SOME PROFESSIONALS ARE TO BE DISAPPOINTED

In preparing for the relief work to be done in this community during the coming winter, leaders in the movement have made it plain that the professional beggar is to receive the cold shoulder, and little else. By the professional beggar is meant, it is said, the fellow who will not work when he can get work to do, but never hesitates to be in the front line when food is to be handed out to the needy.

Several instances have been reported to officials of the associated charities wherein men have been offered work to do, and flatly refused to accept the jobs. These names have been reported, and they will be watched when the charity work begins. Some farmers have told of trying to get men to help in saving fodder, digging potatoes, in the harvest field, and such work, and some fellows positively refused to work. It is known that some of these have been seen regularly about the baskets that were given out in past seasons. It is such people as these who will receive a cold shoulder this winter when applying for relief.

People cannot get away from that age-old commandment that in the sweat of the brow men shall eat bread. Those who refuse to take work when it is offered unto them have but little chance of receiving aid from a big hearted community during the cold winter months soon to be upon us.

There is plenty of relief to be given to the deserving poor, without wasting anything upon the man who is too infernal trifling and lazy to work when he has a chance to work. We do hope that the Associated Charities will be able to supply the wants of deserving poor man, woman and child during the winter. We also hope that many bits will be given to the man who has refused to work when he could have worked during the summer and fall months.

Those people who are without work and who will soon be without food, ought to be going about right now from house to house, drumming up work at cutting wood, working on yards, roads, fences, or anything that is to be done about the homes of the people in town and country. A little drumming up of trade would result in lots of work being given out. Most every family has an hour's work, or a day's work, about the house that could be done now.

Let us look well after the needs of those who are actually in need and worthy of assistance. Let us also be most careful in turning a deaf ear to the trifler who will not do his part.

NEXT WEEK'S REVIVAL

Rev. G. T. Bond, of West Asheville, is scheduled to begin services at the Methodist church here next Sunday morning, conducting a week's revival for the local institution. This coming meeting promises to be most successful, as members of the church have signified intense interest in the revival, and have given pledge of hearty support.

The time is ripe for a real revival in Brevard, and its need is keenly felt. The state of mind existing in the community is such as to give evidence that revivals now will be heartily welcomed. The average citizen has seen about everything of material nature crumbling away, and has witnessed the decay of personal power of position and wealth, and is now seriously pondering the question of that one souper which never fails—the eternal God.

Rev. Mr. Bond is a splendid preacher, a true Christian and is deeply interested in his work. While the revival is to be held in the Methodist church, and the visiting preacher is a member of that church, the pastor, Rev. J. H. West, has made it plain that the revival is for the community, and expresses the hope that all men and women of all denominations will attend and take just as much interest in the meeting as if it were being held in a non-denominational hall.

GOVERNOR GARDNER'S PLAN MOST HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL

Governor Gardner should be highly pleased with the success of his "live-at-home" plan. One feature of this plan was to have housewives can and preserve all the food possible for the coming winter. Well, just about everything except sunshine and wind have been preserved during the past three months. The average housekeeper has enough food canned and preserved to last the family for two years, and, in many instances the supply will last for the next three years.

We know of no other activity that could have resulted in as great good to the people of the state as this canning and preserving program. The Western canneries will feel the effect of the loss of thousands and thousands of dollars that have been going out of this state into the coffers of those distant canneries in the past. This state will likewise feel the beneficial effect of keeping this money here at home.

HOW ABOUT HAVING UNION SERVICES FOR THE WINTER?

Isn't about time that the Brevard churches again adopted the plan of having union services on Sunday evenings? This plan was so successful in the past, and resulted in such tremendous good, that it seems the proper thing to do again during this winter. We are of the opinion that these union services, held in regular order in the several churches of the town, have done more in way of bringing the people closer together than anything else ever tried here.

We have been expecting announcement of resumption of the plan, but so far nothing has been said about the matter. Probably the question will be discussed and acted upon at the next meeting of the Ministerial association. The ministers could do great work for the community by adopting the plan, we believe.

HATS OFF TO THE YOUNG FARMERS OF THE COUNTY.

Transylvania county and Western North Carolina owe a great debt to the Young Tar Heel Farmers of the Rosman and Brevard High Schools who are staging fairs this week and next. Young men who refuse to be daunted by the depression, and who are looking far into the future, going ahead with their studies and their projects, should prove an object lesson to the older men of the community who are laying down on the job.

Brevard's fair is to be held this Friday, and the Rosman fair next week. The young men in these two groups will have something really worth while to show to the people, and here's hoping that all citizens will attend both fairs and give all encouragement to these young men. They are the future citizens of the county, and they realize that agriculture and stock raising is to be the salvation of this fine section, hence their devotion to promotion of the interest of these great enterprises.

