 "Isn't that nice?"
 "Look at those little old pigs"
 "Look at this old timey hog pen."
 A conversation—
 "What are you doing here?"
 "I'm looking at the fair."
 "Funny question to ask and everybody looking."
 "That's real corn, now."
 "Turnips! I have never—"
 "What's this for?"
 "Did you ever see the beat of that?"
 "See that bean?"
 "Is it good for anything?"
 "He ought to have a blue ribbon on that."
 "I'd have never thought of fixing up something like that!"
 "That's a nice potato."
 "There's been a lot of people in here this morning."
 "Pig-ee — Pig-pig-pig."
 "That one has all three of the ribbons."
 "The old sow like to have got me this morning."
 "Rooster crowed—time to get up."
 "Do all those pigs belong to that one sow?"
 "My boy grew those."
 "Cousin Leo, here's the way to fix up sweet potatoes."
 "Look at the pumpkin—I'm gonna spank you!"
 "Howdy, Tom."
 "Well, ain't those dresses pretty?"
 "An old timey hog pen made out of rails and an old mountain rooster in it."
 "Here's two little calves."
 "I don't see how they all got ribbons on."
 "Here's two little piggies."
 "There's that mare and colt."
 "I'm afraid the sow is wanting water."
 "That's the finest celery in the county. That boy did just what he was supposed to do."
 "Those are good pigs for six dollars."
 "Transylvania county celery is better, because we've grown it."
 "I'd love to taste some of that."
 "Paul, have you seen the ponies?"
 "Grandma, this is how they fix sweet potatoes."
 "You know the county ought to have something like that."