The business man in this county who is alert to his own business interests in the future will lend every aid possible and show every consideration to the Young Tar Heel Farmers. It will not be very long until they are the leading citizens of this section, and in whatever manner they are now treated by the business men, that same treatment may be expected from these young men within a few short years.

J. F. Corbin and Julian Glazener, teachers of these classes in the Rosman and Brevard schools, are doing a work here that will be paying big dividends for Transylvania county for many years to come.

THANK YOU, FRIEND

Dear Mr. Barrett:
I wish to thank every person who contributed to the load of stuff we carried to Fruitland Institute.

I AM STILL RICH

(By Roy L. Smith in The Rotarian)

We have passed through a panic, suffered from a crash on the stock market and are now more than half way through the depression and I am still rich.

It may be true that I have much less to live on than a year ago, but it is certainly true that I have just as much as ever to live for. The real values of life are unshaken and solid.

The stock crash cost us much that we never had—paper profits which never got nearer our pockets than the financial pages of the daily papers. The market failed but nothing else did. Prices went down but one acre lost its fertility and all the electrons, protons and ether waves went on working in their accustomed ways.

When the depression came I was compelled to take an invoice and soon discovered that I was still rich. All my capacity for the enjoyment of life was intact.

My two hundred-thousand-dollar eyes are just as good as they ever were. Every landscape and sunset is mine if I want it. Twenty-thousand scenes and views are added to my collection almost every week. A hundred-thousand-dollar sense of hearing is still unimpaired and by it I become an heir to a world of beauty and inspiration.

Then there's my million-dollar stomach and a half-million-dollar appetite. No doctor has sentenced me to spinach for the rest of my life. Better to have plain food and an appetite than to sit down to a banquet with no appetite. No man can be rich who is compelled to take orders daily from his stomach.

The depression has not lowered a single friendship. Neighbors still greet us in the same old cordial way, business associates believe in us, and our sons hold us in high respect. The wife's welcome at the close of the day has not depreciated in the least and our daughters continue to lavish their affection upon us with the same old extravagance.

My faith in the goodness of the universe is unimpaired. By that faith I am emboldened to face defeat and despair. The prayers my mother taught me and the faith in God instilled in me by a devout father remain as priceless treasures no depression can touch.

No nation becomes great by becoming rich. Neither does a man find enduring satisfaction in life by owning something—only by becoming something. The most degrading poverty is that which results from killing the spirit that the body may be served.

This depression has cost us some of the things we created, but it has robbed us of none of our power to create. We may lose some beautiful things but we have lost no love of the beautiful.

It is a challenge, not a catastrophe. A generation that has conquered the air and sent giant planes circling the globe, which has plunged into the depths and disported on the ocean's floor, which has climbed above the clouds and lived in the stratosphere is now faced with the challenge to rise above its dependence on mere things and seek an emancipation of the spirit of man.

The last six months have been for many men a thrilling adventure through which they have discovered their real wealth. Bereft of dividends and profits they are discovering the sustaining powers of a strong religious faith, the abiding values of courage, heroism, honor, charity and trustworthiness.

A financial crisis can wipe out profits and bring business to a standstill, but character is beyond reach. It can rob us of all we have, but it cannot affect what we are.

The investments we made in ambitious youth, hospitals, crippled children's camps, colleges and service institutions still go on paying dividends. The deepest satisfaction of life—those which come from sharing and service—remain secure.

I am still rich because I am independently rich—none of my wealth depends upon business conditions or market reports.

BILLY IS IN TROUBLE

I've got a letter, parson, from my boy out in the West.
An' my ol' heart is as heavy as an anvil in my breast;
To think my boy, whose futur' I had so proudly planned,
Should wander from the path o' right and come to such an end.

I told him when he left us, only three short years ago,
He'd find himself a-plovin' in a mighty crooked row;
He'd miss his father's counsel and his mother's prayers, too,
But he said the farm was hateful, an' he guessed he'd better go.

I know there's big temptations for a youngster in the West,
But I believed our Billy had the courage to resist.
An' when he left I warned him o' the ever-waiting snares
That lie like hidden serpents in life's pathway everywhere.

But Billy promised faithful to be keeryful, an' allowed
He'd build a reputation that would make us mighty proud.
But it seems as somehow my counsel sort o' faded from his mind,
An' now my boy's in trouble of the every worst kind.

His letters come so seldom that I somehow sorter knowed
That Billy was a'trampin' on a mighty rocky road.
But I never once imagined he would bow my head in shame,
An' in the dust'd waller his ol' daddy's honest name.

He writes from out in Denver, an' the story's might short;
I just can't tell his mother; it would break her poor ol' heart;
An' so I reckoned, parson, you might break the news to her—
Bill's in the Legislator, but he doesn't say what fur.
